PREFACE.

THE SPALDING MEMORIAL was originally compiled and issued in 1872 by the late Rev. Samuel J. Spalding, of Newburyport, Mass. Soon after his death, in 1892, I undertook the task of revision. For the past three years the work has been actively carried on; and here at last is this huge production containing about 1276 octavo pages, over 15,000 names, illustrated with various coats of arms and numerous steel engravings of prominent members of the family — making the largest and most complete genealogical work ever published in America.

Patient examination of the National and State Official Records and Archives, and diligent research in the various genealogical libraries and societies has been made; and the contents of private letters and documents have been thoroughly searched for information: Each source has yielded its quota of facts, and these facts have been woven into genealogical biographies. A vast amount of correspondence has been carried on with persons bearing the name of Spalding and with other descendants in the female line, who have rendered valuable aid and assistance — to whom my thanks are especially due.

These records have been made as full in dates of births, marriages and deaths as diligent and extensive research could make them; and in addition, without indulging in anything like personal eulogy, other facts have been stated which might illustrate standing and character, such as business or occupation, offices held, military services rendered, the collegiate course of education pursued, and the learned professions filled. It would have been agreeable to write out full narratives of all the more prominent members of the family, but this would have swollen the present volume to an impracticable size. Therefore, the primary aim has been to give a concise family record, laying the foundation on which fuller narratives could be constructed; and it is to be hoped that the Revised SPALDING MEMORIAL will be satisfactory in every way to those for whom alone the compilation has been made.

As to the spelling of the name, the best authority has been followed; SPALDING is the uniform mode in Great Britain and on the Continent, and generally prevails in this country. Some prefer the other forms; against these there is no law, for both surnames and Christian names are now frequently altered at the will and taste of those to whom they belong. There is no standard authority in the spelling of proper names. The origin and spelling of the name will be more fully discussed in the "Introduction" to this work.

Mistakes will undoubtedly be found in the volume. But they exist, not for want of painstaking efforts to avoid them, but generally from imperfect manuscripts and contradictory statements sent by members of the same family. What is worth recording at all, is worth recording carefully and correctly; and when mistakes are discovered, the corrections should at once be sent to me for future editions.

That the memory of our ancestors should have its public record is peculiarly proper, and to preserve and perpetuate the births, marriages, deaths, and other important historical facts of personal and family history, cannot fail to prove invaluable and a source of pride and interest to ourselves and to our descendants. Indeed, there is inherent in us a desire that our descendants shall know something of us — how and where we spend our lives — for the poet truly says —

"To live in hearts we leave behind
Is not to die."

In the preservation of such a record all persons possessing a good pedigree should have a natural pride. And who has more reason to be proud of his ancestors than an American whose family name represents direct descent from the earliest colonists — as does the name of SPALDING?

Edward Spalding, of Massachusetts Bay, a brave and sturdy pioneer, has left behind him a train of descendants, eminent in all walks of life, heroes of the Colonial and Revolutionary wars, statesmen, persons noteworthy in the church, at the bar, in literature, art, science and the professions, and those who have contributed to the industrial and commercial prosperity and growth of the country—each of whom has added lustre to the name.

As a race, the Spalding Family has always been possessed of great physical vigor, and for the most part its members have been land owners and tillers of the soil. In order to seek a home and a competency, these sturdy and robust pioneers, early inured to toil and imbued with the spirit of self-reliance and indomitable will, have blazed the way through the wilderness, conquered forests, subdued the soil, and made desert places smile.

Their influence on the geography of America is very marked, for we find that nearly a score of towns, villages and railway stations have been named in their honor. There is the town of Spalding, near Springfield, Ill.; a post village in Jackson Co., Wis.; in Menominee Co., Mich.; and a township in Saginaw Co., Mich.; a township in Union Co., Iowa. A town of Spalding in Ralls Co., Mo.; in Cook Co., Ill.; in Sangamon Co., Ill.; in Kane Co., Ill.; in Todd Co., Minn.; in Greeley Co., Neb.; in Logan Co., W.Va.; in Jefferson Co., Ala.; and in the same County a railway station is called Spalding Junction; also Spalding, a station in Jefferson Co., Ohio; and a station in Clayton Co., Iowa. All these places, besides numerous streets, highways and crossroads, have been named in honor of members of this prolific family—landmarks that time will never efface.

In the industrial and commercial world the family name of Spalding holds a most conspicuous place. There is Jesse Spalding, one of the greatest lumber merchants in America. Col. Z. S. Spalding has been prominently associated with the sugar industry in the Hawaiian Islands in connection with the King of Hawaii, Kamehameha V., after whose death he formed a partnership in the same business with King Kalakaua; and was recently awarded valuable franchises for the building of a submarine cable to Hawaii. Of world-wide renown is the vast mercantile house of A. G. Spalding & Brothers, consisting of fourteen branches in the leading cities of America, with a capital of four million dollars.

Besides these, many others equally prominent have illumined the marts of trade.

In the financial world might be mentioned Hon. Elbridge Gerry Spalding, Member of Congress from the Buffalo District, N.Y., and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee during Lincoln's first administration; he was the author of the Legal Tender Act, and consequently the father of our present system of banking; he has been the Treasurer of the State of New York, and Mayor of Buffalo, in which city for nearly half a century he has been a successful banker. The Hon. Isaac Spalding during the civil war was appointed Financial Agent for the Government; he was a successful business man, and regarded as the richest man in New Hampshire. There is Hon. Nathan Weston Spalding, a successful saw manufacturer and philanthropist, and for a number of years Mayor of San Francisco, Cal.; he was appointed by President Garfield as United States assistant treasurer at San Francisco, in which capacity he received and disbursed three hundred and twenty-three million dollars without the loss of a cent.

In the workshops of the inventor more than fifty bearing the name have secured patents on various devices, from John Spalding, of Townsend, Mass., who made the first friction matches in this country; to Henry Spalding of "Spalding glue" fame; and George Henry Spalding, whose prolific inventions of harvesting machinery are now used throughout the world.

In the field of Science and Medicine the names of Dr. Matthias Spalding and Dr. Lyman Spalding attained great prominence. Dr. Abiram Spalding was devoted to Science, and for many years was a careful and painstaking observer of natural phenomena for the Smithsonian Institute. Dr. James Spalding was President of the Vermont State Medical Society, of which society he was an active member for forty years; and Dr. James A. Spalding, of Portland, Maine, is very eminent in his profession.

In Literature the name is well represented, and scattered throughout the SPALDING MEMORIAL will be found poets, authors and journalists bearing the name, whose brows are worthy to be crowned with the laurel wreath of fame. The Rev. Henry George Spalding wrote a volume of Biographical sketches and various other works. Prof. Volney Morgan Spalding, educator, is the author of an Introduction to Botany and various other papers. John A. Spalding, journalist, is the proprietor of the Connecticut Farmer, and the author of several biographical works. Rev. George Burley Spalding has written extensively upon matters most important to church and state; and his brother, the late James Reed Spalding, journalist, was the founder of the New York World. It is a matter of interest to know that it was Solomon Spalding, lawyer, clergyman, and a graduate of Dartmouth college, who wrote a remarkable story of fiction, entitled "Manuscript Found," which is now generally regarded as the basis of the Mormon Bible — an interesting account of which will be found in his biography.

As philanthropists, there was John Perrin Spalding, the Sugar King and multi-millionaire of Boston, Mass., whose gifts were munificent, while the poor and deserving were never forgotten. Dr. Edward Spalding, of Nashua, N. H., was a very generous man; as also were John Varnum Spalding and others.

In the arena of Statesmanship, in the halls of Legislation, and in the administration of Justice, the family has produced men of thought and men of action. From Col. Simeon Spalding, who helped to frame a constitution of Government for the State of Massachusetts Bay, to Hon. Rufus Paine Spalding, a member of congress for three terms, and a judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio; and Elbridge Gerry Spalding, above referred to.

For many generations the Family has occupied a high place in the church. Rev. John Franklin Spalding was consecrated Bishop of Colorado in 1873. The Rev. Henry Harmon Spalding was a missionary to the Indians for forty years in Oregon and Idaho; he crossed the Rocky mountains in 1836 — the trail that Fremont followed six years later. The Rev. Levi Spalding was sent as a missionary to Ceylon, India, in 1820. The Rt. Rev. Newell Stevens Spalding, at the time of his death, in 1884, was the oldest and one of the most highly honored members of the New England conference.

A thorough perusal of the SPALDING MEMORIAL will reveal the fact that from the earliest settlement down to the present time, our family has been actively and intimately associated with the ecclesiastical, civil, industrial and commercial affairs of this country, and in every department of human activity.

Last, but not least, their record as soldiers is unparalleled in the history of any one family. On the field of battle—which tradition regards as the field of glory—a thousand Spaldings have served as valiant soldiers! It will be seen from the rolls that the name has been well represented in the American Army and Navy in every war in which this country has been engaged, rendering honorable and patriotic service in defense of their native land. At the Battle of Bunker Hill, the first great battle of the American Revolution, the first shot was fired by Joseph Spalding, while nine other soldiers bearing the name participated in that conflict—one of whom lost his life, while two were severely wounded.

The Colonial and Revolutionary Archives at Washington, and of the thirteen original States, have been thoroughly searched with a view to collecting all information in existence that would render descendants eligible to membership in the Societies of Colonial Wars, Sons of the Revolution, Daughters of the Revolution, etc.

CHARLES WARREN SPALDING.

CHICAGO, ILL., Jan. 1, 1897.

INTRODUCTION.

WHATEVER concerns our European origin — from whom proceeded the sturdy men that planted our infant states, has for all of us an especial charm, not only from what we know, but for what we hope to ascertain.

Our British ancestors, tracing back their lineage to Pict and Dane, to the legionaries of Rome, or the sea kings of the Baltic, had gained strength from the fusion in their nature of various and opposing elements, and combined what was best of many races.

That our ancestors were very fond of fighting, when provoked, regardless of personal safety or private advantage, cannot be denied. For the five centuries following the conquest, wars at home and abroad succeeded with little cessation. Military duty was incumbent on all who could bear arms. Personal encounters between knight and squire in mail with lance and battle axe, the rest in quilted doublets, with pike and bow, made men indifferent to danger, and induced habits of hardihood and daring.

From her insular position, the mariners of England were early afloat on every known sea;* trade and free-booting went hand in hand; and whether off Sluys with King Edward III, in 1340, as buccaneers in the Spanish main, or under Raleigh in defeating the Armada, English Knights and Yeomen fought bravely, gaining glory by their prowess.

The name Spalding, as a patronymic, appears quite early in English history. It was unquestionably derived from the town of Spalding, in Lincolnshire, England, but how the name of the town originated is a matter of conjecture, possibly from the tribal name Spaldas,* which may have been left by the Romans when they abandoned the country.

*Agriculture must have flourished at an early period in England. A. D. 359 an exportation of wheat from Britain is reported: "Six hundred large barks framed in the forest of the Ardennes, made several voyages to the coast of Britain; and returning from thence, laden with corn (wheat) sailed up the Rhine, and distributed their cargoes to the several towns and fortresses along the banks of the river." A country which could bear so large an exportation, must already have attained an improved state of agriculture.

There are many traces existing in the neighborhood of Spalding, of the stupendous works executed by the Romans, in the various embankments for keeping out the sea, which still remain as monuments of their industry and power. In the time of the Saxons, it flourished under the Mercian princes, and its particular lords and patrons were their kinsmen, some of whom were deputy-governors under the king, and had their residence in Spalding.

It is a town which boasts of considerable antiquity, as the many relics discovered at different periods in the neighborhood sufficiently prove. We are unable to say with certainty what rank it held in the time of the Romans; it is however quite evident that even at this early period it was a place of no mean importance, and many Roman coins have been found. After the country was abandoned in 600 A. D. by the Romans, this locality subsequently became a great centre of Danish Colonization. They flourished from 867 to 1066, at which time the country was subdued by the Normans under William the Conqueror, who caused the Domesday Book to be made.

The Domesday Book is simply a schedule of land belonging to the King's Geld, and does not include any of the independent freeholders of the period, and is therefore not of that importance ignorantly attributed to it. William the Conqueror, although he confiscated some of the great fiefs of the Anglo-Saxon nobles, yet he did not touch the lands belonging to any of the tenants holding feudally under them.

The manor of Spalding, before the conquest, belonged to Algar, Earl of Mercia; William the Norman, after that event, conferred it, with all Holland, upon Ivo Tailbois, his nephew. In course of time it fell again to the crown, and became parcel of the Duchy of Lancaster.

We have gleaned the following interesting description of the town from various sources, and from correspondence with Dr. Martin Perry, the President of the Gentleman's Society.

* SPALDAS is a tribe name left in Spalding. In a list giving the extent of territory belonging to various districts in England, it is said: Spalda syx hunda hyda.—From Codex Diplomaticus Aevi Saxonici, edited by Kemble.

A Hide of land is the estate of one household, the amount of land sufficient for the support of one family, supposed to be about 33 Saxon acres.

Spalda may be a tract stretching to the northeast of Ely upon the River Welland, in which still lies Spalding.

"The town of Spalding may be called the cradle of British Archæology; for in 1710, seven years before the constitution of the Society of Antiquaries, the earliest association for the study of antiquities was formed, called the "Gentleman's Society of Spalding," by the exertions of Maurice Johnson, a name not to be forgotten, and had considerable influence in promoting the establishment of the far more celebrated and influential Society in London, some of whose earliest members were intimate friends of Johnson. Maurice Johnson, a native of Spalding and a member of the Inner Temple, was educated by Dr. James Jurin, Secretary to the Royal Society, and afterwards President of the College of Physicians, the warm advocate of inoculation for the small-pox, then recently introduced from Constantinople by Lady Mary Wortley Montagu. While visiting in London he became the associate of Browne Willis, the two Gales, Stukeley, Rymer, and the other chief antiquarians of the day. He was also on terms of familiarity with Pope and Gray and other literary leaders whose acquaintance he had formed at Button's Coffee House, and who after the formation of the Spalding Club were in the habit of communicating their poems to Johnson, to be read at its meetings. When scarcely of age Johnson was removed from the congenial society of the wits and antiquaries of London to his native town, where he had inherited the noble mansion of Ayscough Fee Hall. This house, built by Sir Richard Aldwyn, merchant of the Staple, about 1420, still retains much of its antique character; and though sadly modernized, with its traceried oriel, mullioned and storied windows, lofty hall (retaining its arched roof above the modern ceiling), tall look-out turret and colossal yew hedges — hardly to be surpassed in England, even at Lerans Hall — its smooth-trimmed lawns and giant oaks— would be an enviable home for any antiquarian student. In Johnson's time Ayscough Fee must have been pretty much as Aldwyn built it. Settled here, Johnson, youth as he was, conceived the bold idea of establishing a Literary Society in the very heart of the fens of Lincolnshire. Through his admirable tact the scheme found favor. Once a week the Tatler and afterwards the current number of the Spectator was read aloud and discussed, diversified sometimes by a newly-published poem or an original essay. On one occasion, we find from the minutes of 1751, a certain "Elegy on a Country Churchyard," which had just come out anonymously, was read. For 30 years Johnson was the Secretary of the Society, which was joined by Dr. Stukeley, himself a native of the neighboring town of Holbeach, Gale and other antiquarians and men of science. Ames of the Topographical Antiquities; Sir Hans Sloane, Ver-tue, the engraver, Dr. Desaguliers, the eminent but neglected natural philosopher, who > Died in a cell without a friend to save,

> Without a guinea and without a grave.

The Rev. Samuel Wesley and many other names known to fame appear on the roll. Sir Isaac Newton, "although he was now declining almost everything, and did not even go to the Royal Society," consented to become a member. By the untiring industry, tact and good management of Maurice Johnson (to quote from the interesting narrative of the late Dr. Moore, laid before the Archæological Society at their meeting at Lincoln in 1848,) the Society was raised to a pitch of eminence which has perhaps never been reached by any provincial society whatever under similar circumstances, and at which it remained for the long period of forty years. In 1755 Maurice Johnson died, having, after thirty years, become the President. With its founder the glory of the club departed; and though it still survives in a green old age, after a career of 173 years, the Gentleman's Society aspires to little more than the status of an ordinary country club.

Apart from the memories of the Gentleman's Society, Spalding offers as much of historical and general interest as almost any place in the country. Set down on the bridge in the centre of the town, you seem transported from the Lincolnshire to the other Holland. With the sluggish Welland crawling onward to the sea, at the bottom of a deep tidal trough, straight as a canal, fringed with tall trees shading comfortable-looking, bow-windowed brick houses on either bank, with small merchant boats moored along the quays below the bridge, the general appearance is strikingly like that of a Dutch town. Unusual in its aspect few towns can vie with Spalding in antiquity. The buildings of Spalding ("ædificia" of Spalding) appear among the metes and bounds of the lands with which the Abbot of Crowland was endowed on its foundation by Ethelbald in the eighth century. In the ninth century, if the somewhat suspicious early charters of that abbey are to be trusted, Spalding had two churches, one of wood, on the east bank of the Welland, known from its material as "St. Mary Stokkys," the site of the later conventual church, and one of stone on the west bank, dedicated to St. Nicholas, the patron of sailors and sea-faring men. The manor at that time belonged to the mighty earls of Mercia, bearing the hereditary name of Álgar — Aelfgar, as it is the fashion now to write it—and included together with the churches already mentioned twenty-four mansions and eighty cottages. The elder Algar with other endowments conferred on the Abbey of Crowland the wooden church of St. Mary and the whole of the fishery of the Welland between the cemeteries of that church and of St. Nicholas. His son and namesake was the leader in the celebrated engagement with the Danes at Kesteven, on St. Maurice's day 870 A. D., when three of their chieftains were slain and the whole invading host was routed, but who fell himself with nearly all of his men in the next day's engagement with the meanwhile strongly reinforced Danish army. The younger Algar bestowed on Crowland the whole of his manor in Spalding. A mutilated boundary cross or milestone by the roadside between Spalding and Crowland may perhaps mark the limits of this gift, if not of the earlier endowment of Ethelbald. It bears the inscription "Aio hanc petram Guthlacus habet sibi metam." So curious and interesting a memorial deserves better treatment than it has unhappily received. We may compare with it the four crosses by which the extent of the sanctuary of the church of St. Machutus at Lesmahago was defined. At a later period Thorold of Buckenhale founded a priory on Algar Manor as a cell to Crowland — "Hanc terram dedit Turoldus, vicecomes, Sancto Guthlaco, pro anima sua," is the Domesday record—to occupy which the mother abbey, then reduced to sore straits by prevalent famine in 1051, sent out a small swarm of monks. After the conquest we find Spalding in the hands of Ivo Taillebois, a native of Anjou, one of the conqueror's most powerful and trusted followers, who did his master good service in putting down the revolt of Hereward and the insurgents of the Camp of Refuge. Taillebois is one of the most prominent personages in the semi-mythical history of Crowland, where he appears as the bitter enemy of its monks. The pseudo Ingulf accuses him of having cruelly expelled the religious men of Crowland from Spalding Priory, filling their places with monks from the Benedictine convent of St. Nicholas of Angiers in his own native land. The Spalding register and the Peterborough Chronicle know nothing of any such expulsion. But whether by force or by free will, the Crowland monks left Spalding never to return and the Priory became a dependency of the Angerine house.

Taillebois had become possessed of Spalding by his marriage with a great Saxon heiress called Lucia. Tradition designates her as the daughter of Algar, Earl of Mercia, and sister of Morcar, Earl of Northumberland, and by consequences (though this is nowhere stated) sister also of Elgiva, Queen of Harold. This however has been disproved by the late G. Nichols, in his paper on the "Descent of the Earldom of Lincoln," in the Lincoln volume of the Transactions of the Archæological Institute. There is ample evidence of Countess Lucia's existence and of her marriage to Taillebois, but her parentage is uncertain, and it is as Mr. Nichols states, "impossible that she could have been at once the sister of Earl Morcar, the wife of Ivo Taillebois before the year 1071, again married after the lapse of 43 years to the father of William de Romare, and after a time to Ranulph, Earl of Chester, leaving further issue two sons and two daughters." Probably two successive heiresses called Lucia have been confounded, the wife of Ivo Taillebois being mother of the second, who by her two marriages was the mother of the two half brothers William, Earl of Lincoln, and Ranulph, Earl of Chester. Ivo Taillebois after the fashion of the Norman lords, to over-awe his dependents, built a castle on the northwest side of Spalding.

The site is indicated by round ground, where huge stones and a fetter lock have been dug up, but not a single vestige of it remains. Ivo died in 1114, and was buried in the Priory church at Spalding.

The connection of the Priory with St. Nicholas of Angiers continued till the dissolution, though in 1232 it became little more than nominal, the brethren having obtained the right of the election of their own priors and of self-government on condition of paying £40 a year to the Abbot of Angiers and permitting him to nominate four of their body. Prior Simon Haughton "the munificent," 1228-1251, rebuilt the conventual church, "more cathedrale." This has so completely perished that its very site is unknown. Indeed, of the whole of the Priory nothing remains beyond the vaulted base of a thirteenth century town, known in the Abbey records as the turris, popularly called the "Oven," serving perhaps as the Abbey prison and the Prior's Building. These form a long red brick, heavily buttressed structure, now cut up into cottages, and covered with thatch, as Leland tells us most of the roofs in the Fen towns were. The upper story was the Prior's guest chamber, forming one long room, originally lighted with tall, square-headed transomed windows, one of which remains on either side and with a hearth in the middle.

In a stoneless district like the Lincolnshire Holland, so vast a mass of available building material was an irresistable attraction. The Abbey here as elsewhere became the stone quarry of the town, out of which the greater part of the houses were for a long time constructed, a carved or worked stone peeping out here and there indicating their origin.

The parish church of Spalding stood within the conventual precincts, and the usual squabbles arose between the townsmen and the monastic body. The monks, jealous of intrusion, obstructed the worship of the townsmen. The townsmen retaliated by a willful jangling of their bells at the most inopportune seasons, especially when the brethren were taking their repose. The feud at last waxed so bitter that peace could only be secured by separation. Besides a grand new conventual church was about to be begun and room was probably wanted. So in 1284 an agreement was reached between the convent and the town by which, on the payment of £100 by the parishioners, the priors and monks undertook to pull down the old church and transport the materials —stone, timber and iron—to the other side of the Welland, where a chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury already stood, and erect a new church for the sole use of the townsmen. This agreement is printed in Dugdale, and the provisions are curious and interesting. The church was to have no campanile and the number of bells was to be restricted to two costing £20, no mean price we may say in those days, and they were never to be rung out of the accustomed hours except on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. A translation of this document was read by Canon Moore to the Archæologists in the church after the opening services and expounded by reference to the actual fabric. It is very seldom that a mediæval building can be thus confronted by the specification and its date so accurately fixed. Spalding church supplies an important and not unnecessary caution against allowing architectural style to be conclusive as to the date of a building. The character of the unaltered parts which is pure and not very late Early English, would warrant us in placing it fully fifty years before its ascertained date. But "in lowland levels life lingers long;" and as across the great level of the Fens at Peterborough an unmistakable Norman design was being carried out in the Western bays of the nave simultaneously with St. Hugh's graceful pointed arcades at Lincoln, as at Spalding the sterner forms of the lancet Gothic survived thirty years after the completion of the traceried windows and richly carved spandrels of the Angel-choir of that matchless cathedral. Built with the most studied economy, without a fragment of ornamental carving anywhere, Spalding Church, from its vast size and the singular intricacy of its plan, and we may not unjustly add the admirable manner in which—with the single exception of the scarifying of the walls—the restoration has been carried out, presents one of the most striking parish church interiors we know. Its picturesqueness is that of a building which has grown with the taste of the day and the needs of its worshipers. Its architectural history, at first sight difficult to read, was speedily made clear by Canon Moore, aided by the invaluable agreement. It was originally a cruciform church, with very narrow aisles both to nave and transepts. The transepts had aisles on both sides — a very unusual arrangement, not frequent in cathedral and still rarer in parish churches, occurring at St. Mary Redcliffe Patrington in Holderness, and seen in the neighboring Lincolnshire church of Algar-Kirk and Kirton. There was no provision for a central tower; a campanile, it will be remembered was forbidden by the convent—nor any transverse arches to mark the crossing. This is always an unsatisfactory arrangement and the unpleasant effect of the nave arcade being broken by the wide gaping transept arches, without apparent reason, is here exaggerated by these arches having no responds; springing simply from corbel heads, inartificially inserted in a wide expanse of bare walls, as well as by the eastern aisles of the transepts opening into the nave instead of the chancel. As first built there was a low clerestory, of rather large circular windows set deep in pointed rear arches coming down low between the springing of the arcades, as at the fine church of Henbury, near Bristol. The chancel is also early English, long, but disproportionately low. The east and south chancel walls are those of St. Thomas Chapel with remains of the Norman pilaster buttresses. At a later period, space being needed for larger congregations, the aisles were widened and at the same time heightened. The nave arches were taken down and reset at a greater elevation, the piers being raised five courses. This was rather clumsily done, and, as seen from the aisles, the arches set rather uncomfortably on their capitals. In later times one bay of the aisle of the south transept was prolonged eastward to form the chapel of Our Lady, the windows exhibiting an almost unique combination of straight and flowing lines. Long used as the Grammar School, this chapel is about to be restored to the Church. Other chapels and chantreys followed for which additional aisles were erected on both sides of the nave, absorbing the transept aisles. A lofty continuous perpedicular clerestory was built, and a magnificent western window erected in the same style. This window takes a high place among these stately perpendicular windows, which it has been too much the fashion of late to despise, and its effect is much enhanced by the deliciously painted glass with which it has been fitted.

The ivory tone of the white glass which occupies the greater part of the area is singularly beautiful. The loftiness of the clerestory, combined with the lowness of the chancel, affords space for a perpendicular window of five lights above the chancel arch, filled with glass by the same artists. The chancel arch is occupied by a rood screen and projecting loft of singular richness, which like everything else had been excellently restored. Above the screen a large cross, richly painted and gilt, hangs suspended by gilt chains. The beauty and appropriateness of this arrangement, makes one wish it more frequent in our churches. The glass which fills all the chancel windows and a large number in the other parts of the church is of great and—painful experience compels us to add—of unusual excellence. The latest addition to the fabric was a very stately north porch, with a parrisover, vaulted with fan tracery and with doorways and niches of the elaborate splendor characteristic of our late perpendicular.

The prohibition of the erection of a campanile was not long regarded. In less than fifty years, 1340 A. D., the present large and stately bell tower was begun at the west end of the south aisle. We cannot be wrong in attributing the slow and halting progress of this tower and the careless manner in which portions of it are constructed, to the paralyzing effect of the ravages of the black death, to be traced in so many architectural works of the time. Skillful workmen were swept away by the pestilence. Ignorant builders had to carry on their tasks. Proper material fell short. Building stone was no longer floated down the lodes and washes from the quarries at Barnack and Ketton; so the townsmen employed whatever came to hand. A string course was made to serve as a base mould. Monumental slabs were set up and made to do duty for walling. Two stone coffins were inserted bodily beneath the belfry windows. Much of the stone used was soft and liable to decay. The result was a piece of very bad and crazy workmanship, hardly equal to its own weight, still less to that of the lofty spire with which it was ultimately crowned. Cracks gradually opened. In 1688 the terrified townsmen underpinned the tower and took means to secure the tottering walls. Their intentions were good but their mechanical knowledge was small. The movement arrested for a time soon began again. The crack reopened and widened and the ruin of the whole fabric appeared imminent. When Sir Gilbert Scott was called in at the commencement of the late restoration, a fissure gaped from the foundation to the summit, "wide enough for a boy to creep through." "The tower ought to fall, and why it did not he could not tell." Sir Gilbert's engineering skill (aided by Canon Moore's constant vigilance) saved Spalding tower and spire, as it did the huge fabrics of St. Alban's and St. David's, and his successor as cathedral architect, Mr. J. L. Pearson, has saved St. Hugh's tower at Lincoln, and though the outer walling in places is singularly ragged and ruinous, the fabric is once more sound and stable. The composition of the tower and spires on the whole is a very fine one, and they group exceeding well with the lofty nave, with its clusters of transepts, aisles and chapels. The spire however is hardly of sufficient diameter to crown the tower satisfactorily. Too much light is seen between it and the lofty angular pinnacles, which the embowered flying buttresses which connect the two, while pretty in themselves, are too flimsy to satisfy the eye."

We have no space to speak as we should wish of the other churches of Spalding. Till within the last ten years the parish church was the only place of worship belonging to the Church of England. Now it has four churches, the three new ones having been designed by the same architect — the late Sir G. Scott — largely aided by the practical skill of Canon Moore, all in the same style — Early English — but largely varied both in general design and detail. The comparison of the three is interesting. In two of them red brick is largely used. The largest and most conspicuous — St. Paul's — is of red brick externally, the interior being of Mansfield stone of a pleasing pinkish tint. In St. Peter's, both interior and exterior are of red brick, at present perhaps rather too fiery in hue, and contrasting too sharply with the white stone pier and dressings. The third church — St. John's — is entirely of stone. St. Peter's like St. John's has only a western bell turret. St. Paul's has a very stately detached tower crowned with a lofty broach spire, standing in front of the west end, and connected with it by a cloister.

The land in the vicinity of Spalding is extensively appropriated to grazing; and the fenny tracts have been drained by means of steam engines.

Wool forms a principal article of trade, and some of the manufacturing towns of Yorkshire are supplied from this neighborhood. Since the river Welland was made navigable to Crowland and Stamford, Spalding has acquired a considerable traffic in wheat and coal; sloops from fifty to seventy tons burden come up to the centre of the town, and by these a regular coasting trade is maintained with London, Hull, Lynn, and other places; there is a quay for landing goods, with spacious storehouses for their reception. The port is a member of the port of Boston. The market on Tuesday is the largest in the county for cattle. Fairs are held April 27th, June 20th, August 28th, September 25th and December 6th, chiefly for live stock. Spalding has been the principal seat of jurisdiction for the parts of Holland for many centuries. In the Saxon times the courts of law were held by the earls, and, subsequently to the Conquest, the priors were invested with judicial authority, and they possessed the power of life and death. At present, the quarter sessions for these parts are held here, and petty sessions for the wapentake every week. Courts of Servers and of requests for the recovery of debts not exceeding £5, for the hundred of Elloe; and also courts leet and baron, at which the Steward presides, are held. The town hall, situated at the northwest end of the market-place, was erected at the expense of Mr. John Hobson; the lower part is left for shops, and the rental given to the poor, according to the will of the donor. A new House of Correction for the parts of Holland was built in 1824; it is an airy and commodious edifice, under very good regulations.

The living is a perpetual curacy, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, and in the patronage of certain Trustees, who are seized of the rectory, which is of considerable annual value, in trust for the incumbent. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary and St. Nicholas, is principally in the later style of English architecture, with a fine tower and crocketed spire; it was erected in 1284, instead of the conventual church then pulled down, and considerable additions were made in 1466, amongst which was a very beautiful north-porch. There are places of worship for Baptists, the Society of Friends, Independents, and Wesleyan Methodists. A free grammar school was erected in the reign of Elizabeth, and endowed, by the will of John Blanch, with eighty-nine acres of land, for the support of a master to instruct the children of householders born in the parish; the original endowment has been considerably augmented by Mr. Atkinson; the trustees are incorporated, and have a common seal.

Another, called the Petit school, was founded in 1682, by Thomas Willesley, and endowed with nearly sixty acres of land. The Bluecoat school, founded by one of the Gamlyn family, is supported by a small endowment of land, aided by voluntary contributions. An almshouse for the reception of twenty-two poor persons, was founded and endowed, in 1590, by Sir Matthew Gamlyn; and another for eight poor widows, in 1709, by Mrs. Elizabeth Sparke. There are also considerable estates vested in trustees, called "Town Husbands," for the benefit of the poor. A portion of the abbey buildings yet remains, which is partly in ruins. Many relics of antiquity have at different periods been discovered in the neighborhood, and others taken out of the river Welland.

The following proves that Spalding was a well known town before the Conquest. Ingulphus is a very reliable author:

"In Spallinge is a Berewick of Croyland of two carucates of land rateable togeth: the land is one carucate and a half. Seven villeins and four bordars have there three carucates." The annual value in King Edward's time was 20s.: it is the same now.

Terre Sci Guthlaci de Croiland.

Crowland Abbey, one of the oldest monasteries in England, has been closely identified with the history of Spalding, where the Priory* was made a cell to Crowland. Illustrations are given in this work of the famous Crowland Abbey and the Triangular Bridge, and a short account of their history is as follows:

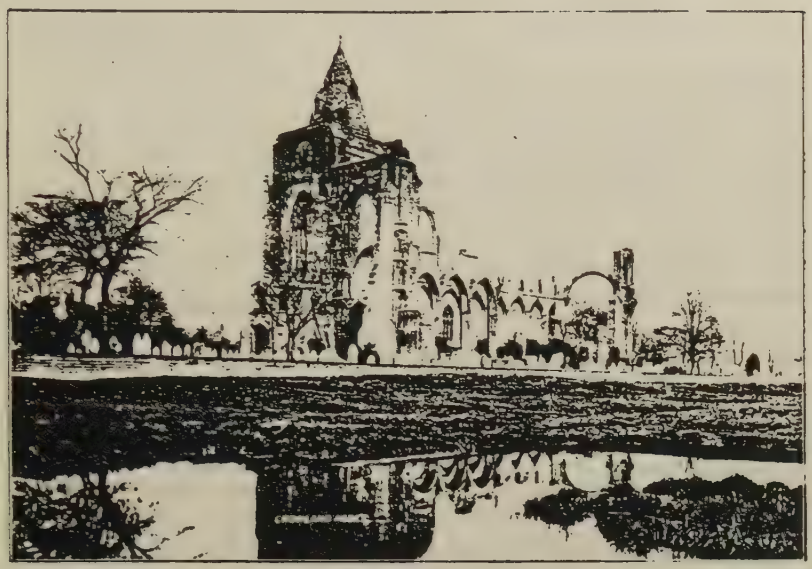
Crowland or Croyland Abbey was built upon the site of the cell occupied for fifteen years by the hermit St. Guthlac, whose devotions the tradition tells were disturbed by evil spirits in the shape of crows, hence the name.

According to Ingulph, who became Abbot of Crowland in 1076, and who wrote a history of the Abbey, it was founded by King Etheibald in 716 in honor of St. Guthlac, though recent investigation of its history and charters seem to make clear that it was actually founded by King Edgar in 975, and that the alleged history of the previous 250 years was based on tradition and charters forged to aid the claims made by the Abbot to disputed lands. But whether founded or rebuilt the buildings erected at that time were of wood covered with lead, with the exception of the Church which was of stone.

In 1016 the Church being found to be in a state of decay was torn down and a new building was commenced, which in turn was destroyed by fire in 1091, the numerous other buildings also suffering, the library of 700 volumes being consumed. A temporary roof was erected over such parts of the church as were preserved, but no effort was made to rebuild till 1113, when Ingulph's successor Joffrid laid the first stone of a new church. The architect was Prior Odo, and the mason a lay brother named Arnold, a man whose skill had already been exhibited in works of a similar nature. The work, although interrupted by an earthquake

* The Priory of Spalding was first founded by Thorold de Bokenhale, own brother of Godiva, the celebrated Countess of Coventry, on Easter Day 1051. Spalding flourished under the Mercian Princes, some of whom were deputy governors under the king and resided here. The above named Thoroid was the last of them (Camden's Brittennia by Gough's add. to Lincolnshire, p. 6, and Dr. Stukeley's Introduction M. S. Mins. of Royal Society in possession of S. G. S.) Thoroid de Bokenhale obtained six monks from Wegate, Abbot of Croyland, for whom he fitted up his own chapel and gave them apartments in his own house, thus making it a cell to Croyland. He endowed the Priory with the manor called in Domesday book "Brewita." In 1059 Algar, Earl of Leicester, gave to the monks at Spalding his chapel of St. Mary and all the rents on the east side of the Welland (a copy of the charter is in Ingulph's Croyland and thence copied by Dugdale in his Monasticon, vol. 1, fol. 306).

Ivo Tailebois of Angiers in 1073 (being William I's sister's son, by marrying Lucia, great-grand daughter to the Lady Godiva, heiress of the house of Mercia—her other sister being at that time Harold's widow, and both her brother's slain, became Lord of Spalding and all Holland,) resided at his castle here and added much to the revenues of the Priory. Before doing this, however, he got rid of the Croyland Monks, and supplied their places with others from Anjou, to which monastery he made Spalding a cell (Ingulphus).



which shook the newly erected walls, to which no nave had been yet joined to give security to the fabric, was prosecuted with great diligence and finally completed, only to be consumed by fire fifty years later.

It was however again rebuilt by Edward the 17th Abbot; and his successors, Robert de Rednge and Henry de Longchamps, who rebuilt and completed the other buildings and those of the different manors belonging to the Abbey. About a century later the west front of the church was damaged by a storm and was rebuilt. At the close of the 14th century Richard de Croyland, a monk and a native of the place, succeeded to the Abbotship and rebuilt the eastern extremity of the church on a scale of magnificence superior to the neighboring churches of the province.

The last material additions to the Abbey were effected in the reign of Henry VI, and consisted in the erection of the south side of the cloister, the Abbot's hall and the refectory. No new additions were afterwards made, such alterations as were effected being repairs to the existing buildings.

This period may be regarded as the culminating point of the Abbey history; in the course of the next century the sun of Croyland was setting, and finally this magnificent establishment, which had owned kings for its fathers and queens for its nursing mothers, was resigned by its last Abbot, John Welles, into the hands of Henry VIII in 1539. In his successor's, Edward VI's reign, the Abbey passed by a grant from the crown into lay hands.

In this brief history of this Abbey, we are enabled to ascertain the changes which the fabric underwent from its foundation to its final dissolution. These, as in other establishments of equal wealth, were necessarily many, and the attractions effected by the liberality of its abbots, or the piety of its benefactors, were executed with a view to increasing the reputation or of promoting the magnificence of their temple. The erection of these buildings was attended with peculiar difficulty and expense in the case of Croyland Abbey, owing to the nature of the country, which was then a deep morass forming part of a marshy district intersected by streams occasionally overflowing with water and accessible at certain seasons by such a conveyance only, and this feature is in some measure retained to this day. Therefore when a building of large dimensions and of corresponding height was to be erected it was necessary to provide for the security of the fabric by artificial foundations. The mode adopted in laying the foundations of the original church is described by Ingulph. It consisted in driving innumerable large piles of wood into the soil on which the building was to be erected, and the earth which was mixed with the softer and native soil was brought in boats from the highlands at a distance of nine miles. From the remains of such foundations as have been discovered at various times since the dissolution of their buildings, it is probable that they were similar to those of the church itself; and it is to this extraordinary labor that we are indebted for the preservation of a pile of such large dimensions.

The labor and expense attending the foundation, and the difficulties of rearing the superstructure must necessarily have rendered any material deviation from the original extent at a subsequent period, hazardous and expensive, and it is therefore probable that the dimensions of the Abbey ruins as they stand to-day are those of the Abbey when first erected, although no idea of the original superstructure can be formed from what remains of the buildings erected in the centuries that followed.

The history of the Triangular Bridge at Crowland is herewith given:

The Triangular Bridge has always been considered an object of curiosity, depending more upon the singularity of its form than upon any difficulty in its construction or beauty in its architecture. No records are extant to enable us to discover under what abbot it was erected; taking its style therefore as a guide we can only assign its building generally to the fourteenth century at a period between 1308-1370.

The situation of this bridge is on the western side of the abbey at the confluence of three streams: the Welland, Nyne and Catwater, or Catchwater-drain, which unite under it and proceed hence through Spalding to the German Ocean. The banks of each stream are occupied by the houses of the town, which are elevated considerably above the level of the adjacent lands. It consists of three arches, rising from three several segments of a circle, each arch having three ribs and the whole meeting in one center. The forms of these arches are preserved externally, rendering its ascent and descent impracticable for carriages and inconvenient for horses. At the southwest angle is placed a statue crowned, holding a globe in the right hand. The figure is much defaced but these attributes are still visible.

The origin and intention of the founder in the erection of this bridge are involved in obscurity. Although the present structure has no claim to a higher antiquity than the time of the first or second Edward, a similar structure existed as early as the year 943; for in a charter of Edred describing the boundaries of the abbey, an allusion is made to it under the title pons de Croyland triangularis.

If the statue above mentioned represents the founder Ethelbald (and to whom can it with greater propriety be attributed?) a bridge of a similar form must have been coeval with the founding of the monastery. This opinion will not be invalidated by the assertion of Willis that it represents St. Guthlac, a tradition derived from the common people, upon which as little reliance is to be placed, as on that respecting the dimensions of the church.

Even Camden has gravely related the story of a mighty and fathomless pit existing beneath the center of the bridge to receive the flood of the three waters, a story derived from a similar source, and of which two causes alone are sufficient to prove its fallacy. The bridge at Croyland remains to posterity a singular symbol of the Trinity, which the piety of its projectors probably imitated in its construction.

There is a Spaldington, a township in the parish of Bubwith, Holme-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, East riding of the county of York, 4¼ miles (N. by E.) from Howden, containing 361 inhabitants.

There is also a Spaldwick, a parish in the hundred of Leightenstone, county of Huntingdon, 3¾ miles (N. E. by N.) from Kimbolton, containing 332 inhabitants.

There is also a hamlet called Spalford, in the parish of North Clifton, northern division of the wapentake of Newark, county of Nottingham, 7 miles (E. by S.) from Tuxford, containing 86 inhabitants.

The following citations will show that the name Spalding, as a patronymic, has existed in Great Britain from very early periods.

In Leland, I, 547, it is expresely said: "James Douglas, by the help of Patrike, Counte of Marche and Peter Spalding of Berwike, got Berwike off the Englishmennes' handes."

"Accidit ex tempore, ad malorum cumulum, quod quidlam perfidus, dictus 'Petrus de Spaldyng' cui custodia villæ de Berewico commissa, fuerat, Scotis venderet dictam villam, et intrare permitteret; quod factum Regem graviter contristavit."

In Halle's Annals of Scotland, vol. II, p. 97, the following account is given:

"One Spalding, a citizen of Berwick, having been harshly treated by the governor (probably Robert Horsely), resolved to revenge himself. He wrote to a Scottish lord (probably Patrick, Earl of March), whose relation he had married, and offered on a certain night, to betray the post where he kept guard. The Scottish lord durst not of himself engage in an enterprise so perilous and important; he therefore communicated this intelligence to the king.

"Troops were assembled under Randolph, and Douglas, cautiously marched to Berwick, and assisted by Spalding, scaled the walls, and in a few hours were masters of the town."

Peter Spalding sold his part or manor (having infranchised several villains), to Sir John Howard, the elder."

In Blomfield's History of the County of Norfolk, Town of Brockdish, there is a description of the church. "In 1518 Henry Bakenham, of Brockdish, was buried in the church, as were many of the Spaldings, Withes, Howards, Grices, Tendrings, and Lawrences, who were all considerable owners and families of distinction in this town."

In a note on the above, there is the following:

"Spalding, per fess azure and or, a pale counterchanged, and three square buckles of the second.

"This family was originally of Spalding, in Lincolnshire. In the house belonging to the family, I saw a picture of Samuel Spalding, town-clerk of Cambridge, in his alderman's gown with a book in his hand, Anno 1664, æt. 74. Another of his wife, Anno 1664, æt. 63; her arms, argent an eagle displayed gules. Another of Frances their daughter, in her winding sheet; this child being young, went into a garret in a remote part of the house, and the door shutting upon it, she was there starved to death, notwithstanding strict inquiry had been made after it; this Samuel was father of Samuel, father of Daniel Spalding, Gent, deceased." [Vol. 5, p. 330.]

In Rymer's Fœdera, vol. 14, p. 510, Dominus Thomas Spalding is mentioned as prior.

In Gough's British Topography, vol. 1, p. 208, Cambridgeshire, is the following:

"Samuel Spalding, town-clerk of Cambridge, 1610, a good antiquary, being a fair writer and laborious collector, transcribed several folio books of records relating to this town, which were in the hands of Mr. Blomfield."

"Samuel Spalding was Mayor in 1630. Again in 1655; and in 1661, Thomas French was turned out of his office and Samuel Spalding put in his stead. The Mayor is annually elected on the 16th of August and sworn into office on the 29th of September." [Hist. of Cambridgeshire, England, by Edmund Carter, p. 59.]

In Gough's British Topography — Aberdeenshire, is the following:

"In the same library (referring to that of King's College) is a copy in about 1000 folio pages of Spalding's History of Scotland. It begins 1624 and ends 1645. The author was commissary-clerk of Aberdeen, and has taken pains to commit to writing, as he has received them, such accounts of the public transactions as he could obtain in that remote corner. They are greatly misrepresented; but the greater and more valuable part of the book relates to the particular occurrences in Aberdeenshire and the neighboring counties, which represent in a strong light the fermentations that prevailed in the minds of their ancestors, and the barbarity of their manners. Spalding is a royalist, but speaks with great candor of the opposite party, and with particular respect of some covenanting ministers, whom he extols as good preachers; but of Mr. Andrew Cant, and the Presbyterian clergy in general, he loves to tell every prejudice that he can. The style is vulgar, but has merit. The account of Montrose's expeditions, and of the family of Huntley, might furnish matter for national history. The original is in the hands of Lord Forbes. Sir James Reid of Barra had another copy." [Vol. 2, p. 645.]

"Proposals for printing Mr. Spalding's history by subscription were dated Aberdeen, Dec. 1, 1765. [Vol 2, p. 746.]

Augustine Spalding graduated at Christ Church, M. A., May 14, 1686.

Among the subscribers to Philip Morant's History of Essex, England, pub. 1768, was the name of Abraham Spalding.

John de Spalding, LL.D., and Master of Decretals, was almoner of the Spalding Priory, and a celebrated canonist. He was appointed in 1251. He was, by the King's writ (49 Henry III. 1265) summoned to council as a lord of parliament, and was so reputed a lawyer as to be appointed one of the king's justices. He furnished the church commenced by his predecessors, and added much to the possession of this convent. After ruling this Monastery with great reputation, he died October, 1274, in a pilgrimage to St. Dennis, in France.

In 1384 to 1404 another John de Spalding was made prior upon the accession of Henry IV. He secured privileges of his convent, and accordingly obtained his charter, or letters patent, dated at Westminster, Oct. 15, 1399, confirming the charters of his predecessors.

In 1453 Thomas de Spalding was appointed prior. Under him flourished here Lawrence Myntling, Knight, a learned man, who took upon him the cowl and became a monk here.

In the year 1540 the convent was surrendered into the king's hands, who granted possession soon after to his courtiers, and spoil was made of the many noble buildings together with the furniture belonging to them.

Thus the monastery, to which the youth of the neighborhood had hitherto been liberally educated, and at whose charitable gate the hungry had always been plentifully fed, being now no more, in those early days of protestantism, relief was offered to the poor by collections, assessments and bequeaths of lands and contents; and during 1548 and 1553 the foundation of many grammar schools were laid.

The name Spalding as a patronymic is on the Continent as well as in Great Britain.

Johann Joachim Spalding, a celebrated divine, and one of the best pulpit orators of Germany, was born Nov. 1, 1714, at Triebsees, in Swedish Pomerania, and died March 2, 1804, at the age of ninety years. He studied at the University of Rostock, and afterwards at Griefswald; and after various engagements as pas-

Know (all men) present and future that we, Hervey Chapman of Flitcham, and Fina my wife, have given, granted, and by this our present deed have confirmed unto Ralph Spalding of the same (town), one messuage and one acre and half an acre of land, said messuage lying at Gatton near the messuage of William, son of Roger Gabriel, towards the west and on the north abutting on the common pasture. And the said acre and a half of land lying at Suthtcroftes between the land of Geoffrey Glost towards the east, and land of said William towards the west, and on the south abutting on the meadow of Sir William de Beauchamp, knight, with all its appurtenances to have & to hold to aforesaid Ralph & his heirs & assigns, freely, quietly & as an estate of inheritance of the chief lords of the fee by the services thence due and accustomed. And we, the aforesaid Hervey and Fina my wife, and our heirs, will warrant the aforesaid messuage and the aforesaid land with all its appurtenances to the aforesaid Ralph, and his heirs and assigns against all persons forever. In witness whereof to this present deed we have set our seals. These witnesses. Roger baronn. Vincent bone. John Fater. John Adam. Roger de Satden. Alan limel. Philip Schirreve and others. Dated at Flitcham the last Sunday before the feast of St. Luke the Evangelist in the eleventh year of the reign of King Edward son of King Edward.— [1318 A. D.— Ed.]

tor, settled, in 1764, at Berlin, as first pastor of the St. Nicholas Church, which post he filled until 1788. The publication of the Religious-Edict compelled him to retire. His sermons were esteemed very highly for their depth both of thought and feeling, and their pure and elegant style, and several collections of them have been published.

George Ludwig Spalding, the philologist, was the second son of the preceding, and was born at Barth, in 1762. He studied first at a Berlin gymnasium, then directed by Busching, and afterwards at Gottingen and Halle. After traveling through the principal countries of Europe, he became tutor to the children of Prince Ferdinand, and professor at a gymnasium of Berlin. He was M. A., Halle, and a member of the Berlin Academy of Sciences. In consequence of the Religious-Edict, he abandoned theology, and devoted the rest of his life to philology. He is chiefly remembered for his excellent edition of the works of Quintilian in five volumes. After spending nineteen years on it, during which time he published only three volumes, he died in 1811, and left his task to be completed by other hands.

These notes show that the name Spalding was very early introduced and extensively used in England and in Scotland. But whether the families were descended from one common ancestor, it is impossible to decide. The spelling of the name is quite uniformly the same—SPALDING; and the given names, with the exception of one or two in the Maryland branch, like Benedict, are common to all the families, both in this country and in Great Britain. It is also to be noted that in the coats-of-arms the prevailing colors are the same, which would indicate a common origin. The introduction of U into the name, as Spaulding, is an Americanism, and first appears in the wills of some of the children of the emigrant ancestor. As Edward Spalding was among the settlers of Braintree, it might be inferred that he came over in their company. But as to the family with which he was connected, or the county in England from which he came, nothing definite is known. The general tradition is that he came from Lincolnshire.

The name, so far as we have any knowledge, first appeared in connection with the town in Lincolnshire, England. This existed before Crowland; for in Ethelbald's foundation charter of that place, part of the bounds of the monastery there are said to extend "usque ædificid Spaldeling." Ethelbald began to reign 716 A. D., and was killed 757 A. D.

But whether the name was introduced by Anglo-Saxons, or was brought over by a colony of Flemish people, or was left in that county by the Romans, it is impossible to determine.

On the foregoing pages is given a fac simile copy of an ancient Deed of Conveyance running to Ralph Spalding, of Flitcham, County of Norfolk, England, which was made A. D. 1318. The Original Deed is in the possession of Charles Warren Spalding [12153], of Chicago. It is written in Law Latin, and is one of the oldest manuscripts in America. It was translated by Prof. John T. Hassam, of Boston, Mass., who writes as follows:

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ., CHICAGO, ILL. BOSTON, Oct. 9, 1893.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will find a literal transcript of the deed Chapman to Spalding. It is letter for letter, and line for line, with the Latin original, so that you can easily compare them. I enclose also the English translation.

There are still two or three words — proper names all of them — about which I am not quite sure, although I think I have deciphered them correctly. I have underscored them in blue pencil on the transcript and the translation, so that you can readily recognize them.

The grantor is not Henry Chapman. That would be Henricus in Latin. It is Herueus (i. e. Herveus) Chapman. I have translated it accordingly Hervey Chapman. Flitcham is a small town in the Hundred of Freebridge, Co. Norfolk. The deed bears date the eleventh year of Edward II, i. e., A. D. 1318. It is therefore five hundred and seventy-five years old. At common law, contracts made on Sunday were not void, nor were Sunday trading and labor unlawful.

Very truly yours, JOHN T. HASSAM.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ., CHICAGO, ILL. BOSTON, Oct. 16, 1893.

DEAR SIR: I acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 11th inst. You ask about the difficulties met with. The first difficulty is with the characters themselves. Although the parchment is, as you say, well preserved, and the writing in most places distinct, the characters are entirely different from those of the present day. It is almost a new alphabet. In deciphering ancient documents one has to contend, not only with the style of writing common to the age to which the MS. belongs, but with the individual peculiarities of the scribes themselves. Even experts are often perplexed to know whether a certain letter is a "c" or a "t," an "s" or an "f," etc.

Take for instance the fourth word in the last line. Who would suppose that its initial letter was "D?" It looks on the contrary, to an unpracticed eye, like almost anything else. It is entirely different from any other D in the MS. Even an antiquary, unless his experience had been unusually extensive, might mistake it for some other letter, say, for example, "Q" with a contraction mark. The following letters of the word in the same way might just as easily be miscalled "inta." This would make the MS. read die quinta (the fifth day). (Dies, a day, is generally masculine). But this initial letter is, in fact, a D with a contraction mark. It is to be read therefore "Domi." The final letters are not "inta" but "nica." The MS. must therefore be read "die Dominica" (the Lord's day); so that even a slight mistake in identifying a letter or two might entirely change the meaning of the document. I have gone over the whole deed with a magnifying glass, and have examined each letter separately. In this way only, can one study the method in which the scribe formed the letters of his peculiar hand.

The first difficulty, that of deciding upon the identity of the separate letters, being surmounted, the next thing to consider is the Latin. It is all abbreviations, and contraction marks. There are one hundred and ninety-six words in all in this deed. Of these only twenty-six (exclusive of a few proper names) are written out in full. For instance in the last line, the fifth word "He" is an abbreviation of "postrema" (the last), the seventh word "fin" is "festum" (feast) when written out in full. In the fourth line the thirteenth and fourteenth words "int" and "tra" are contractions of "inter" (between) and "terram" (the land). These illustrations might be multiplied indefinitely.

You ask if I often have documents of this or an earlier date to decipher. No.

If my memory serves me right, the earliest wills to be found among the files of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury in London, were probated in 1372. Your deed antedates these by more than a generation. It is very seldom that papers of so early a date find their way into private hands in this country.

Radulphus is the Latin for Ralph. It has no other English equivalent. In the deed it appears in the dative case Radulpho (to Ralph). In ancient records in English, Ralph is frequently written Raffe, and has various other forms of spelling, but it is one and the same word.

St. Luke's day is the 18th of October. This deed was dated the last Sunday before the 18th of October, 1318.

As to the seals an the ancient deed. If the instrument had been in the form of an indenture it would have had appended to it the seals of both grantor and grantee, but as it is a deed poll it would not bear the seal of the grantee. If there were originally two seals to this instrument, one was probably that of Harvey Chapman, and the other that of his wife, they being the grantors. I was not able to make out the device on the remaining seal.

I certainly hope that you will be able to trace the descent of Edward Spalding of Braintree in our County of Norfolk from Ralph Spalding of Flitcham, Co. Norfolk, England. But even if you do not succeed in fully establishing the connection, I hope that in the new edition of the Spalding Memorial you will publish a heliotype of this ancient deed with a Latin transcript and English translation. It is an exceedingly interesting document, and would be a marked feature in any genealogical work. It is seldom that a deed of so early a date finds its way across the Atlantic. The danger of its loss or destruction by fire is great, and by reproducing it, it can be preserved for all time. Very truly yours,

JOHN T. HASSAM.

The Plan of the Town of Spalding (a fac simile of which is presented in the following pages), was made in 1732, and remains in the Society's possession. While in England Dr. James A. SPALDING
ALINAE GYRVIORUM

The following are descriptions of the coats-of-arms of families of the name of Spalding:

1. SPALDING (France, Lyon Register). Or, on a cross Azure five crosses crosslet of the first. Crest: a cross crosslet fitchee Or. Motto: Hinc mihi salus.

2. SPALDING (Scotland). Or, on a saltire Azure five crescents of the field. Crest: a cross crosslet fitchee Or. Motto: Hinc mihi salus.

3. SPALDING (Ashnillie, Scotland). Or, a two-handed sword in pale Azure.—Berry. Burke says Argent instead of Or.

4. SPALDING. Per fesse, Azure and Or, a pale counterchanged, three buckles of the second, two and one. Crest: A bishop's mitre Or, banded Gules, charged with a chevron Azure, and thereon three bezants.

5. SPALDING. Per fesse Azure and Or, a pale counterchanged, three bezants, two and one.

6. SPALDING. Gules, two bars Argent; in chief three annulets of the second.

7. SPALDING (Lurnlethen and Craigan, Fifeshire). Or, on a cross Azure five crosses crosslet of the first.

This is the same as No. 1 without the crest.

8. SPALDING. Or, on a cross Azure five crosses crosslet of the first. Crest: An elephant's head Or, crowned Gules.

9. SPALDING (Scotland). Or, on a cross Azure five crescents of the first.

10. SPALDING Or, on a bend sinister Azure, three crosses potent Or, two ravens ppr. Crest: A falcon belled and jessed ppr. From an old painting in possession of Col. Simeon Spalding [85]; of doubtful authority.

We have given these descriptions merely to illustrate the literature of the name. How Edward Spalding of Virginia and Massachusetts was connected with either family in Great Britain entitled to bear these heraldic devices, we do not know. Further investigation it is hoped may throw more light on this point.

As to the correct spelling of the family name there can be no controversy. It undoubtedly sprung from the town of Spalding in Lincolnshire, England, the spelling of which has been uniformly the same since the reign of Ethelbald, A. D. 716, and as a patronymic was never spelled with a "u" until after the establishment of the family in America. Whether the town gave name to the family, or the family to the town, is a matter of conjecture, probably the former. The early spelling of the name is plainly shown in the ancient deed bearing date 1318 A. D., a fac simile of which is given opposite page 32.

The following is a letter from Rev. George B. Spalding, of Syracuse, N. Y., dated Dec. 4, 1888.

DEAR SIR: I spent some time at Spalding, Lincolnshire. I was treated with "distinguished consideration" by the good inhabitants of that beautiful old English town. I brought back some rare old prints of the "Spalding Church," the "Market Place," etc., also a set of crockery, 40 pieces, with pictures burnt into each piece, of the "Spalding Church." I have received since my return some very rare books bearing on the early history of the town. I shall be glad to give you an opportunity to read these. In the "Introduction" to your Spalding book you quote from Blomfield's History, a passage showing that formerly there was a Spalding family in Spalding town. There are no Spaldings there now, but the Canon of the Spalding Church, who is revising the old church registry of births, marriages, baptisms and deaths, was very confident that he had seen Spalding names among the rest. The registry runs back to 1550 or thereabouts. There are breaks in it. It would have taken days to go through it with care. I am in hopes that when the Canon gets it all righted that he will have it printed. I went into the graveyard which lies around the noble church, but among its ancient stones I found nothing to mark the "last resting place" of any probable ancestor of ours. If I go to England next summer I shall spend much time in the old town, and shall go to Brockdish, in the adjoining county of Norfolk, where lie in the old church, some Spaldings of fame.

We know our way back to Edward Spalding, who landed here from England, probably between 1630 and 1633. The emigration at that period was largely from Eastern England. The early New England towns were largely named from the English towns of Lincolnshire, Norfolkshire and Cambridgeshire. There are a dozen or more towns of this early date in New England, named after towns within twenty, thirty and fifty miles of Spalding in Old England. In the current that thus runs from these Eastern counties of England, I think that Edward Spalding was without doubt found.

According to the statements cited by you in your introduction, there were at the time of his emigration, Spalding families in Cambridge, in Brockdish, and in Spalding Town. It is no unreasonable presumption to say that Edward Spalding came from someone of these Spalding families who lived in this Eastern part of England.

Again, looking now at the name "Spalding" as a town, the town as you state, carries us back to the Saxon invasion. The first insurrection by the Saxons or Engles was along the Eastern Coast. The great "Wash" region where Spalding is, was by very nature exposed to these Saxons who swept across the German Sea to find lodgement in the British Isle. There are in the "Spalding Library" in Spalding, relics of the Old Roman Town dug out of its river bed and peat foundations. These Saxons then seized this Roman Town. It became now a Saxon or English town, but with a new name—a Saxon name. Let me here call your attention to one most extraordinary fact. These Saxons wiped out about all they found in England, Briton and Roman, and especially the names of their villages. Green says: "After the conquest by the English, we meet with no British or Roman names at all." So I believe that the Roman name for the village where Spalding now is was sponged out by these all-conquering Saxons, and they gave, to it the name of Spalding.

For this we know that this word "Spalding" is a Saxon word. Max Muller in his Science of Language, Second Series, p. 24, says: "If we look to Anglo-Saxon, we find the terminal ing used to form patronymics; for instance, Godvulf-ing, the son of Godvulf. People living near the Elbe might well be called the Sons of the Elbe or Albings. Even if names in ing are derived from names of rivers or hills or trees, they may still be called patronymics." And he adds: "Many of the geographical names in England and Germany were originally such patronymics. Thus we have the villages of Mall-ing or Pulling."

Now I believe among these old Saxon Pirates there was a Spalding family or clan, who were known as fighters, whose name was marked enough among these terrible warriors to make it possible, nay, to make it very natural for them to give their name of Spalding to the conquered Roman town. Professor Stubbs says in his Constitutional History, vol. I, p. 92: "In England it is probable that all primitive villages in whose name the patronymic syllable ing occurs were originally colonized by communities united either really by blood or by the belief in a common descent." The settlement of these groups of kinsmen took their patronymic name."

And I am confirmed in this view of the case, that there were Spaldings among these Saxon invaders, by this clear fact that Spalding is a well-known German family name to this day. There in Germany the Spalding family runs back into a Saxon source.

Now again let us look at this word Spalding in its etymology: "Spa" is the name of a German water town; but "Spa" is a general name for a mineral spring. Once on a time there were a people living near Spa or near a Spa. Now as Muller says: "People living near the Elbe might well be called the sons of the Elbe or Albings," so my people in a far-off day living near Spa or a Spa might well have been called Sons of Spa, or Spa-ings. So it was the Spalding name came to designate a very early Engle or Saxon family. This brave family held its integrity of name and character through generations among the Germans, and transmitted both to men whose names to-day stand high in German literature. And this Spalding family or tribe came over with the other Saxon pirates across the German Sea, entered the Wash Coast of Briton, drove out the Roman conquerors, took their towns, and changed their names into good honest Saxon names. This family of Spaldings fought as a family. As Green says: "It was the blood bond which gave its form to English warfare. Kinsmen fought side by side in the hour of battle, and as they fought side by side on the field, so they dwelt side by side on the soil. Horling abode by Horling, Billing by Billing, and the place where they abode took its name from the kinsmen who dwelt together in it." So I believe that Spalding fought side by side with Spalding in the hour of battle, and then dwelt together side by side on the soil, and gave their name to the place where they dwelt. And there was a local cause for thus giving this Spalding family of heroes this honor. There was in this very town which their valor had helped to conquer, a spring of chalybeate water, which these Saxons would call a Spa. What more natural that in the allotment of these captured towns that the town of Spa should be given to the Spaldings, and what more natural that they should complete the thing by giving their own name to the town itself. There are other points which I might name, which are in the same direction.

GEORGE B. SPALDING.

BY THE NAME OF SPALDING.

A PAPER READ BEFORE THE MAINE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY, JANUARY 15, 1890.

BY DR. JAMES ALFRED SPALDING, PORTLAND, MAINE.

If your name is Aldrich, the poet and author, or Aldus the printer, or Albee the essayist, or Callcot and Falconer the painters, or Rale or Raleigh, the great navigator and statesman, or Waldeck the Princely, or Waldegrave or Waldemar or Wallenstein the renowned warrior, or if you are a descendant of the celebrated politician Walpole, or wonderful Walshingham, or of Waller the poet, or of old Isaak Walton the poetical angler, or if you are a Waldron or Wallace or a Wallis, or a Walters of the London Times, or Alden or Ball or Call, or if you think of a Baldwin apple, or if Calderwood the Baker asks you to eat one of his cakes, or if you are asked how to spell the name of our genial lecturer, Dalton, or if by chance you go by the name of Hall, or Salisbury, or Salter, or Small, or Smalley, or Talbot, or Talfourd, or Walker, or Walden; and why, I almost forgot Lord Baltimore, and so on to great lengths did space permit, no one of you with such a name has any fear of having against your will a "U" forcibly inserted into your name wherever you go. No matter where people with these names leave their card with their name spelled as they wish it, and as it can only be properly spelled, or where they pronounce their name aloud to some inquirer as it should be pronounced, they are sure, except from the grossly ignorant, to have their name spelled back to them correctly, whenever it has occasion to be written. But if your name has within it that identical "al" as in this long list of personal names, and yet you are not one of these, but a Spalding, you will not find one person in a hundred who will not, to the waste of time and space, persistently insert a discordant "u." Of the name Spalding in German and French, of Spaldini in Italian and Spanish, and of Spalding in English, the vast majority of Americans make the badly-sounding and disfigured Spaulding with a "u."

How this has been brought about, it is difficult to tell, and it is all the more curious, since as it seems after long investigation that there is not another name in the long list of personal names containing anywhere an "al" which has ever had inserted into it the offending "u," since colonial days at least. It is also a very interesting and noteworthy fact, as you will undoubtedly agree with me when you consider it, that whilst a Hall, or a Small, or an Aldrich, or indeed anyone of the long list of people with an "al" in their names would never dream of allowing any insertion of "u" into his name, there is nevertheless, hardly a single one of these who would not think it the eminently proper thing to do in the case of the unfortunate name of Spalding.

Now to reply that here are Pauls and Pauldings with a "u," and that therefore Spalding ought of course to have a "u," is not to the point, at all, because it does not appear that these names Paul and Paulding, were ever spelled in any other way than that in which they now stand. No one ever heard of these names as Pal and Palding, whilst the name of Spalding was never, and never has been spelled in any other way than with the "al" in England, France, Germany, Italy and Spain, where we find the name essentially the same for many centuries. I emphasize this fact by asserting that although our ancestors were not renowned for their spelling, it is nevertheless a well-known historic fact, that in all documents prior to our careless American days, the name was never spelled in any other way than with the "al" and without a trace of the unnecessary "u"

Why, when it comes to Paul and Paulding once more, who does not know, that Paul is a word of two syllables, namely, Pah and Ool, and should so be pronounced. If you could see the Apostle Paul and call to him "Paul," he would not understand you; but say "Pah-Ool, come here," and he would come at once. In German, Paul is pronounced POWL as near as one can spell the pronunciation. And our name of Powell is probably a change from the German Paul. In Italian we have Pa-Ohlo as the same name. But in the original Hebrew, Paul is Pah-Ool just as Saul is Sha-Ool, if we were only wise enough to know it. Talk to a Hebrew of his King Saul and he would not know of what you were talking, but call him KING SHA-OOL and his eyes would sparkle with delight.

Then there is the name of Paulding, which is to some a stumbling block, but when one thinks that the word is Dutch, he sees that the first syllable is not Paul at all, but POWL-ding, which settles that, for any one interested in philology, and the spelling and pronunciation of proper names.

But after all, the greatest stumbling block in our family name has been the Yankee "drawl," which has inflicted on us and our descendants the disagreeable "u." Nevertheless, some of us can show generation after generation who have spelled the name correctly, and that is enough for us. When I know that my great-grandfather, and grandfather and father spelled Spalding without any "u," that is enough for me to go by.

Before adding a few historical data in regard to the family, and the spelling of the name, I venture further to remark, that in the English dictionary you cannot find a trace of the unnecessary insertion of the useless "u" into the self-sufficient syllable "al."

Thus for the sake of showing my meaning more plainly, if you pick alders all day long, or think that you have already enough, and that you must also linger no more; if you endeavor to alter an altar, or alternately enter into altercations although bald, you will soon need some balsam, or if you play ball you may make a balk; or if you calk a horse to make a call upon a lady, you will hardly enter her hall with a false falchion; nor would you halt beneath the halter for a paltry bit of halibut; or if you drink malt beer or act as a maltster; or if you cover the dead with a pall, or if you are appalled at the sight of a ghost; or when you read the psalter; or qualify yourself for any quality of official duty; or if you salt your meat or are to be treated for saltrheum; or if you are small in your ways; or if from neglect of vaccination you catch the smallpox; or when you see the poor living in squalor; or if as a yachtsman you are caught in a squall; or when you stall your horses; or stalk a deer, or pluck a flower by the stalk; or stalk through the streets to vote the stalwart ticket; or when you install your rector or elect a subaltern; or swallow a scalding draught; or talk with a tall man, or if you walk along a wall with a wall-eyed wall flower; or steal a man's wallet while he is wallowing in the mud; or eat a walnut whilst waltzing with a walrus; or chalk your shoes before dancing with such a partner; why altogether, and taking it all in all, under those curious circumstances you would not think of interpolating the useless and dreadful "u" into a single one of these every-day words.

Education has taught you how to spell these words with two letters, "a" and "l" always together, never separated by a "u," and pronounced generally "ol," precisely like the proper sound of the "al" in Spalding.

I do not see any force in the argument that there are a few words (making the famous exception that proves the rule), like cauliflower, fault, maul, haul, vault and assault, which have a "u" between the "a" and the "l." Because no one ever pretended to spell these words in any other way than that in which they are now spelled. If there had ever been such words as califlower, falt, mal, valt, or assalt (without any "u,") the objection might be reasonable, that just in the same way, it is correct to put the offending letter into the family name. But I have looked far and wide, and I fail to find in any dictionary any such curious spelling of these exceptional words. When discovered, we may acknowledge some reason or rhyme for the "u" which some people insert into Spalding.

What we desire then is simply the regular sound of the "a" like "o" as you hear it in nearly all of the words which I lately recited before you; or as you pronounce it in swan, watch, swap, etc. Or again, as in the same way you will see on some old French maps, Boston spelled Baston, the "a" having precisely the same short sound that the correct pronunciation gives to Boston, the hub of the universe.

Now then, although we Spaldings do not pretend to claim any descent from the heroes of William the Conqueror (for we think the family is older far than that), yet let us say, that not long after these days, as one can see in ancient English documents, there were Spaldings not a few, and that all of the family who could spell, did spell the name correctly, that is to say, of course, without the "u."

Thus in 1267, Henry de Walpole (notice the absence of the "u" in the first syllable of that name,) sold to John de Spalding large amounts of lands in Tynnington.

In 1316 Peter de Spalding was Lord of West Hall Manor, Denver, Norfolk.

In 1340 John de Spalding, son of the above Peter, owned extensive tracts of land in Denver, and in Higley Dornham, Fordham.

Then again in 1318 Sir Pierce or Peter Spalding surrendered Berwick Castle on the Tweed to Sir Thomas Randall, Earl of Murray, in return for lands in Scotland; some called this Sir Pierce a traitor, but there are always two sides to such a tale. It is from this Spalding that the Spalding family of Georgia and South Carolina are descended.

In the 16th Century, David Spalding was a famous man in Dundee; he is, I think another progenitor of the family in America, but whether the direct progenitor of our Edward who came over to Braintree in 1630, or thereabouts, I cannot tell.

Brockdish parish church in Norfolk, contains the tombs and burial places of many of our race.

Again, Samuel Spalding was town clerk of Cambridge in 1610, and later Lord Mayor; his portrait still hangs, I think, in the town hall.

So, too, we hear of an earlier Thomas, a prior in the reign of Henry VII.

And additionally, to complete the English list, we have a Spalding who wrote a rather too Tory History of Scotland in the XVII century; another who wrote excellent books on Italy; and a third who wrote the well-known "History of English Literature," a classic in its way.

In Italy we come across Spaldinis, who are evidently of the same family, perhaps emigrants from the north of Europe; and others of the same name in Spain. As to the Italian or Spanish spelling of the name, there can be no question, for as Garibaldi is pronounced with both "a"s broad, as in father, and the "al" spelled without the "u," so Spaldini is pronounced with the "a" broad, and spelled without the "u."

I have seen a coat armor belonging to Spaldings of Lyons in France, and the name was there spelled as we wish it, correctly.

Further still, the German Spaldings are well known; noted theologians, latinists and merchants. It is not long since that I read a remarkably well-written German novel entitled, "Spalding Brothers," and in the handsome city of Hamburg one of the finest streets is called Spalding Street.

Of the spelling of the German name, too, there can be no doubt, because Spalding in German can only be spelled and pronounced correctly in one way, and that is by declining to recognize the interpolated "u" which would make of Spalding (with the broad "a" as in father) the name nowhere extant of Spowlding with the sound of "ow" in howl.

After all, the main stay of the name as spelled in good old English fashion is the fine old town of Spalding in Lincolnshire. Now, way back in Ethelbald's time (he reigned from 716 till 757, when he was murdered), there was a monastery, the grounds of which "extended on the easterly side as far as the walls of the hamlet or village of Spalding," which is said to have been originally settled in the sixth century by people of that name from Flanders. In 1601 we find the monastery still existing, but so harrassed by the monks of a neighboring religious house that our monks were forced to retire, and their abode was given over to the Abbey of Angiers in France, and became an alien priory to the latter monastery. The monastery, which went by the name of Abbey of Crowland or Croyland, was one of the thirteen largest establishments suppressed in the time of Henry VIII and Edward VI, and was then enjoying the annual income of nearly $5000 — a large sum for those days.

Well, this monastery, with its documents, shows that the town of Spalding maintained a constant existence from at least 730 or thereabouts to Henry VIII, whilst in our days it still flourishes; it has not grown very enormously; numbers about 6,000 or so people; is well-drained by means of steam pumps, though lying well down in a fenny country; a neat, clean-looking place; has a good water supply, and better even than that, cheap water rates; has a celebrated antiquarian society, well known as the Spalding Society, to which Sir Isaac Newton was not ashamed to belong. The lands all around are good for grazing, and the town is a great wool centre; the great market days are well attended. The town is asserted by some to owe its name to the once renowned Spa, or curative chalybeate spring in the market place. But an old map says that Spalding in old Anglo-Saxon means the same as Venus Aphrodite: that is, a town built in the foam of the sea shore.

The church of St. Mary and St. Nicholas has still many fine bits of architecture, some dating back 600 years, whilst the north porch is very beautiful. Schools with ancient foundations are very plenty, and round about the place you can see Roman remains and the ruins of Crowland Abbey, which once reached "to the wall of Spalding," to quote the ancient documents.

The traveler in England should not fail to see Spalding Church and Croyland Abbey and Croyland Triangular Bridge, the latter unique in this world, so far as history speaks, though there is an imitation in France.

There are also in England a Spaldington, a Spaldewick, and a Spaldford or Spaldingford, all of which one can easily fancy were settled by people of the old Spalding, or else by people with the same name that we own.

Why go any farther? We have seen from the analogy of sound in the spelling of almost every proper name in the ancient and modern world, that those who insert the "u" into the good old name that belongs to us, have not a foot to stand on; that from analogy with the ancient and modern use of the syllable "al" throughout the English tongue, they are still worse off, and that finally all of the ancestors of the family in foreign lands where the family name originated, who could spell, never spelled their name in any other way, nor did any writer of ancient documents ever think of spelling this name in any other way than SPALDING.

But what are we to do with the Spaldings who will have the "u"? We do not wish to try to force people to change their names perhaps endeared to them by old associations. If people will insist on spelling their names incorrectly, not only analogically, but historically and etymologically, we cannot help that. All that we can do is to remonstrate gently. We can only show them the right road and silently suggest that they shall follow it; it is useless to try force. We can perhaps try to teach them that the good old family name is worthy of being spelled properly, and as it was always spelled before our ancestors left Europe. We can do perhaps still better by opposing the useless "u" in old-fashioned broadsides like the present paper, and maintaining that we are right, no matter who be wrong; let the latter present their arguments in a similar fashion.

But whatever the issue of all our present or future efforts, yet when phonetic spelling comes, as is sure to be the case, we who have clung to the ancient spelling will be gratified in knowing that we at least shall be in good company, no matter what becomes of the rest of the race. For our name cannot then be spelled except in one way, no matter how much we may try, for Spalding with the "a" broad or flat, will always be Spalding without the "u." The "aul" will then be pronounced like fowl, and the followers of that spelling will cease to be members of the former race, except to the student of language. The old name will then be spelled correctly, and pronounced correctly, just like the broad "a" as in Father, with the Spalding of to-day in Germany, or with the Italian cognomen, with its worthy and glorious companionship of innumerable world-renowned names, of which we would suggest Spaldini, Salvini, Salvator Rosa and Garibaldi.

EXPLANATORY.

The plan and general arrangement of the original Memorial nas been followed in the present work, but owing to its largely increased size it was found impracticable to retain the original numbering. The index has been much improved by adding to each name the year of birth, which aids materially in identifying it when one of many of the same name.

A series of consecutive numbers runs through the volume. Where a name appears a second time, as it always will appear when it stands at the head of a family, the place where it is given is designated by a number in brackets, placed immediately after the name.

To trace a line of descent, seek in the Index the name you wish to trace; against it, following the year of birth, will stand a number. Turn to this number in the body of the work, where you will find the name, and above it the names of the parents; at the right of the name of the father will be a number in brackets, to which, if you turn, you will find the name, and above it the names of the grandparents; and so continue until the line is traced.

The numbers in the Indexes always refer to the first appearance of the name; and on turning to that number in the volume, it will be seen at a glance where it appears a second time.

FIRST GENERATION.

JAMES CITTIE, VIRGINIA (1619).— BRAINTREE, MASSACHUSETTS BAY (1630).

THE first known authentic record of the Spalding Family in America, appears in a Virginia State Document (Senate Report) entitled "Virginia Colonial Records, 1619-1680," published in 1874 by the State Superintendent of Public Printing, Richmond. Va. The documents there presented were printed from copies obtained from the Public Record Office of Great Britain, and include an account of the history of the Virginia Colony, together with a report of the first meeting of the Assembly of Virginia.

It was in the year 1607 that the first emigrants, to successfully form a permanent colony, landed in Virginia. For twelve years after its settlement it languished under the government of Sir Thomas Smith, Treasurer of the Virginia Company in England. The Colony was ruled during that period by laws written in blood; and its history shows how the narrow selfishness of despotic power could counteract the best efforts of benevolence. The colonists suffered an extremity of distress too horrible to be described.

Of the thousands of emigrants who had been sent to Virginia at great cost, not one in twenty remained alive in April, 1619, when Sir George Yeardley arrived. He brought certain commissions and instructions from the company, for the "better establishing of a commonwealth heere;" and the prosperity of Virginia began from this time, when it received, as a commonwealth, the freedom to make laws for itself. The first meeting was held July 30, 1619—more than a year before the Mayflower, with the pilgrims, left the harbor of Southampton.

After careful and diligent research, conclusive evidence proves that Edward Spalding came over from England with Sir George Yeardley, in 1619, or about that time. There is Documentary evidence that Edward Spalding and his family were fully established in the Virginia Colony in the year 1623, as his name appears in these "Virginia Colonial Records." On page 37 of that work is given "Lists of the Living and the Dead in Virginia, Feb. 16, 1623."

In this list, under the caption "Att James Citie* and within the Corporation thereof," is to be found, in "List of the Livinge:"

"MR. CANN,
CAPT. HARTT,
EDWARD SPALDING,
uxor SPALDING,
puer SPALDING,
puella SPALDING,
JOHN HELIN, uxor HELIN, puer HELIN,
infant HELIN."

These names appear in one group, and probably formed a single household.

On page 53, in the same list, under the caption of "More at Elizabeth Cittie," appears the name of

"EDMUND SPALDEN."

The name also appears on page 176 of a book edited by John Hotton, and published in London in 1874, by Chatto and Windus, in which is given a list of those living at James Cittye, Va., in 1623. The book has the following comprehensive title: "The Original Lists of Persons of Quality; Emigrants; Religious Exiles; Political Rebels; Strong Men sold for a term of Years; Apprentices; Children Stolen; Maidens Pressed; and others who went from Great Britain to the American Plantations, 1600-1700."

The supposition is that Edward and Edmund Spalding emigrated together from England about 1619; that some years later, Edward went to the Massachusetts Colony, while Edmund joined the Maryland Colony, under Lord Baltimore. Edmund undoubtedly was the progenitor of the family now known as the "Maryland Branch," and an account and partial record of that family is given in an appendix to this work.

* JAMES CITIE.—This birthplace of the State of Virginia, eighty miles below Richmond, is now the property of a gentleman of New York City, who has the ground cultivated. During the war the soil was thrown up into fortifications, and pieces of armor, sword hilts, calthorps, gold, silver and copper coins were found. All that remains of the city is a portion of the brick tower which belonged to the church, and which attracts the attention of travellers on the river with an interest similar to that of Mount Vernon on the Potomac. Though visited by very few persons, yet the relic-hunters have removed all the tombstones, and have attacked what remains of the church tower.

We shall here speak of Edward Spalding, the progenitor of the New England Family of that name. Edward of Virginia and Edward of Massachusetts Bay, without doubt, are identical.

The year 1619 is fixed upon as probably being the year of his arrival in Virginia. In that year several married couples with children arrived, while prior to that time the colonists consisted almost wholly of men.

Up to this time, few women had dared to cross the Atlantic; but now the promise of prosperity induced "ninety agreeable persons, young and incorrupt," to embark for the colony, where they were assured of a welcome. They were transported at the expense of the company, and were married to its tenants, or to men who were able to support them, and who willingly defrayed the costs of their passage—one hundred and twenty pounds of tobacco being the charge levied for a wife.

Powhatan, the friend of the English, died in 1618; and his brother was the heir to his influence. By this time the natives were near being driven "to seek a stranger countrie;" to save their ancient dwelling-places, it seemed to them that the English must be exterminated. On the twenty-second of March, 1622, at mid-day, they fell upon the unsuspecting population; children and women, as well as men, the missionary, the benefactor—all were slain with every aggravation of cruelty. In one hour, three hundred and forty-seven persons were massacred. The night before the execution of the conspiracy it had been revealed by a converted Indian to an Englishman whom he wished to rescue; Jamestown and the nearest settlements were prepared against the attack; the savages, as timid as they were ferocious, fled at the appearance of wakeful resistance; and the larger part of the colony was saved.

But public works were abandoned, and the settlements reduced from eighty to less than eight. Sickness prevailed among the dispirited survivors, who were crowded into narrow quarters; some returned to their mother country. The number of inhabitants had exceeded four thousand; a year after the massacre there remained but about one-half of that number.

After the massacre, it was ordered that a census be taken of the living and the dead in Virginia. It is in this list that the names of Edward Spalding and his family are given, together with the names of all persons then living in the colony.

Prior to emigrating to Massachusetts, Edward Spalding may have lived a number of years in the Bermuda Islands (then called the Summer Islands). The Bermudas are a cluster of islands lying in the Atlantic Ocean at the distance of six hundred miles from the American Continent, extending in crescent form from east to west; in length, twenty miles; in breadth, two and a half. The Virginia Colony kept up constant intercourse with the Bermuda Islands, and a number of the colonists settled permanently there, among whom were the Helin Family; for we find that in 1684, John Helyn and his mother were still living there, occupying separate estates of great value, adjoining each other. This is the widow and son of John Helin, a name linked in one group with that of Edward Spalding, whose names appeared in the "List of the Livinge" in Virginia, on Feb. 16, 1623, as heretofore mentioned.

That the colonists of Virginia were fully aware of the successful settlement and prosperity of the Plymouth Colony is well-known. In S. G. Goodrich's Pictorial History of the United States, Chapter 29, page 71, paragraph 4, appears the following:

"A settlement was begun at Braintree, Mass., in 1625, on a hill not far from the seat of the late President Adams, and was called, in honor of Mr. Wollaston, the principal settler, Mount Wollaston. The colonists consisted of fifty servants; but they did not thrive, and the following year a part of them were taken to Virginia."

In an authentic "History of Old Braintree and Quincy," also appears evidence to the same effect; and all authorities agree that Wollaston remained in Braintree but a short time, and from some cause or other left there and removed to Virginia before the first year of his arrival had expired.

Thus it is seen that parties from Massachusetts went to Virginia, who would naturally speak in glowing terms of the fertile lands and prosperous condition of the Plymouth Colony, and tell of the peaceable attitude of the Indians there. What is more probable than that Edward, having witnessed the scene of one great Indian massacre, and already become somewhat dissatisfied with the management of the Virginia Colony, should emigrate to Massachusetts Bay and to Braintree!

Alexander Brown, author of the Genesis of the United States, says: "After the colony in South Virginia was established, many of the members of that company turned their attention to the northward. Of the forty-three first members of His Majesty's council for New England, at least thirty had been instrumental in founding the colony on James River."

Horace Edward Hayden, in his "Virginia Colonies," published in 1890, says: "A remarkable evidence of the common origin of the New England and Virginia emigrants appears in the similarity of names."

H. G. Somerby, while in England in 1848, made some study of the lists of passengers for Virginia. He says: "Although the passengers here given went to Virginia, their names are not the less important to the student of New England History, for it is well known that great numbers came to New England from Virginia. * * * Were we to enter into an examination of the list, we doubt not we could show pretty conclusively that a large number of the persons named in it were not long after found in New England."

By what means Edward Spalding and his family reached Massachusetts Bay — whether he took passage on a trading vessel, or went on a ship returning to England, is not positively known. He may have taken passage on a trading vessel, many of which were known to have traded along the coasts; and it is not at all improbable that he might have been jointly interested with others in the ownership of a vessel, as we find that Captain Hartt, a master mariner, was a member of the same household.

From 1634 can clearly and distinctly be traced the first permanent settlement of Braintree,* Mass. Previous to this time, those who came there were adventurers, who had neither sympathy nor interest with the civil or ecclesiastical ideas of the permanent settlers of the Massachusetts Colony; and it is probable that Edward and his family arrived about this time, or very soon afterwards.

It was in Braintree, Mass., where his first wife Margaret and his daughter Grace died, and where one of his children, Benjamin, was born. The following records from the town of Braintree were returned to the recorder in Boston, and are published in the Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. 3, p. 247:

"Benjamin the sonne of Edward Spalden, his wife, was born 7°, (2ᵖ), 1643.
Grace the daughtʳ of Edward Spalden, his wife was buryed (3°), 1641.
Margaret the wife of Edward Spalden dyed —— 1640."

Edward Spalding was made a Freeman May 13, 1640, from which fact we know that he was a member of the established church of the Province; as no person could be made a Freeman, or be entitled to any share in the government, or be capable of being chosen a magistrate, or even of serving on a jury, who was not a member of some one of the churches established in the Colony.

*The original settlers of Braintree were from the old counties of Lincolnshire, Devonshire and Essex, in England. It also appears by the laws of Massachusetts Colony that Irish emigration was forbidden.

The third mention of Edward Spalding is in the following petition made Oct. 1, 1645:-

"The petition of Stephen Kingsly, John Garing, Francis Eliott, Thom: Flatman, Henry Adams, Thomas Adams, John Sheopard, Henry Adams, Junior, Samu: Adams, John Adams, Christopher Adams, William Vaysey, Richard Bracket, Christopher Webb, Edward Sparlden, Thomas Meakisn, Nicho: Woode, Robert Quelues, Thom. Barret, Daniell Shode, William Ellice, Deodatus Curtis, Thomas Waterman, Nathaniell Herman, Humfry Grigs, John Hastings, George Aldridge, John Wheateley, Thomas Wilmet, Henry Madsley, John French and Arthur Waring is granted with free and full consent, they being about twenty of the thirty-two subscribers free men, the Cort doth thinke meet that so much land as they shall set out for their towne, not exceeding the quantity of tenn thousand acres together, shall be allotted to them, and that the major part of the freemen that shall first build & plant thereupon so that the whole make up the number of seaven, shall have power to admit or keepe out whom they thinke good, and that the Genrall Cort should write letters to Benedict Arnold, to compound with Pumhome at the easiest rate he can, for his right in any improved ground, and that the petitioners shall dispose of ye houses built upon ye said ground, with this proviso, that they shall pay to such as built them what the Cort shall hereafter appoint, if they see cause so to do; this is granted provided they go on, and ten families be there within twelve months."

The name next appears in connection with the settlement of Chelmsford, Mass. In "Allen's History of Chelmsford," p. 8, we find the following statement:

"About twenty persons from Woburn and Concord at the last session of the General Court in 1652, petitioned for liberty to examine a tract of land, 'lying on the other side (west) of Concord river.' The Court accepted and granted their request. Having by a joint committee examined and viewed the aforesaid tract of land, and having also found sundry others to the number of thirty-nine in all, desirous of uniting with them in erecting a new plantation, they jointly petitioned the legislature for a grant of land, 'bordering upon the river Merrimack, near to Pawtuckett.' "

The petition was granted [Colonial Records, vol. 3, p. 301,] May 18, 1653, and Capt. Willard of Concord and Capt. Johnson of Woburn were appointed to lay out the township. It was about six miles square.

The town was incorporated May, 1655, and "upon information by letter from Esdras Reed, Edward Spalding and William Fletcher, inhabitants of said plantation, that the number of inhabitants according to the time prefixed in the Court's grant, were there settled; at their request the Court do grant the name thereof to be called Chelmsford." It was named after Chelmsford in England, county of Essex, which derived its name from the river Chelmer, on which it is situated. [Allen, pp. 12, 13.]

The town in the first grant did not extend to the Merrimack River, but, May 3, 1656, on petition of the inhabitants, the northeast boundary was extended to it. Among the signers of this petition was Edward Spalding.

In this enlargement was some of the best land in the town, and a portion containing 214 acres, was fenced in 1669, and called the "New Field." The names of the proprietors are given [Allen, p. 169], and among these we find Edward Spalding, Sen., Edward Spalding, Jun., and John Spalding.

In 1686, the land lying west of Concord river and south of the Merrimack, near Pawtucket Falls, called "Wamesit," was sold by the Indians to Jonathan Tyng and Maj. Thomas Hinchman. Mr. Tyng conveyed his right in the Wamesit purchase, excepting one forty-sixth part, to Maj. Hinchman, for £50, who sold the whole tract to forty-four persons, reserving one share to himself. These forty-six joint proprietors built a wall on the south side, extending from Merrimack River to Concord River, and for some years used the land as a common pasture for their cattle. It was annexed to Chelmsford, 1726. [Allen, p. 27.]

The first named among these proprietors is Edward Spalding, who was a son of the elder Edward. We also find among them John Spalding, John Spalding, Jun., Joseph Spalding, Benjamin Spalding, and Andrew Spalding, the five sons and one grandson of the elder Spalding. This territory is now within the most densely settled part of the city of Lowell.

There is a tradition [which is given by Allen, in his history of Chelmsford, pp. 16, 17] that Edward Spalding removed to Wenham, Mass., and was one of the Wenham company which removed to Chelmsford; but there is no trace of his being there, upon any records of that town. He removed to Chelmsford, Mass., at, or immediately after, the first settlement of that town, in 1653. His name does not appear in the list of original grantees, but at the first town meeting held Nov. 22, 1654, he was chosen one of the Selectmen. The record is as follows:

"The 22d, the 9. month: 1654. At a meeting then at William Fletcher's Hous, there was chosen to officiate in ordering the Public Affairs of the Place by the Consent of the Major part of the Town for this present year ensuing: are as followeth: Ezdras Reed: Edward Spalding: William Fletcher: Isaac Learned: Simeon Thompson: William Underwood: Thomas Adams:"

He was also chosen Selectman in 1656, 1660, and 1661. Under date of Feb. 4, 1661, is recorded the division of land granted him by the Town, amounting to 28 acres, and consisting of 12 acres on Stony Brook, 10 acres at Little Tadmuck, and 6 acres on Merrimack Plain. In 1665 he was appointed one of a "Committee for the laying out the Meadow granted to the several Inhabitants according to the Town Order." In 1663 he was "the Surveyor of the Highways." In 1666 he was chosen with three others "Surveyor for the Newfield," a tract of land lying north of Stony Brook, then first opened for pasturage; afterward when settled as a village, called "Newfield," and subsequently "North Chelmsford." Edward Spalding was himself one of the proprietors of the "Newfield," as recorded in the Town Records, March 12, 1667; his proportion being 6 acres.

The attention of the first settlers was early given to the culture of apple-trees, and special mention is made of the orchard of Edward Spalding, in 1664.

From the settlement of the Spaldings in Chelmsford, Mass., there went out, about 1700, a large emigration to Plainfield, Conn. The following facts transcribed from the records of Plainfield, Conn., may be found in the Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. 15, p. 53:

"Plainfield, Conn., was granted to Gov. John Winthrop of New London, about 1655, settled from Massachusetts, and incorporated 1699; and contained, Dec. 24, 1702, the following freeholders, residing on the east side of the Quinebaug River." Among the thirty-four named are John Spalding [10], Joseph Spalden [6], Edward Spalden [12], and Benjamin Spalden [5].

"Oct. 10, 1706, the General Court of Connecticut, in answer to a petition, gave a more ample confirmation to nineteen of the above proprietors, and to the following new proprietors." Among the nineteen mentioned, are the four Spaldings above named.

This Connecticut colony consisted of two of the sons of Edward, Senior, Benjamin, and Joseph, and seven grandsons. It is probable also that William, the son of Andrew, went to Connecticut.

A large emigration also went from Chelmsford; at a later period, to Ludlow and Cavendish, Vt. It was said that it was safe to address any one in either of these towns as Spalding, since the persons bearing this name constituted a large proportion of the inhabitants.

The same restless spirit which moved the Spaldings to emigrate from Chelmsford to Connecticut, continued in force in their descendants, and led to settlements in Plainfield and Cornish, N. H., Moretown, Middletown, Sharon, and Panton, Vt., and Bradford County, Pa.; and now there is not a State or Territory, north of Mason and Dixon's Line, in which the descendants of Edward Spalding may not be found.

The children of his wife Margaret were John, Edward and Grace; the latter was buried (3°. 1641) May, 1641. His wife Margaret died Aug. 1640.

Of his wife Rachel, named in his will, there were Benjamin, b. April 7, 1643; Joseph, b. Oct. 25, 1646; Dinah, b. March 14, 1649; Andrew, b. Nov. 19, 1652.

He died Feb. 26, 1670. His will, dated Feb. 13, 1667, in which his sons Benjamin and Joseph are not mentioned, made his wife Rachel executrix. But she died soon after him, and on probate of the will, April 5, 1670, administration was given to John and Edward. The reason, undoubtedly, why his sons Benjamin and Joseph were not mentioned in the will, was because he had already given them their portions, which they had invested in lands in Plainfield and Killingly, Conn.

The following are copies of the will of Edward Spalding, and the inventory of his estate:

In Witness whereof and for the confirmmation of this my last will and testiment I have hereunto put my hand and seale this twentieth day of Febereary, Anno Dom. 1702 and in the first yeare of the reign of our Soveraign Lady Anne queen of England &c

EDWARD SPAULDING

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of NATHANEL HILL, WILLIAM FLETCHER, SAMUEL FLETCHER, Junr.

19. Dorothy, b. April 3, 1664.
20. Deborah, b. Sept. 12, 1667.
21. Edward [97], b. Aug. 18, 1674.
22. Ebenezer [106], b. Jan. 13, 1683.
23. Esther, b. Feb. 11, 1700; d. Nov. 30, 1700.
24. Sarah.
25. Margaret.

26. BENJAMIN[2] [5], (Edward[1]), b. April 7, 1643, in Braintree, Mass.; d. before 1708; m. Olive Farwell, Oct. 30, 1668. She was the daughter of Henry and Olive Farwell, first of Concord, Mass., afterwards of Chelmsford, Mass. Her father Henry Farwell was made a freeman in 1689.

Benjamin is not mentioned in the will of his father, as he had already received his portion. He purchased a large tract of land in the northerly part of Canterbury, Windham County, Conn., now called Brooklyn. His family homestead was transmitted to his son Edward, and in process of time to Edward's son Ebenezer.

The children of Benjamin and Olive were as follows:

27. Sarah, b. Jan. 4, 1669; m. John Miriam.
28. Edward [117], b. June 18, 1672.
29. Benjamin [128], b. July 6, 1685.
30. Elizabeth; m. Ephraim Wheeler.
31. Mary; m. Isaac Morgan.

32. JOSEPH[2] [6], (Edward[1]), b. October 25, 1646 — this is the date given on the Chelmsford record; d. April 3, 1740, æ. 96, in Plainfield, Conn. This date is given on the Plainfield records with this addition: "if he had lived to Aug. next, 97." If the Plainfield record is correct, he was born in August, 1643. But this was the year of the birth of Benjamin, as given by the Braintree record, and also put upon the Chelmsford record. He m. Mercy Jewell, Dec. 9, 1670; she was the daughter of Thomas and Grizell Jewell, and d. Aug. 17, 1728, at Plainfield, Conn., in the 76th year of her age. In the Middlesex Records, p. 196, Hist. and Gen. Library, Boston, she is called Mary, and it is the impression that Mary, and not Mercy, is the true name. For in vol. 17, p. 187, office of Register of Deeds, Middlesex Co., Mr. Joseph Spalding and Mary his wife, in consideration of "100 pounds in good and lawful bills of public credit," convey to Massachusetts Commissioners their home lot, etc., 135 acres. This was done Feb. 2, 1714. In vol. 17, p. 182, of the same office, Joseph Spalding, carpenter, of Plainfield, New London Co., Conn., conveys to his son Joseph, wheelwright, of Chelmsford, Mass., certain lands on condition he relinquishes all claim to land or lands in Plainfield, Conn. This is also signed by Joseph and Mary Spalding. Two sons of Joseph, Nathaniel and Thomas, emigrated to Plainfield, Conn., to which place Joseph himself removed, but at what time we cannot determine.

The following, regarding Joseph and his wife, appears in the town records of Plainfield, Windham Co., Conn.:

"Joseph Spalding departed this life Apr. y^{e} 3^{d} 1740 aged 96 if he had lived till Aug. next 97."

"Marcy Spaulding wife of Joseph Spaulding departed this life Aug. y^{e} 17, 1728 in y^{e} 76th year of her age."

The children of Joseph and Mary were as follows:

There was probably a Lydia who died young.

33. Eunice, b. Feb. 14, 1685; m. Capt. Joseph Adams, July 23, 1708.
34. Nathaniel [131], b. Feb. 24, 1687.
35. Thomas [142], b. April 2, 1690.
36. Mercy, b. Feb. 21, 1692.
37. Susanna, b. Sept. 12, 1695.
38. Joseph, b. April 16, 1697.
39. Joseph [152], b. April 17, 1699.
40. Ebenezer [157], b. July, 1701.
41. Mercy, b. October, 1703.
42. Mary, b. Jan. 29, 1706.
43. Lydia, b. July 1, 1708; m. Col. Timothy Pierce, Jr.
44. Rachel, b. Sept. 9, 1710.

45. ANDREW^{2} [8], (Edward^{1}), b. Nov. 19, 1652; he d. May 5, 1713; m. Hannah Jefes, daughter of Henry Jefes, of Billerica, Mass., April 30, 1674. She d. Jan. 21, 1730. He was the youngest child of Edward, and succeeded, by the will of his father, to the paternal estate. He was chosen deacon of the church, and held that office at the time of his death. His son Andrew and his grandson Ephraim also held the same office.

The following is a copy of his will:

In the name of God Amen I Andrew Spalding, Senr of the town of Chelmsford in the county of Middlesex in the province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England yeoman Being of sound good and perfect memory Praise be given to god for the same yitknowing the uncertainty of this Life on earth and Being Desirous to settle things In order do make and ordaine this to be my Last Will and testament Hereby Revoking all Former Wills by made and signed to be Null and of none effect.

In Primas. My soul I give into the hands of allmighty god that gave it in sure and Certaine hopes of Eternal Life through our alone Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and my body to the Earth from whence it Came to be Decently Interred at the Discretion of my Executrix hereafter mentioned and after my funerall Expenses and Debts satisfied And Paid What Worldly goods it hath pleased God to Endow me withall I Do give and Bequeath in manner as followeth:

Item. I Do give and Bequeath unto my Well Beloved Wife Hannah Spaulding my Homestead housing and Land with a fouer Acer Right in the Commons: alIso four Lots of Land Lying without the Neck field: with all my moveable estate of all sorts and Kinds whatsoever to be at her own Disposal. As to the housing and Lands it is to be for her to use, occupie and Improve as shee shall so cause Duering the time of her Life and after her Decease I Do give it all to be Equally Devided amongst all my Children Sons and Daughters each one their equall Part: as to my sons they have Received all of them their portions allReady by Deeds of gift from me.

Item: I do give and Bequeath unto my Daughter Rachell Butterfield thirteen Acres of upland Lying in the field Commonly Called the New field. Also the sixt part of the Lott Lying at Sunkawasset with the seventh part of a swamp called the Spruce Swamp: to her and her Heirs Execrs Administrators for ever.

Item: I Do give and Bequeath to my Daughter Joanna Spaulding two Cows: and one Feather Bed and furniture thereto Belonging allso all the Remaining part of the Land in the neck that is not allready disposed of; also seventeen pounds in money which is to be paid to her at her marriage to her and her heirs Execrs Admin's for ever, Hereby Authorizing and fully Impowering my Beloved Wife Hannah Spaulding to be whole and sole executrix of this my Last Will and Testament.

In Witness Whereof I the said Andrew Spaulding Have hereunto set my hand and Seall the Sixt Day of June Annodomini 1712 and in the 11th year of her Majesties Reign over England, Before signing and sealing it is to be understood that my sons have Received their portions allready excepting what may fall to them in the Lands after my Wives Decease, allso I Do give and Bequeath to my two Daughters Rachel Butterfield and Joanna Spaulding the sixt part of a trackt of Land Lying within the Township of Billerica Lying between the Land of Lt Samll Hill and Joseph hill to them and their Heirs.

176. HENRY[3] [48], (Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Nov. 2, 1680, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. April 4, 1720; m. Elizabeth Lund, of Dunstable, now Nashua, N. H., probably in 1703. The marriage is recorded in the Chelmsford records, but the date is not given. She was a daughter of Thomas Lund, one of the first settlers, and a proprietor of Dunstable, N. H. The name is spelt Lunn, Lun, and Lund. Her father was an old soldier, and her brother Thomas was killed by the Indians Sept. 5, 1724. Elizabeth was born Sept. 29, 1684. She survived her husband, and with Richard Stratton, settled his estate.

Children of Henry and Elizabeth were all born in Chelmsford, Mass.:

177. Henry [563], b. Nov. 22, 1704.
178. Thomas [574], b. July 30, 1707.
179. William [583], b. March 17, 1711.
180. Leonard [595], b. Dec. 1, 1713.
181. Eleazer, b. May 29, 1717. He probably died young, as no mention is made of him in the settlement of his father's estate.

182. JOHN[3] [49], (Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 20, 1682, in Chelmsford; d. March 7, 1760; he left a will which was admitted to probate May 6, 1760; 1st, m. Mary Barrett, Feb. 6, 1705; 2d, m. Lydia ——; Lydia d. April 16, 1760.

183. Jonathan [604], b. Nov. 11, 1705.
184. Mary, b. Jan. 19, 1708.
185. Hannah, b. Feb. 7, 1709; m. Daniel Whitney.
186. Sampson [612], b. June 7, 1711; d. Dec. 15, 1796.
187. Job [624], b. Oct. 19, 1714.
188. Mary, b. April 7, 1722; m. John Woodward.
189. John [636], b. Feb. 7, 1725.
190. Lot [643], b. Sept. 24, 1737; he is a child of the second wife.

191. WILLIAM[3] [51], (Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 3, 1688, in Chelmsford, Mass.

There is no account of the death of this William, and no mention made of him in the will of his father. As the records of the family of Deacon Andrew are quite full and minute, we infer that William lived to grow up, and followed his uncles and cousins into Connecticut, and received his portion of his father's estate when he left home. We have no definite knowledge of him nor of his wife. He is the first William among the early Spaldings. From a comparison of names and dates, we are confident he had a son Elijah.

192. Elijah [650].

193. BENONI[3] [53], (Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Feb. 6, 1691, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. Dec. 17, 1752, aged 61; he resided in Billerica, Mass.; 1st, m. Rebeckah ——; she d. Jan. 8, 1741-2; 2d, m. Esther Chamberlain, Dec. 21, 1743.

194. Mary, b. April 16, 1718; d. May 25, 1718.
195. Rebeckah, b. Aug. 20, 1722; m. Jonas Adams, of Chelmsford, Mass., Aug. 4, 1740.
196. Benjamin, b. April 29, 1725; d. June 11, 1725.
197. Edward [660] b. May 8, 1727.
198. Asa [666], b. May 26, 1729.
199. Rachel, b. Jan. 3, 1732; d. April 23, 1732.
200. Hannah, b. Aug. 3, 1735; d. Oct. 4, 1735.
201. Joanna, b. Oct. 11, 1736.

FOURTH GENERATION.

202. SAMUEL[4] [57], (John[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 5, 1686; d. June 9, 1749; m. Susannah ——; resided in Plainfield, Conn. Children all born in Plainfield, Conn.

203. John [676], b. April 2, 1707.
204. Jedediah [685], b. April 1, 1709.
205. Abigail, b. May 7, 1711.
206. Elizabeth, b. July 16, 1714.
207. Susannah, b. Oct. 19, 1723.

208. JONATHAN[4] [58], (John[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 7, 1688; d. 1761; resided in Plainfield, Conn.; m. Judah Billins, daughter of Hana Maine, April 22, 1714; she d. 1763, æ. 80.

265. JACOB[4] [68], (Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. May 14, 1696, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. Sept. 24, 1728; m. Hannah Wilson.

He emigrated in 1715 with the first settlers to the South Parish, Killingly, Conn. The following adventure is given in Barber's "Historical Collections of Connecticut," as occurring in 1720: "Jacob one day purchased of an Indian a deer skin, for which he paid him a tenor bill. The latter being intoxicated, soon forgot that he received it, and asked for the money a second time. Jacob of course paid no attention to such an unwarranted demand, and the Indian went away muttering revenge. The next day while shingling a barn, Jacob saw him returning with two companions. He leaped from the roof, met them, and was again asked to pay the price of the deer skin. He refused to comply, till one of the company, who appeared to be the Sachem of his tribe, said he had come to see 'fair play,' and avowed it to be honorable for two Indians to contend with one white man. Jacob therefore plucking up courage laid them both on the ground and gave them a 'sound drubbing.' The one who was looking on said: 'Poor Dogs, Poor Dogs! me hope he kill you both.' The next day Jacob saw them coming again, and the one who supposed himself cheated was in the act of loading his rifle. Thrusting his hand into his pocket to find the ball, he drew out the identical bill which he had received two days before. Seeing Jacob coming to meet him he said, 'Me now believe Jacob you paid me de tenor bill.' Jacob then turned to the one who had come to see fair play and asked what shall we do with him? 'Tie him to de tree and whip him,' was the reply. This was done by the Indians themselves. The poor fellow after this humiliating treatment, became dejected, fled his tribe, and was never heard of afterwards. Such was the principle of honor among the Indians."

My father, says John Spalding [10114], since my recollection, cut down the walnut to which the Indian was tied, which had grown to be a large tree.

266. Simeon [821], b. about 1719.
267. Dameras, b. about 1721; she d. Feb. 21, 1802, in the 82d year of her age; m. William Short, of Killingly, Conn.
268. Jacob, b. Oct. 25, 1728.

269. PHILIP[4] [69], (Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. March 6, 170–, in Plainfield, Conn.; the record is torn and defaced so that the last figure of the date is illegible; d. May 2, 1752; m. Ann Cleveland, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth Cleveland, Aug. 10, 1721. We give below the names of their children as they appear upon the Plainfield (Conn.) Records. Two others, Agnes and Dorcas, are mentioned by Rev. V. Spalding.

270. Andrew, b. April 28, 1722; baptized July 15, 1722; d. June 1, 1796, by drowning; unmarried.

281. JOSEPH[4] [73], (Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Sept. 3, 1718, in Plainfield, Conn.; m. Mehitable——; they resided in Killingly, Conn., where their children were born. Whether they removed from Killingly, or remained and died there, we do not know. As there is an entire silence in the records in regard to this family, it is the impression that they removed from town.

282. Aholiab, b. Sept. 20, 1743.
283. Rachel, b. Aug. 6, 1747.

284. SAMUEL[4] [75], (Samuel[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. June 4, 1699. Of this Samuel it is only known that he went with his father's family, in 1706, from Chelmsford, Mass., to Canterbury, Conn., and that in 1726 he shared in the division of his father's property, and received as the eldest son, £156 17s. 6d. of which £28 6s. 4d. was in personal estate. The indications are that he went to the northwestern part of Connecticut. Of his wife and children we know nothing, except that he had a son Uriah. There may have been others, but we have found no trace of them.

In 1731 a religious society was "taken out of Pomfret, Canterbury, and Mortlake, and commonly known as Mortlake," now Brooklyn, Conn. In April, 1733, it was voted to build a church. In August it was voted "that the meeting-house shall stand between Samuel and Zack Spaldings," there being thirty for that place and eight against it. The following year Mr. Samuel Spalding deeded two and a half acres of land to the society "for a meeting-house spot and other uses." The house was set a little northwest of the present green, which was included in the gift of Mr. Spalding.

285. Uriah [878].
286. Moses [890].

287. Capt. ZACHARIAH[4] [77], Samuel[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Nov. 3, 1702, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. July 31, 1771; 1st, m. Elizabeth Ann Butterfield; she d. April 12, 1752; 2d, m. Sarah Pike. Capt. Zachariah was a prominent man in Pomfret, Conn., where he lived, and where his children were born.

308. Willard [934], b. July 10, 1750; went to Stoddard, N. H.
309. Abijah, b. Nov. 12, 1759; m. Olive Pierce, Dec. 1, 1791; had no children.
310. Jesse [940], b. March 12, 1763.

311. Col. SIMEON[4] [85],(Joseph[3], John[2], Edward[1]). He was the youngest son of Joseph Spalding, and was born in Chelmsford, Aug. 4, 1713. His father, at that time, was living in his homestead house, since demolished, situated a little over a mile west of the village. After the death of his father in 1728, the homestead property was divided by a Board of Commissioners, among the widow and children; Simeon's part being his portion of the house and outbuildings and fifty-six acres of land—valued altogether at £161 5s. 10d. In February, 1736, he purchased of Nathan Kendall ten acres of land in Chelmsford, lying on the county road, half a mile west of the village, upon which he afterwards built the homestead house occupied by himself during the remainder of his life, and by his son Noah Spalding after him. At the same time he purchased thirteen acres of meadow and woodland lying in the neighborhood. In 1737 he purchased eight acres, also lying in the immediate vicinity of the above. In 1738 he purchased of his brother, John Spalding, nineteen acres on the south bank of the Merrimack River. In 1748, ten acres of meadow and upland; in 1749, fifty-one acres; in 1751, two acres of orchard; in 1758, ten acres in the "Wamesit Purchase;" and, in 1767, eighteen acres of woodland.

He was chosen Town Treasurer in 1755, 1756, and 1757; and Selectman for the years 1761 and 1762. March 18, 1755, he was commissioned cornet of the first troop of horse in the Second Regiment of the Provincial Militia. He early took an active part in public affairs during the American Revolution.

In 1770 he was chosen Representative of the town "at a Great and General Court or assembly appointed to be convened, held and kept for his Majesty's Service at Harvard College in Cambridge upon Wednesday the thirteenth day of May for the ensuing year."

In 1773, while he was still acting as Representative, a meeting of the freeholders was convened "to know the Sentiments of the Town respecting the many grievances we at present labor under, particularly the extraordinary Stipend of the Judge of the Superiour Court, appointed from home, and more particularly to consider a letter and bill of rights from the Town of Boston." The following instructions were then unanimously adopted:

"Jany. 21: 1773. To Mr. Simeon Spalding, Representative of the Town of Chelmsford in the General Court of this Province.

"SIR: As the present aspect of the Times is Dark and Difficult we do not doubt but you will cheerfully know the Sentiments and receive the assistance of those you represent. The matters that may now come under your Cognizance are of great Importance. The highest Wisdom, therefore, Prudence and Discretion is evidently necessary. We would earnestly caution you, and your own good Sense will See the propriety of it, by no means to consent to any Rash Passionate Plan of action, which will not only Sully the Dignity, but finally prove the utter Destruction of the Cause we pretend to support. Such Behaviour no private person can justify. States should despise it. The Stipend annexed to the office of the Judge of the Superiour Court is complained of as a grievance, but will it not be proper at least to inquire whether this is not in a great measure owing to some defect in ourselves: whether the Provision formerly made by us was not miserably deficient, and utterly unworthy the highest Court we boast of and the Dignity of the Province itself. As to the removal of grievances, we do not doubt your own Wisdom and the Wisdom of your Brethren will invent some suitable Mode of Redress. We hope those little animosities and those Reflections which involve persons not things and which have been too frequently used, may be utterly banished. We hope every Determination will be founded in the nature of a free State: and that therefore every Privilege annexed to each part may be religiously Preserved. Of consequence you will be careful, not to trample on Majesty, while you are firmly but Decently pleading the liberties of the subject. Sir, we wish you that wisdom which is from above, and we pray God that your conduct in this Important Crisis may be such as the coolest Reflection will ever after Justify." [Town Records, Book I, p. 147.]

He was re-elected Representative to the General Court in May, 1773, May, 1774, and September, 1774. Immediately after the last election, the Town adopted the following letter of instructions:

"As we have now chosen you to Represent us in the Great and General Court now to be holden at Salem on Wednesday the fifth day of October next ensuing—we do hereby Instruct you that in all your Doings as a Member of the House of Representatives, you adhere firmly to the Charter of this Province granted by their Majesties K. William and Q. Mary, and that you do no act which can possibly be construed into an acknowledgement of the validity of an act of the British Parliament for altering the government of the Massachusetts Bay;—more especially that you acknowledge the honorable Board of Councillors * elected by the

* The Parliament had this year passed an Act making the Councillors of the Province, who were previously elected by the General Court, appointees of the Crown.

General Court at their Sessions in May last, as the only Rightfull and Constitutional Council of this Province; and as we have reason to believe that a Conscientious Discharge of your Duty will produce your Dissolution as a House of Representatives, we do hereby Impower and Instruct you to join with the Members who may be sent from the other towns in the Province, and to meet with them at a time to be agreed on, in a General Provincial Congress, to act upon such matters as may come before you in such a manner as shall appear to you most conducive to the true Interest of this Town and Province and most likely to preserve the Liberties of all America."

[Town Records, Book II, p. 233.]

In Sept., 1775, he was appointed Justice of the Peace by the Provincial Council; and in Feb., 1776, he was Commissioned Colonel of the Seventh Regiment of the Provincial Militia. This commission was also given by the Council, there being no Governor at that time.

In 1776 he was elected Chairman of a "Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety," chosen by the town. This Committee consisted in all of sixteen members.

He was re-elected to the General Court in May, 1775, and May, 1776.

Immediately after the last election, it was "Voted—that if it should be the pleasure of the honorable Continental Congress to declare an Independent State with Great Britain, that said Town will stand by them at the expense of Life and fortunes."

Col. Spalding continued a member of the General Court until 1778. In that year the "Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union between the United States" having been submitted by the General Congress to the Legislatures of the States, the Town voted (Feb. 26) not to give special instructions to their Representative, but "leave the matter discretionary with him, to act as he may think will be most advantageous to this and the other States relative to that matter."

In May, 1778, he was chosen one of a committee "to adjust all past Services done in the war by the inhabitants of the Town since March, 1777."

In 1779 he was chosen Delegate to the "Convention for framing a Constitution of Government for the State of Massachusetts Bay," which continued its sessions from Sept. 1, 1779, to June 16, 1780.

In March, 1781, he was commissioned Justice of the Peace by Gov. Hancock.

Col. Spalding married his first wife, Sarah Fletcher, about 1736. He had five children, viz.: Abel, Sarah, Joel, Joanna, and Silas. She d. Nov. 14, 1746. He married Mrs. Abigail Wilson, of Woburn, Nov. 13, 1751. She had nine children by him, viz.: Micah, Jepthah, Azariah, Simeon, Abigail, Philip, Rebecca, Matthias, and Noah. She was a daughter of Edward Johnson, and was b. July 15, 1723, and d. June 20, 1812, aged 89. Her ancestors, Capt. Edward[1] Johnson emigrated from the County of Kent, England. He resided for a while in Charleston, and afterward became one of the first settlers of Woburn in 1642, and died at an advanced age, April 23, 1672. His son Edward[2] Johnson, born in 1620, married Katherine Baker, Jan. 10, 1649, he died at Woburn. His son Edward[3] Johnson, was born Nov. 5, 1650, and married Sarah Walker in 1686; he died Aug 5, 1725. His son Edward[4] Johnson, born May 4, 1789, died at Woburn. Abigail[5] Johnson, his daughter, 1st, married a Mr. Wilson, by whom she had three sons and one daughter.

Col. Spalding died April 7, 1785, aged nearly 72 years. His gravestone is in the Chelmsford burying-ground, next north that of his father, Joseph Spalding.

The following is a copy of his will:

394. JONATHAN[4] [121], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. April 15, 1704, in Canterbury, Conn.; m. Eunice Woodward.

Little is known of this family. They resided for a time in Plainfield, Conn., where Edath was born. "Eunice Woodward was a daughter of David Woodward, who emigrated from Dedham, Mass., to Plainfield, in 1704. This David was a grandson of Peter Woodward, the emigrant ancestor of the family, who lived and died in Dedham. David had a brother Jonathan, who also settled in Plainfield. David had six children, three sons and three daughters. The names of the sons were David, Zephaniah and Reuben. The descendants of David have been numerous, and have continued to reside in Plainfield, and in the adjoining towns of Griswold and Preston."

[Letter of Dr. Ashbel Woodward, Franklin, Conn.]

He was chosen deacon of the church, Jan. 30, 1749, and succeeded his father and grandfather in the same office. He was a prominent man in the town, and was chairman of the committee appointed to draw up instructions to their representative in the General Court when the Stamp Act was passed in 1765. The following is the report of this committee, which was unanimously adopted:

"This being a time when by reason of several acts of Parliament not only this province but all the English colonies on this continent are thrown into the utmost confusion and perplexity; the Stamp Act as we apprehended, not only lays an unconstitutional but also an unsupportable tax upon us, and deprives us we humbly conceive, of those rights, and privileges to which we are entitled as free-born Subjects of Great Britain by the royal charter. Wherefore we think it our duty and interest at this critical conjuncture of our public affairs, to direct you, Sir, our representative to be so far from countenancing the execution of the aforesaid Stamp act, that you use your best endeavors, that such measures may be taken and such remonstrances made to the King and Parliament, as may obtain a speedy repeal of the aforesaid act; and a removal of the burden upon trade. We also desire you to exert your influence to use the public monies with frugality and to the promotion of the interests of the people at large."

He was appointed Justice of the Peace, Feb. 6, 1765.

The depreciation of paper money during the Revolutionary War may be learned from the following items: In 1780, a horse bought of Ephraim Spalding, Esq., for the army, cost £911, and a blanket £100.

Dea. Spalding resided in Chelmsford, Mass., and his children were all born in that town.

526. Lydia, b. Nov. 22, 1731; bap. Nov. 28, 1731.
527. Jonathan (1491), b. April 17, 1734.
528. Joanna, b. Oct. 4, 1737; d. Oct. 19, 1737.
529. Sybil, b. Jan. 31, 1739; d. Sept. 9, 1747.

530. Dea. ISAAC[4] [169], (Andrew[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Oct. 28, 1710, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. March 4, 1776; m. Sarah Barrett; she was b. 1714, and d. Feb. 11, 1806, æ. 92.

He removed to Townsend, Mass., soon after his marriage, and lived and died in that town. He was deacon of the church in Townsend. The farm on which he settled is still in the Spalding family.

He signed a petition for protection against the Indians, sent to the Gen. Court of Mass., and dated Dec. 31, 1746.

The following is an account of "A Great Family Gathering," which appeared in a local newspaper, Aug. 26, 1877.

Wednesday, August 30, 1877, was a day long to be remembered by the descendants of Deacon Isaac Spalding, who to the number of about two hundred assembled on the spot where he erected his dwelling one hundred and forty years ago, near the place called "the harbor," in Townsend. The house was destroyed by fire some eight years since, and nothing now remains to mark the spot but a few venerable trees and the cellar. A large number of the relatives had met, however, to hold a centennial anniversary, and a rustic tenement had been erected for their convenience. On the post where once stood the front door was an evergreen motto—"Gone Before;" also a fine picture of the house and surrounding buildings as they were before the fire, with the words, "Our Father's Home, August 30, 1776," drawn by Mrs. Gen. Dix, of New York. Dea. Spalding was distinguished for his integrity, industry and honesty. He died March 4, 1776, leaving to his children a name unstained and a father's blessing.

An excellent dinner had been provided, and after the Divine blessing had been asked by Dea. Richard Spalding, of Jaffrey, N. H., the entire company partook with the most satisfactory results. After satisfying the inner man the party was called to order, and Mr. Wallace read several interesting papers, among them the deed of the land purchased by Dea. Spalding in 1773 and given by William Clark, of Concord, in the reign of George III.; also his will.

At the close of his reading an original poem relative to the occasion was read by Mrs. R. A. Maxfield, of Nashua, and a letter from one of the absent relatives was read by Mrs. Harriet Spalding. Remarks were also made by several persons, and the whole concluded with music.

531. Jonathan [1501], b. July 28, 1734.
532. Lydia, b. Aug. 20, 1737; m. Oliver Heald, of Temple, N. H.; their son Daniel grad. D. C. 1793; she d. March, 1802, æ. 65; lived and died in Temple, N. H.

549. Silas [1548], b. March 25, 1757; bap. April 3, 1757.
550. Phinehas [1557], b. June 4, 1759; bap. June 10, 1759.

551. DAVID[4] [173], (Andrew[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Sept. 28, 1717, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. Nov. 9, 1793; m. Phebe ——; she d. Dec. 20, 1795; they resided in Chelmsford, and all their children were born in that town. Jan. 11, 1773, at a town meeting called "to know the sentiments of the people, relative to certain grievances under which the Colony is laboring, particularly the extraordinary stipends of the Judges of the Superior Court appointed from home; also to consider a bill of rights and a letter from the town of Boston, a Committee was raised to report upon this subject." This committee consisted of David Spalding, Jonathan W. Austin, Esqs., Capt. Oliver Barron, Samuel Perham, and Benjamin Walker. At an adjourned meeting of the town they reported as follows:

"We are fully of opinion that the inhabitants of this province are justly entitled to all the privileges of Englishmen and to all those rights inseparable from them as members of a free community. We are sensible that some of these rights are endangered. In such unhappy circumstances, the only question that can arise is what method is most suitable to obtain redress. Whatever doubts may arise about the particular mode, of this we are confident, that all rash, passionate procedures are unjustifiable, in so delicate a crisis. When a community thinks its rights endangered, they should always weigh consequences, and be very cautious, lest they run into a step that may be attended with the most deplorable effects. 'The cause of liberty,' says a fine writer, 'is a cause of too much dignity to be settled by turbulence and tumult. When the passions of people are inflamed, reason is too often silenced; and they soon forget the cause, in which they originally embarked. Whereas the patriot on true principles always endeavors to keep those principles in view. Conscious that he is a member of Community, he will endeavour to come up to all the obligations resulting therefrom, and keep every part thereof entire. Therefore while he coolly and firmly pleads his own right, he will not forget that of his Sovereign; but will be always sensible that loyalty to the Sovereign and regard to the liberties of the Subject are very consistent things.' We are full and clear in these Sentiments and hope to regulate our conduct by them. We at present labor under grievances. We heartily concur with our brethren in Boston, that it is high time these grievances were redressed. But we think the General Court, who represent the province the only proper body to perform this task. We are therefore of opinion that we can do nothing consistent with that wisdom, which should govern a free people; but prepare the following instructions to our representative."

At a meeting of the freeholders, May 30, 1774, a committee of correspondence was appointed, consisting of nine persons. Of these, David Spalding and Simeon Spalding, were two. Such committees were chosen in all the towns of the province for the more ready diffusion of information. The same year, 1774, an effort was made to arrest the growing iniquity of the community. Of the five Selectmen that year, David Spalding and Zebulon Spalding were two. Upon the foregoing article, "the Selectmen and fifteen others were empowered to devise and execute such measures as they may think proper for promoting a reformation among persons of the above description." Of the committee of fifteen, Simeon Spalding was one. The Selectmen and Committee reported the adoption of the following measures: "That the Company of these dissolute persons be shunned; and that people leave off dealing with them as far as is consistent with good reason and justice, not entertaining them in their houses by night or by day; but manifesting a dislike to their conduct, and bearing testimony against their vicious practices, look upon them as disturbers of the peace and good order of Society; that the Committee converse with such persons and use their endeavors to reform them; and that those Continuing in such practice, be put out by the Committee to some honest and lawful employment; and finally that the town will aid, assist and support said Committee in proceeding with such offenders accordingly." This report of the committee was unanimously accepted, and the measures it prescribed were found effectual to the desired reform.

722. Col. DYER[5] [216], (Jonathan[4], John[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Nov. 14, 1732, in Plainfield, Conn.; d. April 27, 1814, at Cornish, N. H., aged 82.

Dyer Spalding, the seventh child of Jonathan Spalding and Judah Billings, his wife, was a friend and neighbor of General Israel Putnam, who was a native of Pomfret, the town adjoining Plainfield.

During the French and Indian War, from 1755 to 1760, when he was from twenty-three to twenty-eight years old, he was with Gen. Putnam, being one of Putnam's Rangers. His commission as Captain was given by King George II. In after years, this commission became a plaything for his grandchildren, who destroyed it. He was in the battle of Bloody Brook. He has marched sixty miles in one day; the compass which was his guide through the forest is still in the possession of the family. Once when out scouting in Connecticut, being short of provisions, a sheep was taken from a flock, dressed, and a quarter taken to General Putnam. "Spalding, Spalding," said the General, who lisped, "put it all out of sight before daylight."

Dudley Chase obtained a grant from Gov. Bowdoin of a township of land on Connecticut River, and called it Cornish, in honor of Cornwall in England, where his great-great-grandfather, Aquila Chase, was born in 1618. He emigrated to America, and settled in Newbury, Massachusetts.

Dyer Spalding was one of the first three settlers in Cornish, 1766. No settlements then existed north of Charlestown, called Fort Number Four, and no other fort was between this and Canada. The whole country was covered by an entire forest of the largest and tallest trees. These three men went to the Mast Camp, opposite to where Windsor, Vermont, now is, and sixteen miles north of Fort Number Four. Officers were appointed by the crown to select all trees suitable for his majesty's navy, and to mark them with the broad arrow. This Mast Camp was one station of these officers. They had marked one tree on the land Dyer Spalding bought, but his majesty never got it.

Mr. Spalding was particularly skillful in the management of a boat or an Indian canoe. On one occasion, when he went in his canoe to Fort Number Four for provisions, he found the wife of Dudley Chase, who had been left, with her seven children, in the Fort for shelter and security from the Indians. She urged Mr. Spalding to take herself and the children in the canoe to Cornish, and finally prevailed upon him to do so. Arriving near the Mast Camp, he made fast the canoe among the willows, went in search of Mr. Chase, and asked him what he supposed there was for him in the canoe. Not being able to guess, Mr. Spalding told him to come and see. Leading the way to the place of concealment, he then showed the astonished man his wife and children in the canoe. "Have you come to starve with us? Have you come to die here before your time? We have no house to shelter you; you will perish before we can erect one!" exclaimed the husband; but the wife replied, "Cheer up, cheer up; I have come to help you." The woods rang with shouts at the arrival of the first white woman and the first family on the banks of Connecticut River north of Number Four. Trees were quickly felled and peeled, and clean bark, in large sheets, was spread for a floor; other sheets were raised for walls, or laid on cross pieces for a roof. In less than three hours the house was finished, and a cheerful fire was burning in it.

Having cleared the land and planted the crop for the following season, on the approach of cold weather Mr. Spalding returned to Connecticut to pass the winter.

In Plainfield, Connecticut, on the eleventh of March, 1767, Dyer Spalding was married to Elizabeth Parkhurst, daughter of Timothy Parkhurst and Elizabeth Cady, his wife; she was born in Plainfield, Connecticut, July 7, 1734. Then, taking his wife with him, he went back to Cornish to remain permanently. Their journey was made on horseback, and, from Number Four, they came by marked trees. The bride "almost broke her neck," she said, "trying to look up to the tops of the noble pine trees." Mr. Wilson, the husband of Mrs. Spalding's sister, had chosen a farm four miles south of the Mast Camp; and in order that the two sisters might be neighbors, Mr. Spalding left the place he had at first occupied, and settled on the land next north of Wilson's. These two farms remained in the possession of the two families for a century. His house, the largest then in Cornish, is still standing, and until quite recently was the home of some of his descendants. The location was chosen with much taste, being in a grove of very large butternut trees, on a knoll, around two sides of which flowed "Colonel Spalding's Brook." The Connecticut River can be seen from the house, and Mount Ascutney rises on the opposite bank of the river. The farm consists of meadow and hill. "Col. Spalding's mountain" is five hundred feet high. "Col. Spalding's Brook," full of falls and rapids in beautiful variety, comes down the mountain, and after running parallel to the Connecticut for a mile, at last empties into it.

On the fifth of March, 1769, their eldest child was born, and named Esther, for Esther, the daughter of Lois Spalding, and wife of Thomas Wilson, who lived on the Low Meadows opposite.

On the fifth of May, 1772, their son Silas was born; and on the fifth of June, 1775, their son Lyman was born.

At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, Mr. Spalding again became a soldier. He placed his family in charge of his wife's brother, Timothy Parkhurst, a school-master, who was lame and unfit for military duty; he was an excellent penman, as is shown by the family record, which he wrote in Mr. Spalding's large family Bible.

"At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, a great many of the people of Claremont, who sided with the King, removed to Canada, or to other places under the protection of the British. No favor was shown to the tories, or even to those suspected by the people in general. Public indignation was aroused to such an extent that it was not safe for the remaining ones to live at home, but they were obliged to resort to the woods as a means of safety, visiting their homes but with the utmost caution. About fifty rods below the Rich Place, on the right side of the road as you go to Red Water Brook, there is a place known in revolutionary times to have been the resort of a band of tories, for this reason called Tory Hole. This place was peculiarly adapted to their purposes, being surrounded upon three sides by a swamp, covered with a thick growth of alders, and upon a fourth by a steep bank almost thirty feet in height; there being several paths leading to and from the camp known to the tories only. There was at this time a small company of resolute men, among whom were Col. Dyer Spalding, Timothy Atkins, and one or two of his brothers, who determined, if possible, to find this retreat and to break up the band. It was customary for the unsuspected tories in the neighborhood to convey provisions to their more unfortunate brethren at the camp, and it was in performing this important duty that their retreat was discovered. One night in the autumn of 1780, a man with a large pack on his back, was seen to pass along the road by the Rich Place, and suddenly disappear in the woods. His mysterious movements attracting attention, the whigs in the neighborhood were soon informed of the fact. A large number of them having assembled, the secret way was discovered. But on account of the increasing darkness it was not deemed prudent to continue the search; therefore a guard was stationed with orders to shoot any one who attempted to pass, and the remaining whigs retired for the night. Several hours before sunrise, the party again assembled to renew the search. As they approached the camp, several tories sprang from the bushes and started off, running towards the Connecticut River. The whigs rushed after them—the pursued having the advantage of the pursuers by several rods the start, the dense forest, and the scanty light. However, they followed them to the Connecticut River, where they found that the tories had crossed it; they plunged in, and crossed to the opposite side; there, finding the tracks of the fugitives, they followed them to the top of Ascutney Mountains, where they were found fast asleep. They immediately surrendered, and were taken to Charlestown, thence sent to Boston, and afterwards exchanged."

The above is copied from an old number of the Claremont Eagle. It is a more minute account than I was able to give, when writing to you about Colonel Dyer Spalding. A gun, which he at that time took from those tories, is now in possession of his great-grandson, John Lyman Spalding, of Amboy, Lee County, Illinois. Very truly yours,

E. P. SPALDING.

Claremont, Aug., 1870.

When Mr. Spalding received his commission as captain in the Continental army, he gave a dinner to his friends. The table was set on the level land beyond the Brook. There was dancing in the evening in the long north room. They danced to the tune of "The Captain's Lady." It must have been a popular tune then, for Burns wrote one of his songs to the same air.

Dyer Spalding was with Colonel Ethan Allen at Ticonderoga, May 10, 1775, when the surrender of that post was demanded "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." Two days afterwards, Crown Point was taken without resistance. When a detachment of Burgoyne's army, under Col. Baum, entered Vermont, it was thought they would come to Windsor. Dyer Spalding run bullets for the expected encounter; and being skillful in boating, he conveyed the troops across the Connecticut. He was present at the battle of Saratoga, and at Burgoyne's surrender, October 10, 1777.

Dyer Spalding was a Quartermaster in Col. Chase's Regt., called out by the order of Gen. Folsom on the alarm in May, 1777, serving one month and seven days.

During the Revolution, Col. Dyer Spalding held successively the ranks of Captain, major, and colonel. The war being ended, Colonel Spalding returned once more to his family in Cornish. The sword which he carried during the war is now in the possession of Lyman Dyer Spalding, of Portsmouth, N. Y.

Trinity Church was built in Cornish probable in 1794. Colonel Spalding and his family worshipped there. When no clergyman was present, Lyman Spalding read the services.

Col. Spalding was an excellent farmer, and was so ingenious he could work as a blacksmith or a mason, understood boating, was a shoemaker for himself and family, and carved bowls and dishes from knots of trees. Having been a soldier so many years, he was equal to any work or any emergency. He had served his country in two wars, had proved himself a good soldier, and had seen the United States become independent. Having been a pioneer in the wilderness, he had seen the forests recede before cultivation—the effect, in part, of his own enterprise and industry. He had a very pleasant disposition, very lively and cheerful, and was a most affectionate father.

His only daughter Esther was married in 1794 to Mr. Bill Barnes, of Claremont, N. H. Lyman graduated at Harvard University, and Cornish was his home no longer. Thus Silas alone was left with his parents. He brought his wife, Theodora Holton, there in 1799.

Colonel Dyer Spalding died April 27, 1814, aged eighty-two years. Elizabeth, his wife, died June 3, 1816, aged eighty-two years. Their remains lie in the grounds of Trinity Church, Cornish, N. H.

Esther Spalding, daughter of Dyer Spalding, went on a journey to Plainfield, Conn., to visit her grandmother, Elizabeth Parkhurst. This was in 1789, when Esther was twenty years old. She was accompanied by her brother, Silas Spalding, her aunt Wilson (Patience Parkhurst), and Dr. Parkhurst, of Connecticut. The journey was made on horseback; there was no other way to go. The first day they went to Chesterfield, N. H., about forty miles. Esther was so tired when she dismounted she almost fainted, but she bore the rest of the journey very well.

The grandmother was ninety years old, and nearly blind, so she felt how large and tall Esther was. The chimney of the house was very large, and the fireplace so capacious that benches were placed in the corners of the jambs; Esther sat on them and looked out of the top of the chimney. The party also went to Providence, R. I., where Esther bought a changeable red and black silk dress, which in after years she gave to her daughter, Mrs. Eastman.

Their children were all born in Cornish, N. H.

787. PHINEAS[5] [257], (Isaac[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Jan. 23, 1719-20, in Plainfield, Conn.

He settled in Cornwall, Conn., from which place he removed in 1757, with a large family of children, by way of Fort Edward and Lake George, to what he supposed was Panton, Vt., of which town he was an original proprietor. He remained on the Swift farm, now in Addison, Vt., till Nov. 5, 1778, when his house and goods were burned, and two of his sons taken prisoners. He escaped to Rutland, Vt., but died there not long after.

It is supposed that October, 1777, Phineas Spalding and eleven others of Panton and Addison were taken and kept awhile on board a vessel in the vicinity. Phineas Spalding was employed to dress the animals brought on board for food, until an opportunity occurred to him to jump into a small boat alongside the vessel, when he paddled for the shore, but before he reached it, he was observed and ordered back. Knowing they would fire upon him, and thinking his body too large a mark to escape, he plunged into the water, and swam safely ashore, amid the bullets of the British.

His son Nathan enlisted, and left home Jan. 20, 1776 He died at Quebec, the May following, of the small-pox, while being carried in a cart, when the army retreated.

In 1778 Maj. Carlton made a descent from Canada, and took thirty-nine men and boys prisoners, among them Halcomb Spalding.

1001. MATTHIAS[5] [324], (Simeon[4], Joseph[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. June 25, 1769, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. May 22, 1865, in Amherst, N. H., aged 95 years, 10 months, 28 days; m. Rebecca Wentworth Atherton, Sept. 16, 1806; she was b. July, 1779; d. Dec. 27, 1862, aged 84 yrs. 4 mos. 20 days.

Dr. Matthias Spalding was the ninth son and thirteenth child of Colonel Simeon Spalding, of Chelmsford, Mass. His mother, Abigail Wilson, a second wife, having children by a previous husband, was a Johnson of the fourth generation in descent from Captain Edward Johnson, of Woburn, who came from Kent County, England, in 1630. Colonel Simeon Spalding was an officer in the Revolutionary army, and on the morning of the battle of Bunker Hill, he was ordered to the American camp at Cambridge. Dr. Spalding used to say that he remembered the booming of the cannon on the day of that bloody battle.

The early years of Dr. Spalding were passed in agricultural pursuits. He worked on the farm of his father at old Chelmsford, and on the land owned by him on the Merrimack, near Pawtucket Falls, in what is now Lowell. He always retained the impress of these early labors; and although very devoted to the profession he afterwards chose, he was an enthusiast in farming, and in all its improvements to the last days of his life.

When a young man, his health became feeble, and he was advised to seek a liberal education. He accordingly commenced his studies at Westford Academy, under the tuition of the late Professor Hedge, and entered Harvard College a year and a half in advance. He graduated with honor in 1798, in a class having as its members such men as Stephen Longfellow, Rev. Dr. Channing, and Judge Story. Although the eldest member of his class, he survived all but two of his classmates.

Having adopted the profession of medicine, he studied with Dr. Benjamin Waterhouse, of Cambridge, Professor of Theory and Practice in Harvard University; and subsequently with Dr. Holyoke of Salem. In 1801 he went to London, passing a year there in attendance upon medical lectures, and devoting himself with great industry to the professional advantages afforded by the medical schools and hospitals. He attended the lectures of Sir Astley Cooper and the younger Cline, and received from them many marks of personal attention. He knew Drs. Lettsom and Jenner, with the latter of whom he enjoyed a special acquaintance. From him he derived much valuable information relating to vaccination, a subject in which he was always greatly interested. His friend and former pupil, Dr. J. P. Batchelder, of New York, says in regard to Dr. Spalding's agency in the introduction of vaccination into the United States: "From his intimacy with Jenner, and knowledge of what had transpired in London during his residence there, in relation to the efficacy of the vaccine matter to prevent smallpox, he on his return engaged most zealously in the practice of vaccination. Perhaps it would not be too much to say that he did more than any man, except Waterhouse, to introduce that important practice into this country."

On his return from England, in 1802, he was the bearer of a letter from Jenner to his former instructor, Dr. Waterhouse; with the celebrated silver snuff-box, containing vaccine, and having on it this inscription: "From the Jenner of the Old World to the Jenner of the New." Dr. Waterhouse had been the first to introduce the great discovery of Jenner into practice in this country, in the face of great opposition.

Soon after his return home, Dr. Spalding commenced practice in his native town, Chelmsford, where he remained four years, securing a large business, and a high reputation as a surgeon.

In 1806 he removed to Amherst, N. H., at that time the principal town in the southern part of the state, where he continued to reside during the remainder of his life. Here he married, in 1806, Rebecca-Wentworth, daughter of Hon. Joshua Atherton, a woman of refined and superior nature. He had eight children, two of whom are physicians.

While living at Chelmsford, he had been called on several occasions to Amherst, and other places in the vicinity. In the adjoining town of Wilton, he had successfully performed trepanning in a case of fractured skull, an operation at that time practically unknown in that region, and which gave him a favorable reputation as a surgeon. His professional calls often compelled him to take long and fatiguing rides through a country poorly supplied with good roads, some of them being mere bridle-paths, in which the use of a carriage was out of the question. Although his constitution was originally feeble, yet, by regularity of life, and a careful abstinence from all injurious indulgences, he was able to perform a large amount of professional labor. His ability to work hard and continuously on a small allowance of sleep was very unusual. It was his habit to sit up until the midnight hours, and to rise before other members of the family began to move.

Sensible of the advantage which would come to the profession and the public from a better acquaintance among medical men than their occasional meetings would afford, Dr. Spalding exerted himself to bring together the regular physicians in his neighborhood, for the purpose of mutual improvement and professional culture. To him, more than to any other man, the Southern District Medical Society of the State owed its existence. This Society was instituted in 1816, and embraced the towns of Hillsborough County, with the adjacent parts of the counties of Rockingham and Cheshire. In the first year of its existence it had on its record the names of fifteen physicians who resided in fourteen neighboring towns, his own name being first on the list. Within three years, its members increased to more than thirty. Dr. Spalding was for many years its president and librarian. In 1809 he was elected a fellow of the New Hampshire Medical Society, in which he continued an active member until age and infirmity rendered him exempt. He held the office of vice-president from 1815 to 1821 inclusive; and that of president in 1822 and 1823. In 1817, the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Medicine was conferred on him by Dartmouth College. He was

Favored with an education which, for the times, was superior to that of most of his medical brethren around him, he also possessed many natural qualities fitting him for the profession of his choice. In heart and manners he was a gentleman, with an integrity and purity of character which were never questioned. His equanimity and cheerfulness rarely forsook him. As must be the case in an extensive country practice, it often happened he was called in cases of emergency, which admitted no hesitation or delay. He could not easily avail himself of the counsel of learned and experienced men, but he was fertile in resources, and had, in a rare degree, the ability to make a practical application of the fruits of previous study and careful observation. He was calm and self-reliant, and impressed the minds of his patients with the feeling that he comprehended their situation, and that he would do all that a faithful, cautious, and intelligent physician could do.

Dr. Batchelder, of New York, who was one of his first pupils, remarks of him: "If he erred at all in the treatment of disease, it was in trusting too much to the powers of nature, especially if the patient had a good constitution." The experience of half a century in throwing light upon the curative powers of the materia medica, would perhaps recognize, in this feature of his practice, evidence of sagacious observation in advance of his times. He undoubtedly possessed this faculty in an uncommon degree. In a practice extending over so long a period, among a rural population in which changes were comparatively infrequent, he became thoroughly acquainted with the idiosyncrasies of individuals, and their constitutional or hereditary tendencies. It was interesting and instructive to notice how readily he comprehended the condition of patients with whose families he had been familiar through two or three generations.

He had great faith in true science, and genuine contempt of all quackery in medicines or practice. His decision, cheerfulness, and gentleness of manner made him very acceptable in a sick room. The children who had been his patients, became very fond of him; indeed, he was a favorite with children generally.

With all Dr. Spalding's habitual caution, he did not hesitate to make a change in received modes of treatment, when he saw sufficient reason for it. This was strikingly proved at the time of the prevalence of spotted fever, many years ago. Hot applications were considered to be the true treatment, but he had warm bricks and blankets removed, and allowed cold water to be taken in moderate quantity. This change proved of great advantage, not only to the patient's comfort, but to his recovery; and this form of treatment was afterward generally adopted.

The genial presence and hopeful spirit of Dr. Spalding made him ever welcome to the sick chamber. His vigor continued so unimpaired through a long series of years, that, at the age of threescore and ten, he performed some surgical operations. In the early part of his professional life, his office was the resort of students, sometimes sufficient in number to form quite a medical class. Many of these went into practice in neighboring towns, and through life they cherished with gratitude the remembrance of his instructions and his influence. Some of these attained distinction in other States, as physicians, surgeons, and professors in medical institutions.

A sketch of Dr. Spalding's life would be incomplete without reference to his social qualities, and the high estimation in which he was held as a citizen and a Christian. His character attracted friendship and confidence. He was cordial in his feelings, and kept alive the glow and warmth of early attachments. He was fond of poetry and music, and could sing quite well. He had a rare gift at story-telling, and his anecdotes never lost their freshness and point. As a citizen, he never sought political office, but he was always relied upon as the friend and supporter of such measures as aimed to promote education, good morals, and the general welfare. His symmetrical and genuine Christian character was illustrated by the fruits of charity and good-will. He made a conscientious and judicious use of his professional opportunities to impress the minds of his patients with the claims of religion, and he was always ready to answer those calls for spiritual guidance and consolation which sometimes appeal to the Christian physician as to no other person.

His church connection was with the Orthodox Congregational denomination, in which he maintained the office of deacon for nearly half a century. He was not a demonstrative Christian, but no one could know him well and not be convinced that religion held in his mind its place as most important of all mortal interests, and the controlling influence of his daily life. He was a constant and appreciative hearer of the gospel, and a studious reader of the Holy Scriptures. He was able to read the Bible until the ninety-fourth year of his age, after which time his faculties declined. A fortnight before his death, he spoke of his long life, of the departure before him, of his early friends, and of the comforting support of a Christian faith. In this faith he closed a long, useful, and honorable life.

His children were all born in Amherst, N. H.

He retained possession of his father's homestead, and continued through life his occupation as a husbandman. He was for several years a member of a cavalry company attached to the Seventh regiment of the State militia; and in June, 1807, he was commissioned captain of the company by Gov. Sullivan. He was also a constant participant in the affairs of the Congregational church in Chelmsford, and in 1812 was chosen deacon, by which title he was generally known until the time of his death. He was a man of uniform and contented disposition, of genial and hospitable manners, of thorough integrity, and devoted to his business; m. He was one of the early settlers of Putney, Vt., the charter of which had been given to Colonel Josiah Willard and others, by Benning Wentworth, Governor of New Hampshire, Dec. 26, 1753. He was an adherent of the jurisdiction of New Hampshire. On the 28th of Oct. 1774, he was committed to the common gaol, for high treason against the British tyrant, George III. All that they proved against him was that he said, "If the king has signed the Quebec bill, it is my opinion that he has broken his coronation oath." But the good people went and opened the prison door and let him go, and did no violence to any man's person or property. [Slade's Vt. St. Papers, p. 56.] He was distinguished for his patriotic exertions in the Revolutionary war.

Lieut. Leonard Spalding, who was the first representative chosen from this town to the Vermont Legislature, was a resident of Dummerston, Vt., Nov. 23, 1772, when with two other persons he was chosen to draw up a plan of the first meeting-house built in that town. From an old account book it appears that he was in Westmoreland, N. H., at work on a farm in May, 1772, which he bought of Abner Howe. He was an inhabitant of Putney in the summer of 1771, where he had lived for more than six years.

Lieut. Spalding settled in Putney soon after the close of the French and Indian war, during which he served as a soldier. He made a clearing on the plain east of Putney village, now known as the Dea. Jones farm. When cutting the timber, he left the trunk of the largest tree higher than the rest, and with his axe smoothed and leveled the top as well as he could. The log house was so built that this stump was in the center of the room, and it served as a table till he could find time to make one. The ground answered for a floor to his cabin. A rustic bed made of stakes and poles, overspread with hemlock boughs, served for a couch on which to sleep until his goods arrived. When the new home was ready for the reception of his family, the Lieutenant returned to Connecticut, and removed in the early spring to Vermont. He and one child, his wife and another, rode on horseback. Thomas Love, his wife's brother, with three more of the children followed, driving the ox-team and cart, loaded with a small amount of furniture and clothing.

According to the age of the fifth child, it would be in the spring of 1764 when his family came to Putney. The charges in the old account book show that the Lieutenant was not only a farmer, but was also a carpenter and trader to some extent. He bought and sold many articles usually kept in a country store.

Lieut. Spalding was the first man to start with his gun from here for the fight at Westminster, March 13, 1775. He was knocked down and wounded in that skirmish. He immediately joined the army and continued in the service much of the time during the Revolutionary war. His wife and sons, Reuben and Leonard, Jr., managed the farm during his absence, yet he came home quite often on furlough. He was in the battle of Bennington in 1777.

Mrs. Spalding was afraid of wild animals, and one night when her husband was away from home, a bear came and tried to drive away the hog, which naturally refused to go. The squealing of the hog awakened the family; and the boys, with the aid of the dog and burning torches, drove the bear away and rescued the future meat of the family.

It is related of Mrs. Spalding that she went on horseback alone every two years to visit her aged mother in Providence, R. I., as long as she lived, and who died at the advanced age of nearly one hundred years. When returning from one of these visits, she brought a willow stick, used on the way for a riding stick, and stuck it in the ground where it was moist, and it grew to be a large tree—said to be the first of its kind in the town.

Mr. Spalding held a lieutenant's commission, not only in the French and Indian war, but in the Revolutionary war also. He was wounded in the battle of White Plains, Oct. 28, 1776, in the thigh, by a bullet that remained in his leg as long as he lived; and it was troublesome at times. For his services in the war of 1776 he received a grant lying west of Lake Champlain in New York State. His commission and other papers showing service in the war were kept in the family many years; but Timothy Spalding, a grandson of Lieut. Spalding, getting the impression that he could get a pension for the heirs, all the papers were given up to him by Mrs. Anna (Spalding) Laughton. He removed soon after to the West, where he died before an application was made to the government; and the papers were never returned.

Lieut. Leonard Spalding was commissioned Captain during the Revolutionary War, and his account book dates back to 1766. The place where he cleared the land is about two miles north of the meeting house and long known as Spalding hill. He was a prominent and capable man in business affairs and in continual service of the town until the year 1788, when he was unable, on account of sickness, to act as one of the committee in finishing the building of pews in the meeting house, July 2, 1788.

Leonard Spalding, of Fulham, Vt., served in the war of the Revolution in Capt. John Nutting's Co., Col. William Prescott's Regt.; marched April 20, 1775, serving five days; served from April 25 to August 1, 1775; and was at Cambridge Oct. 2, 1775; He appears to have served throughout the war.

Although the sons of Lieut. Spalding were large, muscular persons, all but two died under forty years of age of consumption, and their sickness was brief. It is related by those who remember the circumstances, that after six or seven of the family had died of consumption, another daughter was taken, it was supposed, with the same disease. It was thought that she would die, and much was said about so many of the family dying of consumption when they seemed to have the appearance of good health and long life. Among the superstitions of those days, we find that it was said that a vine or root of some kind grew from coffin to coffin of those of one family who died of consumption and were buried side by side; and when the growing vine had reached the coffin of the last one buried, another one of the family would die. The only way to destroy the influence or effect was to break the vine; take up the body of the last one buried and burn the vitals, which would be an effectual remedy. Accordingly the body of the last one buried was taken up and the vitals taken out and burned; and the daughter, it is affirmed, got well and lived several years. The act doubtless raised her mind from a state of despondency to hopefulness.

He deeded his farm to his son Josiah, June 3, 1778. He also deeded fifty acres to his son John, June 23, 1778. In the deed to Josiah, provision was made for Margaret, wife of Capt. Spalding; also for Mrs. Betsey Stevens, Mrs. Sarah Wilder, Mrs. Anna Laughton, and Olive Spalding, his daughter. He was then near his end with consumption.

Lieut. Spalding died of consumption July 17, 1788, aged 59, in a house which he built, now standing on George Warwick's farm. He was buried at his own request in the graveyard east of the Hollow, because at that time the cemetery where his children were buried was wet ground. No stone marks his resting place. Margaret his wife resided with her son Josiah on the home farm till his death, when she went to West Dummerston after her farm was sold, and lived near her daughter, Mrs. Anna Laughton, where she died May 1, 1827, age 94. Her grave is beside that of Mrs. Anna Laughton, who died Jan. 31, 1849; but no gravestone marks the place.

In 1757 Daniel Spalding served in the French and Indian war in John Ladd's Co., in Major Tash's Detachment.

Daniel Spalding served in the war of the Revolution; he was in Capt. Jeremiah Eames' Co., serving on the frontiers two months and nineteen days. In 1776 he signed a petition as a resident of Coos Co., N. H.

They moved to Northumberland, N. H., from Londonderry,

N. H., having one child, Edward. Of the ancestors of Mrs. Spalding we have no knowledge, except that, by her own statement to her children, she was the granddaughter of Mrs. Thomas Dustin, of Indian notoriety. She was a small woman, never exceeding in weight ninety-one pounds, but very robust.

Mr. Spalding cleared up a piece of land, secured his crops, and built a hut or house, and then returned for his family. This dwelling was constructed of four posts set in the ground, in which notches were cut, and to which notches poles were fastened, and then covered with bark and boughs. The fire was built on the ground, the smoke passing out through an opening in the roof. This single room was parlor, kitchen, pantry, and sleeping apartment.

On their way to Coos County, with their scanty furniture, including the little spinning-wheel, they spent the night at Haverhill, N. H. Their little boy, then a year and a half old, while playing around a smudge, made to keep off mosquitoes, was so badly burned that he could go no farther. Mr. Spalding went on alone. In a few days the child was so much improved that his wife started after him, taking a few light articles in a copper teakettle (which is now in the possession of Mr. Savage). The distance was fifty miles; there was no road, and the way was indicated by spotted trees. She went on, sometimes fording streams up to her armpits, and at night she scooped out a bed at the roots of a tree for her child, and, covering it with moss, sat watching by its side, the silence of the night being broken only by the howlings and hootings of wild beasts. Near the close of the second day, she met her husband returning for her.

One of the greatest trials of these settlers was the depredations of the Indians. Mrs. Spalding, by her tact and discernment, obtained their good-will and respect. Although a small woman, her resolution and self-reliance were such that she always commanded obedience. On one occasion, a large Indian warrior, being troublesome and revengeful, put his hands upon her shoulders, intending evil; she stepped back, saying, "You dirty dog, put your hands upon me again if you dare!" The Indian was completely cowed, and sneaked off.

Mrs. Spalding's house was often the resort of the Indians to hold their powows. As it was not safe for a white man to be present on such occasions, she secreted her husband and children away from home. She invariably demanded of the Indians the possession of all their weapons before they commenced their carousal, and retained them until they were sober.

At the opening of the Revolutionary war, the settlers of the town, with those of Lancaster adjoining, concluded, upon consultation, that it was better to give up their new homes, and return to their former places of residence, the Indians being hostile. Mrs. Spalding alone objected. Supposing that she would consent, the others made their arrangements to leave, again appealing to her to accompany them; her answer was "Go if you have not the courage to stay at our homes." Her determination nerved the whole settlement, and they decided to remain.

At one time one of the family of her son Edward was taken dangerously ill. He went for his mother, twelve miles distant, and found her lying upon the floor before a large fire, unable to move, suffering from rheumatism. She insisted on going, and with difficulty was placed upon the back of a three-years'-old colt, the only horse that could be procured. After riding two or three miles, she brightened up, rearranged her saddle, and said to her son, "I will leave the road behind me," and was soon out of sight.

Mrs. Spalding was noted for her horsemanship. Three days before her death, being then nearly ninety, wishing to go from her grandson's to her son's house, three quarters of a mile distant, she was placed upon a spirited horse, her friends thinking to lead him. She demanded the bridle and a stick, and went off on a gallop.

These incidents show that she was a true descendant of the heroine of Dustin's Island.

He was chosen Representative to the General Court in Concord in 1784, and was the second to fill that office. He was captain of the 9th company, 3d regiment of the N. H. troops. This regiment was present at the battle of Bunker Hill, under the command of Col. Reed. The first regiment was also present under the command of Col. John Stark.

"The New Hampshire troops took their position at the rail fence, betwixt the redoubt and the Mystic river. They immediately threw up a sort of breast-work of stones across the beach to the river, and continued the rail fence down the hill to this stone wall or breast-work. This wall served a most excellent purpose, as the sharp-shooters behind it could take the most deadly aim at the advancing foe; and it is a well-established fact that the British troops in front of this wall were almost completely annihilated."

Capt. Levi Spalding was at the battle of Bunker Hill, also at Trenton and at Valley Forge during the terrible suffering in the winter of 1777-78. He was afterwards transferred and came under the immediate command of Gen. Washington. He served through the war, and was present at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. He received an honorable discharge from the War Department, and drew a captain's pension as long as he lived.

Levi Spalding was a Capt. in Col. James Reed's Regt. in the Siege of Boston, 1775. He was a private in Capt. Joseph Parker's Co., to re-inforce the army at Ticonderoga, mustered July 18, 1776. He was also a private in Capt. Stephen Parker's Co., 1777, July 19.

He was drowned Jan. 2, 1838; m. Molly Payne, May 29, 1783; she was the daughter of Solomon and Polly (Bacon) Payne, of Canterbury, Conn., and d. Oct. 23, 1821.

Mr. Spalding lived on the old family homestead in Brooklyn, Conn. He was a man of great will and self-control, never allowing himself to show strong emotions of joy or sorrow or anger. He used to say that the clergy preached the doctrine of forgetfulness as well as forgiveness of injuries; but he added, "I can forgive, but I see no sin in remembering." He was very positive in all his character, although unfortunately subject at times to mental depression. He was very methodical in all his habits, and was rarely hurried or perturbed by the movements of others. He closed a long and useful life at the age of eighty-six years.

Ebenezer Spalding served in the war of the Revolution, and was in Capt. Archelaus Towne's Co., Col. Ebenezer Bridge's Regt., at Cambridge, in 1775. He served from May 4 to Aug. 1, 1775. Place of enlistment is given as Camden, N. H.

She m. for her second husband Capt. Bela Peck. Asa Spalding graduated at Yale College, 1778; received the degree of A. M. from Harvard in 1791; studied law with Judge Adams, of Litchfield, Conn., and settled in Norwich, Conn., as an attorney in 1782.

"He was without patrimony or any special patronage, but by the force of native ability, sound judgment, and integrity, he acquired an extensive law practice, sustained various offices of trust and honor, and by diligence accompanied with strict economy in his domestic affairs, amassed a handsome property. At the time of his death in 1811, he was reckoned one of the richest men in the eastern part of Conn. Yet it was no easy matter to grow rich in the practice of the law. The price for managing a case before the Common Pleas varied only from 6 to 30 shillings, and before the Superior Court from 6 to 54 shillings."

[Hist. of Norwich, Miss F. M. Calkins.]

The following sketch is by his nephew, the Hon. R. P. Spalding, of Cleveland, Ohio:

"At the time of his settlement in Norwich, he was so poor that it is said he borrowed from Capt. Simeon Huntington, an industrious blacksmith who lived near his office, a sufficient sum of money to enable him to pay for a plain silver watch. For many years he lived in a small house, and under a system of the most rigid economy. So much so, that he is said to have reproved a brother lawyer for his extravagance in giving six cents for an orange, remarking, with emphasis, that 'it was the interest of a dollar for a whole year.'

"He was a sound lawyer, but by no means a polished advocate. It is related of him that, on one occasion, while arguing a question of law before a judge of the Superior Court who liked his dinner better than recitals from 'Coke upon Littleton,' the hour for adjournment at noon having arrived, the judge became impatient, and frequently, but without effect, presented the face of his watch to the advocate to induce him to take his seat. At last the judge in his wrath exclaimed, 'Mr. Spalding, you have talked three quarters of an hour, and have said nothing to the purpose yet.' 'Very well, your honor,' said the imperturbable lawyer, 'I expect to speak three quarters of an hour longer, and before I get through I hope I may say something to the purpose.'

"Unremitting in his attention to business, and scrupulously just in all his dealings, it is not surprising that his services were sought for by parties at a distance. On one occasion he was employed by the Hon. John Hancock, of Boston, to collect a very considerable claim in Connecticut, growing out of a mercantile transaction that had occurred at the first-named place some years before. Payment of the claim was stoutly contested by the party in Connecticut, so much so that, on two several trials, the jury had returned a verdict for defendant; but the subject of our notice, ever tenacious of the rights of his client, and especially so in this instance, where the character of the plaintiff had, to some extent, become involved, procured from the court an order for a third and last trial. He immediately wrote to Boston, and urgently entreated Governor Hancock to attend court in person, believing the prestige of his presence would favorably influence the jury. At the appointed time, Governor Hancock came in his coach, attended by a retinue of servants, to the place of trial in Connecticut. He was suffering intensely at the time from an attack of the gout, and was borne into the court-house wrapped in flannels. Impressed with a spirit of veneration for his lofty patriotism and long-continued services in the councils of the Confederacy, the judges, as a mark of distinction, invited him to a seat upon the Bench. The trial proceeded in his presence, but the result was no longer adverse or even questionable.

"The jury, with great alacrity, returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the full amount claimed, with interest.

"Mr. Spalding died very suddenly, on the 11th day of August, in the year 1811, at the early age of fifty-four. His only child, a daughter named Maria, the idol of his affections, and a young lady of the highest promise, died two years before him, at the age of twelve. For some years before his death, he had owned and occupied as a residence the spacious mansion in Norwich Town, erected by Governor Samuel Huntington. This house, with its majestic portico and massive pillars, and its surroundings of lofty and umbrageous elms, presented, in 1811, the most imposing appearance of any structure in that ancient town.

"Asa Spalding was, in politics, a democrat of the Jeffersonian school, and for many successive years was the candidate of the democratic party for Governor of Connecticut, without the remotest prospect of an election.

"He left an estate of $150,000, the fruits of his industry, a great sum for those days, to be divided equally between his sister, Mary Cady, and his three brothers, Ebenezer, Rufus, and Luther, all of whom survived him. He was an honest man, and good to the poor. The descendants of Edward of Braintree may well respect his memory."

1214. Maria-Elizabeth, b. Sept. 1, 1797; d. Aug. 4, 1809.

1215. Dr. RUFUS[6] [410], (Ebenezer[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. Jan. 8, 1760, in Canterbury, Conn., and in that portion now called Brooklyn; d. Aug. 22, 1830, at Norwich Town, Conn.; m. Lydia Paine, Jan. 10, 1782; she was the daughter of David Paine, Esq., of Canterbury, Conn., and d. Dec. 10, 1834.

Dr. Spalding received a good common-school education, and studied medicine with Dr. Perkins, a physician of some celebrity, at Plainfield, Conn. He commenced the practice of his profession at Mansfield, Conn., but on the 23d of October, 1789, he fixed his residence upon the Island of Martha's Vineyard, in Dukes County, Massachusetts, where he practised physic with great success, until April, 1812, when he returned with his family to the State of Connecticut, and took up his abode at Norwich, in the county of New London, where he lived, greatly respected, until his death, which occurred on the 22d day of August, 1830, at the age of seventy years and seven months.

Doctor Spalding is the individual alluded to in Kendall's Book of Travels, as attending to a multiplicity of avocations at one and the same time, while living on Martha's Vineyard. In the year 1807 he lived at Holmes Hole, where, with a family of nine children, he found it necessary to resort to every means by which he might "turn an honest penny." In addition to the most extensive practice on the island, as a physician, he kept a house of public entertainment, was postmaster, justice of the peace, school director, village librarian, and master of the Lodge of F. and A. M. He was a man of genial temperament, and much given to hospitality. He had an inexhaustible fund of anecdote, and was quick at repartee. His visiting acquaintance was legion.

Few persons have lived their threescore years and ten, who have left so small a number of enemies to rejoice at their departure.

His children were well trained and faithfully educated, the eldest son being sent to Yale College, where he graduated in the class of 1817. Nine of them publicly professed Christ.

Three more stately men, or more respected, than the brothers Asa, Rufus, and Luther Spalding, have seldom appeared on the stage of action. They lie near together in the old cemetery at Norwich Town.

The three brothers, Asa, Rufus, and Luther, repose in the same burial-ground; m. Lydia Chaffee, of Canterbury, Conn., March 24, 1796; she d. June 1, 1847.

He studied law with his brother, Hon. Asa Spalding, and for many years was a highly respectable practitioner in Norwich, Conn. He was at one time a judge of the county court of New London County. At the death of his brother Asa Spalding, he assumed the management of his estate as executor and principal trustee, and attended faithfully to the duties of the trust for a period of twenty years. He was a gentleman of great personal dignity, and was much respected in the circle in which he moved. In the spring of 1812 he moved into the "Huntington House," which he purchased from the heirs of Asa Spalding, where he lived until his death. His oldest son, George, was educated at Yale College, where he graduated in the class of 1818. His second son preferred the career of a tradesman and manufacturer, in which he was singularly successful.

1227. George, b. March 16, 1797; grad. Y. C. 1818; m. Helen-Maria Cowles, daughter of Gad Cowles, of Farmington, Conn., Feb. 18, 1824. He d. Nov. 22, 1858. They had no children.

1535. William [3814], b. Dec. 24, 1780.

1536. JAMES[5] [544], (James[4], Andrew[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 31, 1748, in Westford, Mass.; bap. Sept. 4, 1748; d. June 8, 1832, in New Ipswich, N. H. He and his wife Hannah were admitted to the Lord's table in Westford, Mass., July, 1770; 1st, m. Hannah Barron, Sept. 26, 1769; pub. June 17, 1769; she was b. July 17, 1747; d. Sept. 3, 1814; 2d, m. Mrs. Abigail Wilkins, widow of John Wilkins, of New Ipswich, N. H.; she d. March 3, 1841.

He first removed to Lyme, N. H., but there being much profanity there, he removed to Ashburnham, Mass., where he settled in the wilderness, on the north side of Watatic, just over the Ashburnham line, about 1773. Although without its limits, he was always socially connected with New Ipswich, N. H., where he was allowed to pay his minister and school rates, and participated in the religious and educational advantages of that town. For sixty-five years he was a constant attendant at church. When the alarm of "Concord fight" was given, he started immediately for the scene of action, while his wife and eldest son spent the afternoon of that day upon the summit of Watatic, where they saw the smoke of the burning buildings, and distinctly heard the report of the British cannon. After his second marriage, he resided on his wife's estate, near the meeting-house in New Ipswich.

James Spalding served in the war of the Revolution; served ten days on Alarm of April 19, 1775, in Col. William Prescott's Regt. He also served in Col. Marshall's Regt.; rations being allowed from Feb. 21 to March 25, 1777.

Among the personal characteristics of the descendants of James Spalding and Hannah Barron, were that all arrived at the full growth of manhood and womanhood at fifteen years of age; they were tall and well-built, with coal-black hair and eyes, inherited from Hannah Barron.

1579. SAMUEL[5] [564], (Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Jan. 31, 1726-7, (family record, Feb. 1, 1726,) in Chelmsford, Mass.

He was one of the first settlers of Merrimack, N. H., where he owned a large tract of land, from which he gave farms to several of his sons. He came up from Chelmsford, Mass., and cleared a piece of land and built a house, before he married. His original farm, lying north and west of Netacook Pond, is now in possession of the Reed family. He was a man of rather more than medium size, both in height and breadth, and had a very strong voice. It is said that it could be distinctly heard at a distance of two miles. His mark for cattle and sheep, recorded in the town books of Merrimack, Dec. 23, 1772, was a slit in the right ear, and a half-penny the under side of the same. He died in Merrimack, N. H., Sept. 11, 1797, aged 71; m. Sarah Woods, May 3, 1753. She was the daughter of Samuel Woods and Mary Parker, of Chelmsford, Mass.; she was b. March 8, 1730, and d. in Merrimack, April 10, 1815, of spotted fever, aged 85. Her mother, Mary Parker, was daughter of John and Mary Parker, of Chelmsford, Mass.

He was a Lieutenant in the Revolutionary war, and was in the battle of White Plains, Oct. 28, 1776; he received his discharge in December of the same year.

It is possible that it was his son Samuel who was Lieut., but it appears rather improbable that his son should afterwards, in 1779, 1780, and 1781, serve as a private, after having served as Lieut. in 1776; hence it is more likely that the older Samuel was the Lieut. of 1776: and the younger Samuel the private of 1779, 1780, and 1781.

Children were all born in Merrimack, N. H.

1580. Samuel [3928], b. Aug. 22, 1754.
1581. Abijah [3938], b. June 18, 1756.
1582. Sarah, b. Oct. 14, 1758; d. Feb. 8, 1774.
1583. Henry [3942], b. Nov. 3, 1760 (the Merrimack records say Nov. 23, 1760).
1584. Oliver [3954], b. Feb. 6, 1763.
1585. Isaac [3958], b. Aug. 20, 1765.
1586. Silas [3968], b. June 11, 1767.
1587. Asa [3978], b. April 5, 1769.

1588. HENRY[6] [567], (Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Feb. 11, 1736; m. Mary ——.

Henry Spalding, Jr., of Chelmsford, Mass., was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, serving as a private under Capt. Oliver Barron; he marched to Cambridge on Alarm of April 19, 1775.

1589. Thankful, b. Dec. 3, 1761.

1590. ZEBULON[6] [569], (Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. March 2, 1744, in Chelmsford, Mass.; m. Lydia Wright, of Westford, Mass., Feb. 12, 1767; pub. Sept. 4, 1766. He resided in Westford, Mass. He is called "Zebulon, Jr.," in the Westford records, which is supposed distinguishes him from Zebulon, the son of Thomas.

1591. Lydia, b. Jan. 31, 1768; m. Ephraim Spalding [3657], April 5, 1792.
1592. Zebulon [3990], b. April 9, 1770.
1593. Sarah, b. June 25, 1771; m. Dea. Timothy Howard, July 15, 1788; he d. March 13, 1846; she d. March 31, 1856, in Lunenburg, Mass. They left ten children and numerous descendants, all of the highest respectability.

1596. Olive, b. Jan. 6, 1776; d. Aug. 30, 1778.
1597. Dolly, b. Oct. 12, 1777.
1598. Sherebiah [3998], b. Feb. 4, 1779.
1599. Olive, b. July 31, 1780.
1600. Anna, b. June 20, 1782.
1601. Phinehas-Wright [4010], b. Jan. 13, 1784.

1602. DANIEL[5] [570], (Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. June 21, 1746, in Chelmsford, Mass.; d. 1805 in Merrimack, N. H.; 1st, m. Hannah Putnam, June 8, 1769; 2d, m. Mary Butterfield. Early in life Daniel settled, with his brother Samuel, in Merrimack, N. H.

Daniel Spalding was a soldier in the war of the Revolution, and served as a private in Lieut. Daniel Sherwin's Co., Col. James Prescott's Regt., and marched to Cambridge April 20, 1775; he also served in Capt. Henry Farwell's Co., Col. William Prescott's Regt., for ninety-eight days, return being dated Aug. 1, 1775. He was also in Capt. Aaron Jewett's Co., Col. Samuel Bullard's Regt., from Sept. 10 to Nov. 29, 1777; marched to Saratoga, serving two months and nineteen days.

The following is a copy of the will of Daniel Spalding, of Merrimack, N. H.:

In the name of God, Amen, I Daniel Spalding of Merrimac, in the County of Hillsborough, and state of New Hampshire, being of sound mind, memory and understanding, but being mindful of the uncertainty of this life, do make this my last will and testament, in manner and form following, that is to say:

Imprimis: I will that out of my estate my beloved wife has annually delivered to her, as soon as good and merchantable, ten bushels of rye, and ten bushels of Indian corn, and fifty pounds of good beef with sufficient sauce for her use, one cow kept and driven to and from pasture as usual for her convenience, two sheep kept and the wool delivered her annually, twelve pounds of flax annually and three barrels of cyder annually when made on the place, I leave one good comfortable room, found her with sufficient fire wood ready cut at the door, with the use of my household furniture during the time she remains my widow, or any bodies else, and not otherwise.

Item: To my son Jonathan I give and bequeath one dollar.

Item: To my son Willard I give and bequeath one dollar.

Item: To my son Putnam I give and bequeath his choice of lots No. 38 and No. 137 in the Township of Tynytown, in the County of Lincoln, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The other I give unto my sons Daniel and David.

Item: Unto my daughters Mary and Sarah, when they shall arrive unto the age of twenty-one years, I give and bequeath each a good cow, and at the decease of my wife I give and bequeath them my household furniture.

Item: My just debts and funeral charges I order to be paid by my sons Benjamin and Solomon, to whom I give and bequeath all the residue and remainder of my estate, real and personal, wherever found, or however situated.

Lastly I do make, constitute and appoint my son Benjamin Spalding, my sole executor to this my will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by me made, and do publish and declare this to be my last will and testament; in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this, the twenty-sixth day of August, in the year of our Lord 1801.

DANIEL SPALDING. [SEAL].

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the testator as his last will and testament, in the presence of us, who have, at his request, and in his presence, and the presence of each other, subscribed our names as witnesses.

SILAS SPALDING.
LEARNED SWALLOW.
JOS. FARWELL.

Copy examined by Charles H. Atherton, Reg.

TO ALL PEOPLE to whom these presents shall come:

Ebenezer Champney, Esq., Judge of the Probate Court, &c., in and for the County of Hillsborough, and State of New Hampshire, sendeth GREETING.

Know you that on the day of the date hereof, before me at Amherst in said County, the instrument which is hereunto annexed (purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Daniel Spalding, late of Merrimac, in said County, deceased), was presented for Probate by Benjamin Spalding the Executor therein named, and Silas Spalding and Joseph Farwell two of the Witnesses, whose names are thereto subscribed, having made solemn oath that they saw the said Testator sign seal, and heard him declare the said instrument to be his Last Will and Testament. That he was then to the best of their judgment of sound and disposing mind, and that they with Learned Swallow subscribed their names together, as Witnesses to the execution thereof in the presence of the said Testator.

I DO therefore prove, approve and allow of the said instrument as the last Will and Testament of the said deceased, and do hereby commit the administration thereof in all matters, the same concerning and of his estate, whereof he died, seized and possessed in said State, unto his the aforesaid Executor well and faithfully to execute the said Will and Testament, and to administer the estate of said deceased according to the same who accepted of his said Trust, and gave Bond as the law directs to return upon oath a true and perfect inventory of said Estate into the Probate Office for said County within three months next ensuing, and also render a just and true account of his said Administration upon oath, within one year next ensuing.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and the seal of the Court of Probate for said County. Dated at Amherst aforesaid, the 19th day of Feby. Anno Domini, 1805.

E. CHAMPNEY.

He was a farmer, and passed his whole life in the house in which he was born, in Cornish, N. H. It was situated on the River road, two miles below the bridge which crosses the Connecticut to Windsor, Vt. Having, at one time, been annoyed by a weasel that made many visits to his poultry yard, he determined to shoot it if possible. He found the weasel's home, and not far off lay a gosling and a duck, which had just been killed. When the weasel put his head out of the hole, Mr. Spalding fired; but the nimble creature had found time to run some distance, quite out of the range of the shot. Sanford, the son of Mr. Spalding, exclaimed, "Father! that is not the way to shoot a weasel; let me have the gun." So he took it, the animal, meantime, having gone home again; and, aiming at the hole, he fired; the weasel was just coming out; the shot entered his head, and he was dead in an instant. "Always fire at the spot a quarter of a second before the weasel comes to it: that is the way to shoot a weasel, father."

2032. Dr. LYMAN[6] [725], (Dyer[5], Jonathan[4], John[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. June 5, 1775, in Cornish, N. H.; d. Oct. 30, 1821, in Portsmouth, N. H.; m. Elizabeth Cowes, Oct. 9, 1802; she was the daughter of Peter Cowes, of Portsmouth, N. H., and d. June 2, 1838.

He was graduated at the Medical School of Harvard University, in 1797. In 1798, while yet a student, he assisted Professor Nathan Smith in establishing the medical school at Dartmouth College, collected and prepared a chemical apparatus, delivered the first course of lectures on chemistry at the opening of the institution, and published a new nomenclature of chemistry, proposed by Messrs. de Morveau, Lavoisier, Berthollet, and Fourcroy, with additions and improvements (1799). His medical studies were afterwards continued at the medical schools of Cambridge and Philadelphia, and he entered upon the practice of medicine at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1799. He devoted much attention to the study of the human structure, was a very skillful anatomist, and his admirable anatomical preparations, particularly of the lymphatics, are now in the cabinets of our first institutions. In 1812, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Western District of the State of New York, at Fairfield, Herkimer County, was incorporated. Doctor Spalding being elected president, and professor of anatomy and surgery, made annual visits to this school. In 1813, he removed to the city of New York, and a few years later resigned his position at the college. With Doctor Spalding originated the plan for the formation of the Pharmacopœia of the United States, by the authority of all the medical societies and medical schools in the Union. In January, 1817, he submitted the project to the New York County Medical Society; in February, 1818, it was adopted by the Medical Society of the State of New York, and ordered to be carried into execution by their committee, Doctor Spalding being one of the number. All the medical schools and societies appointed delegates, who at once commenced their labors, and the first edition of the work was published in 1820. To keep pace with the advance of medical science, a new edition is published every ten years. Dr. Spalding was a contributor to the New England Journal of Medicine, the New York Medical Repository, Le Nouveau Journal de Medicin of Paris, and other medical and philosophical journals; and besides several lectures and addresses, he published "Reflections on Fever, and particularly on the Inflammatory Character of Fever," "Reflections on Yellow Fever Periods," and "A History of the Introduction and Use of Scutellaria Lateriflora, as a remedy for preventing and curing hydrophobia" (1819).

Doctor Spalding was active in introducing into the United States the practice of vaccination as a preventive of small pox, corresponding with Dr. Edward Jenner for that purpose. He was a trustee of the only free schools which New York then possessed, and aided in the establishment of the first Sunday schools in that city.

The colony of Conn. claimed, by virtue of its charter, a tract of land in Pennsylvania, over 120 miles in length and 60 in breadth. Under this claim, the Susquehanna Company was formed in 1754, at Hartford, and purchased land on the Susquehanna River, of the Indians, and for many years there was a gradual emigration in progress from Conn. Among the emigrants was Simon Spalding, who removed to Wyoming with his family at an early period of its settlement. His marriage, and the births of his three oldest children, are recorded in Plainfield, Conn. So that we infer he left soon after 1771. He removed from Wyoming with his family and settled in Sheshequin, Bradford Co., Pa., May 30, 1783. In command of his company, he was with Gen. Sullivan in his expedition in 1779; and at that time, as the army passed through Sheshequin valley, he was so impressed with the appearance and location of the place, that he resolved to make it his future residence. He first bought of the Susquehanna Company, under the Connecticut title; and farms were allotted to himself, his sons, and sons-in-law, in the upper part of the valley, extending from the river back to the mountain. He was a large man, of imposing and pleasing appearance, and was highly popular with the Indians.

He was a captain in the Revolutionary war, and among other engagements, took part in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown, and in the defense of Fort Mifflin. He was at Valley Forge with his company. After the war he was commissioned Brigadier-General in the Militia of Pennsylvania. He was a member of the Connecticut Society of the Cincinnati.

In 1791 and 1792 Gen. Spalding represented Luzerne County (which then included the present Bradford County) in Pennsylvania Legislature, and took an active interest in all popular movements that tended to good government.

Miner's "History of Wyoming" gives the following: "At that terrible bombardment, Lieut. Spalding commanded a detachment of Ransom's Company. Almost every shot from the British tore through the fort, and the men fell on every side. A soldier of Spalding's threw himself flat on the ground. 'Nobody,' he said, 'can stand this!' 'Get up, my good fellow,' said Spalding, coolly; 'I should hate to have to run you through: You can stand it, if I can;' and the man returned cheerfully to his duty."

He served as 2d Lieut. of Capt. Samuel Ransom's Co., Wyoming Valley; commissioned Aug. 26, 1776. Commissioned 1st Lieut. Jan. 1, 1777; promoted Capt. June 24, 1778. He commanded the United Company, and engaged in Sullivan's Indian Expedition, 1779. He was transferred to 1st Regt., Conn. Line, formation of 1781-1783; retired by consolidation, Jan. 1, 1783.

The following is an extract from a letter from the granddaughter of Gen. Simon Spalding:

'I have often heard my mother [5147] tell this anecdote of Grandma Spalding. At the time of the French war, her husband, Gen. Simon Spalding, had to go back to Connecticut to raise a regiment of men. While he was gone, the women and children were shut up in a Fort for safety, among them Grandma Spalding and her two little children. While Gen. Simon Spalding was gone, the Fort was attacked by the savages, and Grandma and one or two others made their escape—the rest were all murdered. Well she knew the path her husband had taken, and she started in that direction. She had only two biscuits for herself and two children; when these were gone she expected to starve in the wilderness. But when she had been traveling two days, and had shaken the pillow-case that had contained her biscuits, and gotten the last crumb, she met her husband with his regiment, hastening by forced marches, to reach the Fort. My mother said she had heard Grandmother tell this story many, many times, but never without weeping. JULIA."

The following is an invitation from Gen. Simon Spalding to Judge Obadiah Gore and family, to attend the wedding of his youngest daughter, who was married to Col. Joseph Kingsbury, late of Sheshequin:

FEBRUARY, YE 1st, 1797.

DEAR SIR:—This evening I expect to have my last daughter married. Could you and Mrs. Gore, and Mr. Avery and wife, make it convenient to call between sundown and dark? I shall esteem it a favor.

Your humble servant,

Obadiah Gore and family. SIMON SPALDING.

The children of Simon Spalding and his wife Ruth were as follows:

2105. Sarah, b. Jan. 31, 1763; m. Joseph Kinney.
2106. John [5132], b. Nov. 14, 1765.
2107. Ruth, b. July 2, 1771; m. Mr. Hutchins.
2108. Rebecca, b. Dec. 16, 1773; m. William-Witter Spalding [2006].
2109. Mary, b. July 20, 1776; m. Moses Park, of Stonington, Conn.; he was a Baptist minister, and preached in a small Baptist church in Sheshequin, of which Joseph Kinney was deacon. They, with many others, afterwards embraced Universalism.
2110. Anna, b. April 21, 1779; m. Col. Joseph Kingsbury, Feb. 1, 1797.
2111. George, b. Sept. 5, 1782; d. May 26, 1800.
2112. Chester-Pierce [5147], b. June 18, 1784.

2113. Dr. NOAH-BILLINGS[6] [765], (Simon[5], Edward[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Jan. 10, 1751, in Plainfield, Conn.; m. Eliza Ripley, in 1771.

He moved with a colony from Connecticut to Wyoming Valley, Pa., at or about the same time as did his brother Simon [2104] and family.

Dr. Noah was a physician, and enlisted as surgeon during the Revolutionary war; was taken prisoner, and died on board the prisonship "Halifax." His wife, Eliza Ripley (with two babes—Coit, six years of age, and Polly, two years of age), was warned of the coming massacre by a friendly Indian, whom Dr. Noah had cared for when sick. The Indian came to her home at night, put her and her two children on the back of his pony, and assisted her flight; and, as she rode through the darkness, she saw the flames of burning homes, and heard the yells of the Indians in their fiendish work.

Mrs. Spalding afterward married a Mr. Strong, and their descendants (Strong's) still live in Syracuse, N.Y.

2114. Coit [5151], b. May 10, 1772.
2115. Polly (or Nancy), b. in 1775; m. Warren Ellis; their descendants still live in Syracuse, N.Y.

2116. ZADOC[6] [768], (Willard[5], Edward[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. May 8, 1746, in Killingly, Conn; res. Killingly, Conn.; m. Hannah Learned, Feb. 16, 1775.

Zadoc Spalding served in the war of the Revolution as a private in Capt. Daniel Tilden's Co., Col. Samuel McLellan's Regt.; arrived in camp July 15, 1778. This regiment, raised for one year's service from March 1778, appears to have served in Tyler's Brigade under Sullivan in Rhode Island, August to September, 1778.

Children all died of consumption, and were never married.

2117. Willard, b. Nov. 28, 1775.
2118. Elisha, b. Oct. 30, 1778.
2119. James, b. Sept. 29, 1780.

2158. PHILIP[6] [789], (Phineas[5], Isaac[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]); d. about 1821, in Panton, Vt.; m. Hannah Sturgis.

Philip and his brother George were captured on his father's farm, Nov. 5, 1778, and carried to Canada in company with other prisoners. They, however, managed to escape; and Philip, with some others, wandered in the woods twenty-one days, when they struck the Connecticut River at the Great Ox-bow, in Newbury, Vt. George was retaken and put in irons, but afterwards he was offered his liberty if he would first go one trip in a vessel to Great Britain. Stopping at some port in Ireland, he availed himself of his permission to go ashore with the crew, when he was taken by a press-gang, and nothing more is known of him. Philip, after his return, enlisted and served through the Revolutionary war; then married and moved on to the farm on which his son, Hiram Spalding, lived until his death, the farm still remaining in the family (1896).

He was one of the oldest settlers of Niagara County, with the history of which he has been closely identified for over half a century. For many years, and until the infirmities of age disqualified him for active pursuits, he occupied a leading position in business and politics. He was an earnest Henry Clay whig, and latterly an equally earnest Republican. He had been a witness of our country's progress and prosperity from soon after the Revolution, through the war of 1812, and the late rebellion; had seen Washington, Putnam, Lafayette, and other Revolutionary heroes. In his last moments he was surrounded and tenderly cared for by his sons, F. Spalding, Esq., late collector of customs for Niagara District; Rev. V. Spalding, of Michigan; and his daughter, Mrs. Whitman, of Lewiston, N.Y.

"He was one of the hardy pioneers of western New York, the race of which is very nearly extinct. It is truly said of him that 'he was a kind father, a true friend, hospitable to the stranger, kind to the poor and needy, generous and upright, and just towards all men; we shall not look upon his like again.'

"Mr. Spalding was a favorite with both old and young; and many a time has the writer of this seen the good, kind, old man, when nearly fourscore years and ten, stop to say a pleasant word to the children of the village—by whom he was most affectionately and respectfully regarded—when at their sports, and demand in his humorous way: Why they didn't choose him on one side?

"The funeral took place at Lewiston, yesterday, and was largely attended, among those present being several friends and relatives from this city."

He fought in the battle of Bunker Hill, and killed the first man, a lieutenant, much to his disgrace at the time. Sharpshooting was not then in repute, and his family apologized for his act as accidental. The orders were not to fire until the command was given. These he disobeyed. While the British forces were advancing, a lieutenant was in the act of jumping over a stone wall, in the direct range of the musket of Joseph. The aim was so good, the excitement and fear of losing his man so great, that a curl of the finger did the deed; then followed an irregular fire. The officer in command struck him a stunning blow on the head with his sword, and he was put under arrest for disobeying orders.

The following is his epitaph: "Sacred to the Memory of Mr. Joseph Spalding, who died July 31, 1820, Aet. 64, in hope of eternal life which God who cannot lie hath promised to believers in Christ. He was among the brave asserters and defenders of the liberties of his country at Bunker Hill, where he opened the battle by firing upon the enemy before orders were given; and after enjoying for many years the blessings of civil and religious liberty in common with others,

"He 'sunk to rest
With all his country's honors blest.'"

Edward Spalding's academic education was gained at Chelmsford and Derry, where he was fitted for Dartmouth College, from which he graduated in the class of 1833. In the following year he began the study of medicine with his father, and completed it by taking three courses of lectures at the Harvard Medical School, receiving his degree in 1837. Shortly after his graduation he settled permanently in Nashua, which during his long life was to grow from a town of 5,000 inhabitants to a city of 25,000. Entering into partnership with one of her established physicians, he was soon engaged in a widening field of professional activity. It was not long, however, before those nearest him recognized in Dr. Spalding an aptitude for affairs which was to a constantly increasing extent employed in the settlement of estates and the management of private trusts. So numerous and engrossing did these engagements become, that they gradually diverted him from the exercise of his profession, and finally occupied most of the time that was not given to employments of a more public nature. In the discharge of these duties he became noted for sagacity in investment, promptness in settlement, wisdom in counsel, and kindness in his relations to the beneficiaries of the trusts. No objection was ever made to his accounts presented to the courts, or to the management of the funds intrusted to him. Even in the last year of his life, at the age of nearly eighty-two years, three important estates were in his hands as executor or trustee.

Other offices of a business character came to him in the development of the town and the manufacturing industries which have been the principal source of her prosperity. Dr. Spalding was a director of the Nashua Cotton Manufacturing Corporation from 1855, and of the Jackson Company from 1875, and was president of both companies from 1883 until his death. During this long term of service, he was recognized as a friend of the laborer, although a director of capital; and so far did this confidence extend, that on the occasion of a strike in one of the mills, his advice was sought and followed by the strikers as that of a fair and just man. He was one of the projectors, and for twenty-three years President of the Pennichuck Water Works; for twenty years a director of the Nashua & Lowell Railroad; for eighteen years a director, and for ten years President of the Peterborough Railroad; a director of the Nashua Savings Bank, and for many years its treasurer and president; for many years a director and subsequently president of the Indian Head National Bank. These were some of the official positions he held in the business development of Nashua. They represent only a small part of his activity, whose influence was felt in every enterprise affecting her growth and welfare. In all these relations it was said of him that he was a man of few words but firm convictions; courteous and modest in expressing differences of opinion, he left no sting in the manner of urging them.

The cause of public education early enlisted Dr Spalding's support. During the greater part of his residence in Nashua, he served upon her School Committee and Board of Education, retiring from the presidency of the latter in 1882. As his wise and discriminative spirit in educational methods became recognized beyond merely local limits, his Alma Mater called him to her councils, in 1866 he was elected a trustee of Dartmouth College; he was also a trustee of the School of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts during the whole time of its existence as a separate department. With his co-trustee and brother-in-law, the Rev. Dr. Davis of Amherst, he had charge of the Wentworth Fund from the time when it came under the management of the college, until 1891, when he retired from office. Of the one hundred and forty-two trustees since its foundation, only eleven had equalled his term of service; none had surpassed him in loyalty and devotion. The Atherton prizes for excellence in Greek, the joint gift of Dr. Spalding and Dr. Davis, attest in permanent form his attachment to an institution of which Daniel Webster had said, "She is a small college, but there are those who love her." A member for many years of the New Hampshire Historical Society, his assistance was given to the preparation and publication of several genealogical and town histories. The public library of Nashua, of which he was a trustee from its foundation, has been indebted to him and to his family in its administration and choice of books.

Dr. Spalding was for some years a trustee of the New Ipswich Appleton Academy, whose name was derived from her greatest benefactor, the Hon. Samuel Appleton, of Boston. He was also a trustee of the State Insane Asylum at Concord.

The respect which Dr. Spalding gained in the community found expression in his election to important political offices. He was chosen mayor of Nashua, in 1864, in the height of the Civil War. Outspoken in his attachment to the Union, the common soldier found in him a friend, and more recently the local Post of Grand Army lamented his death as that of a benefactor. A Republican from the organization of the party, he was a delegate to the National Convention of 1864, a member of the convention to revise the State Constitution in 1876, and of the Governor's Council in 1878 and 1879.

Successful in his public life, Dr. Spalding was not less fortunate in his domestic relations. He was married in 1842 to Dora Everett, second daughter of Joseph and Mary Appleton Barrett, of New Ipswich, the latter a sister of the eminent Boston merchants, Samuel and Nathan Appleton. Until her death in 1887, Mrs. Spalding worthily supported her husband in the discharge of the social duties which his position in the town and church imposed upon him. Of the rare and noble influence she exerted, of the incalculable benefits her benign presence shed around her, of the material assistance given to the sick and the destitute, of the encouragement which the young, and the solace which the mourner received from her, only those can fitly speak who followed the more than forty years of her beneficent married life.

The record of Dr. Spalding's career is no less admirable in its religious aspect. His entire life, busied as it was with multifarious cares, was controlled by a sincere and unchangeable christian principle. To the First Congregational Church of Nashua, he was a tower of strength. Each successive pastor looked to him for a moral support in parochial matters which was never refused, while the society was largely indebted to him for the erection of two costly edifices. Constant in his attendance upon Divine worship and the weekly prayer meetings, for more than half a century he taught a class in the Sunday School, from which hundreds of young men went into life enlightened by his expositions of Scripture and fortified by his example. Nor was his religious interest confined to his own church or city. A liberal supporter of the cause of domestic and foreign missions, he was for seven years a vice-president of the American Bible Society, and for thirty-five years president of its auxiliary, the New Hampshire Bible Society.

That Dr. Spalding could lead so active a life during a period granted to but few men was largely due to the regularity with which he relaxed the strain of business. Described in his boyhood as fond of fishing and athletic sport, he retained in manhood the tastes which led him yearly to renew his strength in the forests and by the streams of northern New England. Even what others would only regard as a health-giving pastime, he made subservient to the public good by devoting his intimate acquaintance with animal life to the protection and enlargement of the inland fisheries of New Hampshire. Not merely familiar with the migratory habits of fish but practically acquainted with their artificial propagation, he took part in efforts made to restore them to the streams from which they had been shut out by the obstructions of manufacturing corporations. As chairman of the Commission for several years from 1877, he revised and codified the fish and game laws of the State. In the pursuit of his favorite recreation he retained to the last his enthusiasm and skill. A member of the Parmachenee Club, leasing in Northern Maine large tracts with their lakes and streams, he made his annual visit in the early summer of 1895, and had never seemed to enjoy more fully the companionship of his friends and the invigorating sport of the expert angler. In the midst of this communion with nature, in the depths of the primeval forest and beside the waters he loved, he passed away suddenly but peacefully, early on the twenty-second of June. Tender hands bore him to his home where he lay in state amid the silent wheels of the industries he had fostered, and, after services impressive in their simplicity, he was buried among his kindred at Amherst.

Dea. Spalding entered the town of Sharon, Vt., on the 16th of September, 1769, and took up his residence on the farm which he occupied at his death, making a period of eighty years. At the time of his settlement there were only seven families in town, and no inhabitants in Royalton, Barnard, or Pomfret. In consequence his early life was passed amidst the hardships and sufferings incident to pioneers of the wilderness, and had much influence, no doubt, in forming that energy and fearlessness of character for which he was well known. He was a soldier of the Revolution, and drew a pension. His personal history is identified with the history of the place of his residence. He knew it all, and was himself a part. He had twelve children, nine sons and three daughters—a circle that was unbroken until November, 1847, when he was called to mourn the death of Dr. Jason C. Spalding. That event called together under the paternal roof the whole family, and presented not a faint picture of "olden times." There was seen the beauty and power of religion: the aged father, venerable for his gray hairs, and yet more for his love and fear of God, like a patriarch, stood beside the remains of the departed one, and urged upon the living, with great fervor of spirit, faithfulness in the service of that God in whom he trusted.

Dea. Spalding had been a member of the Congregational church sixty-one years, during forty-two of which he sustained the office of deacon. He loved "the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob." Having become a member very soon after the church was organized, he had been with it through all its seasons of prosperity and adversity, and was prominent among the few upon whom devolved the responsibility of supporting the Gospel.

His interest was a growing interest. Whilst old age removed him from the busy and attractive scenes of the world, it did not abate his devotedness to the cause of Christ. For that, there was a growing love; it was the theme of thought and conversation; the Bible was his daily companion; he loved the doctrines of grace; and the church, of which he was an honored member, is a witness to his faithfulness.

He always took a deep interest in the welfare of the town and state, and was called upon many times to fill various offices of trust, being Justice of the Peace for more than half a century.

Solomon Spalding served in the Revolutionary war as a private in Capt. John William's Co., Col. Obadiah Johnson's Regt.; entered service Jan. 8, 1778. He read law with Judge Zephaniah Swift, of Windham, Conn., but on change of religious views, sought the ministry, and entered the sophomore class at Dartmouth College at the age of twenty-one. Graduating there in 1785, he studied divinity, and became a licentiate of the Windham, Conn., Cong. Association, Oct. 9, 1787; preached eight or ten years, and, being in this time ordained an evangelist, received several offers to settle, that were declined, owing to ill health. In 1795, he was married, and soon after went into business with his brother Josiah, at Cherry Valley, N.Y., but both removed the store to Richfield, N.Y., in 1799. Here they purchased large tracts of land in Pennsylvania and Ohio, to superintend which Solomon moved to Salem, Ohio, but the war of 1812 deranged their plans and caused great losses. Josiah, then visiting his brother, found him in poor health and low spirits, writing a work of fiction, suggested by the opening of a mound, in which was discovered human bones and some relics indicative of a former civilized race. He entitled his work a 'Manuscript Found,' and in it imagined the fortunes of the extinct people. Josiah left him thus employed. Not long after, probably in 1814, Solomon went to Pittsburg, Pa., where he was followed by Sidney Rigdon, then a printer and afterwards a noted Mormon. He told his employer of Spalding's novel, who borrowed the manuscript, and offered to print it. This was refused, and the author wandered to Amity, the place of his death. His widow returned to New York with the manuscript, and while absent from home, a stranger called on her and desired to examine it, that he might confirm or refute a report current in the West, that it had become the Mormon bible. She permitted him to visit her house and obtain it from a certain chest. He went and reported that he could not find it. Mrs. Spalding never saw it after this. The probability is, that Rigdon copied the work at Pittsburg, and that the stranger purloined the original to avoid a future exposure. The uniform testimony of those who read the work is, that the basis, and in great part, the form thereof, now constitute the Mormon bible. And thus a clergyman was most unwittingly and innocently the medium of a delusion, whose dimensions have become so large, and its impostures so monstrous."

[Dartmouth Alumni, p. 32.]

EASTFORD, Jan. 6, 1855.

REV. SIR:—I received your letter of the 21st of December requesting me to give you a sketch of my brother Solomon's life. I should be pleased to oblige you satisfactorily, but my recollection and faculty of mind is so much impaired with age and infirmity, being within two months of ninety years of age, I can give but a broken narrative. He was born 1761. In the first part of the Revolutionary war he was in the army or at work on the farm. I do not recollect when he commenced study for education at High School, nor how long he continued there; but when he left there he went to study with the celebrated Zephaniah Swift to prepare for the practice of law. How long he studied with him I do not recollect; but before he got through, his mind changed from law to gospel, and he left and went to college; but when I do not recollect. I believe he was in college about three years. He did not study theology at any public school after he left college. When he left college he was out of health, and was so for years. He was approbated to preach as a Congregationalist, and followed that calling a number of years, but never settled, on account of his health, though often urged. In 1795 he married. I went to Cherry Valley and commenced merchandising. I had no wife. He followed soon after with his wife and joined me in partnership. He left the store to my care. He took the charge of an academy and preached occasionally for a while. We continued in Cherry Valley about four years, and then we moved our store sixteen miles, to Richfield. We soon after went into a large speculation in new land in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and after a few years he moved out there with his wife; she never had any children. He sold a large amount of land on credit, principally to people in Ohio. The war that broke out with England seriously affected that country. That circumstance, with some other misfortunes that happened, placed us in difficult circumstances. We were under the necessity to make great sacrifices to pay our debts. I went to see my brother and staid with him some time. I found him unwell, and somewhat low in spirits. He began to compose his novel, which it is conjectured that the Mormons made use of in forming their bible. Indeed, although there was nothing in it of Mormonism or that favored error in any way, yet I am apprehensive that they took pattern from it in forming their delusion. You may find my reason in what follows. In the town where he lived, which I expect is now called Salem, Ohio, there is the appearance of an ancient fort, and near by a large mound, which, when opened, was found to contain human bones. These things gave it the appearance of its being inhabited by a civilized people. These appearances furnished a topic of conversation among the people. My brother told me that a young man told him that he had a wonderful dream. He dreamed that he himself (if I recollect right) opened a great mound, where there were human bones. There he found a written history that would answer the inquiry respecting the civilized people that once inhabited that country until they were destroyed by the savages. This story suggested the idea of writing a novel merely for amusement. The title of his novel, I think, was "Historical Novel," or "Manuscript Found." This novel is the history contained in the manuscript found. The author of it he brings from the Old World, but from what nation I do not recollect; I think not a Jew; nor do I recollect how long since, but I think before the Christian Era. He was a man of superior learning suited to that day. He went to sea, lost his point of compass, and finally landed on the American shore; I think near the mouth of the Mississippi River. There he reflects most feelingly on what he suffered, his present condition and future prospects; he likewise makes some lengthy remarks on astronomy and philosophy, which I should think would agree in sentiment and style with very ancient writings. He then started and traveled a great distance through a wilderness country inhabited by savages, until he came to a country where the inhabitants were civilized, cultivated their land, and had a regular form of government, which was at war with the savages. There I left him and never saw him nor his writings any more. He soon after moved to Pittsburg, in Pennsylvania, where he lived awhile and then moved farther, to a place where he died. His widow then returned to the State of New York, and lived there awhile and then came to Connecticut. She informed me, if I recollect right, that my brother continued his history of the civilized nation and the progress of the war until the triumph of the savages to the destruction of the civilized government. Likewise she informed me that soon after they arrived at Pittsburg a man followed them, I do not recollect his name, but he was afterwards known to be a leading Mormon. He got into the employment of a printer, and he told the printer about my brother's composition. The printer called and requested the privilege of taking it home to read. He, my brother, let him take it; he kept it some time, and then he urged him, my brother, to let him print it. He, my brother, would not consent, but took it back, and she said that she brought it to New York and put it into a chest where she lived. And at a time when she was from home a stranger called upon her and requested her to let him see the novel that her husband composed. He said that he lived at the West, and it was reported there that it gave rise to Mormonism; if not true he wished to counteract the report. She told him that he might go to the house; it was in a chest, he might take it and examine it. He went to the chest, and I think she told me that he said that he could not find it, but it has never been found since. But what use could they make of it? I never saw the Mormon bible but once, and then only for a minute, no time to examine it. I have but little knowledge of Mormonism; I have been out of the way of it. You, sir, no doubt, have more knowledge; but if I have been rightly informed, there is a striking resemblance between the first start and introduction of the Mormon bible and my brother's novel. They both claimed that the manuscripts from which they pretend they copied were of very ancient date and written by men that came here from the old world. The Mormon bible was not published until after my brother's death.

Yours respectfully,

JOSIAH SPALDING.

The following is a copy of a letter written forty years ago, and published in the Telegraph:

ORIGIN OF MORMONISM.— An Interesting Old Letter Written Forty Years Ago— Light Shed Upon the History of the Book of Mormonism—Sidney Rigdon's Claims Confuted.

[To the editor of the Telegraph.]

The most direct and important testimony which has yet been given, bearing upon this question, is the letter of the widow of Rev. Solomon Spalding, which was published in the Boston Recorder, in its issue of April 19, 1839, only nine years after the appearance of the Book of Mormon. It has been repeatedly reprinted, but there are many of the present generation who have not seen it, and who will peruse it with deep interest. Especially will this be the case in this city and vicinity, which may be regarded as the birthplace of this great impostor. The prefatory note from Rev. John Storrs, at that time (1839) pastor of the Congregational church in Holliston, Massachusetts, fully explains the occasion for writing this letter, and the appended testimonials of Rev. Messrs. Ely and Austin, of Monson, Massachusetts, emphatically sustain the reliability of Mrs. Davidson.

HOLLISTON, April 8, 1839.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BOSTON RECORDER: Dear Sir: As the pastor of the Congregational church and Society in this town, I have had occasion to come in contact with Mormonism in its grossest form. Consequently I have been led to make inquiries relative to its origin, progress, and, so far as they have any, the peculiar sentiments of its votaries. My object in this has been, as a faithful pastor, as far as possible, to arrest the progress of what I deem to be one of the rankest delusions ever palmed on poor human nature.

However, not supposing that the readers of the Recorder would be interested in the details of Mormonism in general, I send you for publication in your valuable periodical, the following communication, as a paper of unusual importance, giving a certified and sufficiently well attested and true account of the "Book of Mormon," or "Golden Bible," as it is sometimes called, on which the whole system mainly depends. And here, perhaps, it should be said, that the leaders of the delusion pretend that the book was dug out of the ground, where it had been deposited for many centuries; that it was written on certain metallic plates in a peculiar character or hieroglyphic; that the finder, a man of money-digging memory, who was accustomed to look into the ground by aid of a peculiar stone, was in a similar manner enabled to read and translate it. Hence it is sometimes called the Mormon bible. But not such was its origin, according to the following communication.

The occasion of the communication coming into my hands is as follows: Having heard incidentally that there was a lady in Monson, Massachusetts, whose husband, now dead, was the author of the book, I requested in a note, Rev. D. R. Austin, principal of Monson academy, to obtain of her, for my benefit, and to be used as I should think proper, a certified account of its origin with her husband, for the character of which lady I wished the venerable Dr. Ely and himself to vouch. The following highly satisfactory document came in reply:

You are requested to insert it in the Recorder; not so much because it will interest the majority of your readers, but that the facts well attested may be laid up in memory, and the number of your paper containing them being kept, may afford the means to an enlightened community to refute so great an imposition on the world.

I would not only respectfully bespeak its publication in the Recorder, but in other papers; I would it were published throughout the land. For many Mormons are straggling throughout the country, endeavoring to propagate their notions; and with some success with a peculiar class of people. The origin of this pretended revelation being thus completely authenticated, may save many minds from delusion, fanaticism and ruin.

Yours respectfully,

JOHN STORRS.

ORIGIN OF THE "BOOK OF MORMON," OR "GOLDEN BIBLE."

As this book has excited much attention, and has been put by a certain new sect in place of the sacred Scriptures, I deem it a duty which I owe to the public to state what I know touching its orgin.

That its claims to a divine origin are wholly unfounded, needs no proof to a mind unperverted by the grossest delusions. That any sane person should rank it any higher than any other merely human composition is a matter of the greatest astonishment; yet it is received as divine by some who dwell in enlightened New England, and even by those who have sustained the character of devoted Christians.

Learning recently that Mormonism has found its way into a church in Massachusetts, and has impregnated some of its members with some of its gross delusions, so that excommunication has become necessary, I am determined to delay no longer doing what I can to strip the mask from this monster of sin, and to lay open this pit of abomination.

Rev. Solomon Spalding, to whom I was united in marriage in early life was a graduate of Dartmouth college, and was distinguished for a lively imagination and a great fondness for history. At the time of our marriage he resided in Cherry Valley, New York. From this place we removed to New Salem, Ashtabula county, Ohio, sometimes called Conneaut, as it is situated upon Conneaut creek. Shortly after our removal to this place, his health sunk, and he was laid aside from active labors. In the town of New Salem there are numerous mounds and forts, supposed by many to be the dilapidated dwellings and fortifications of a race now extinct. These ancient relics arrest the attention of the new settlers, and become objects of research for the curious. Numerous implements were found, and other articles, evincing great skill in the arts. Mr. Spalding being an educated man and passionately fond of history, took a lively interest in these developments of antiquity, and in order to beguile the hours of retirement and furnish employment for his lively imagination, he conceived the idea of giving an historical sketch of this long lost race. Their extreme antiquity of course would lead him to write in the most ancient style; and as the Old Testament is the most ancient book in the world, he imitated its style as nearly as possible. His sole object in writing this historical romance was to amuse himself and his neighbors. This was about the year 1812. Hull's surrender at Detroit occurred near the same time, and I recollect the date well from that circumstance. As the progressed in his narrative, the neighbors would come in from time to time to hear portions of it read, and a great interest in the work was excited among them.

It is claimed to have been written by one of the lost nation, and to have been recovered from the earth, and assumed the title of "Manuscript Found." The neighbors would often inquire how Mr. Spalding progressed in deciphering "the manuscript," and when he had a sufficient portion prepared, he would inform them, and they would assemble to hear it read. He was enabled from his acquaintance with the classics and ancient history, to introduce many singular names, which were particularly noticed by the people, and could be easily recognized by them. Mr. Solomon Spalding had a brother, Mr. John Spalding, residing in the place at the time, who was perfectly familiar with this work, and repeatedly heard the whole of it read.

From New Salem we removed to Pittsburg, Pa. Here we found a friend in the person of Mr. Patterson, an editor of a newspaper. He exhibited his manuscript to Mr. P., who was very much pleased with it, and borrowed it for perusal. He retained it for a long time and informed Mr. S. that if he would make out a title page and preface, he would publish it, and it would be a source of profit.

This Mr. S. refused to do, for reasons which I cannot now state. Sidney Rigdon, one of the leader and founders of the sect, who had figured so largely in the history of the Mormons, was at this time connected with the printing office of Mr. Patterson, as he is well known in that region, and as Rigdon himself has frequently stated. Here he had ample opportunity to become acquainted with Mr. Spalding's manuscript, and to copy it if he chose. It was a matter of notoriety and interest to all who were connected with the printing establishment. At length the manuscript was returned to its author, and soon after we removed to Amity, Washington County, Pa., where Mr. S. deceased in 1816. The manuscript then fell into my hands, and was carefully preserved. It has frequently been examined by my daughter, Mrs. McKinstry, of Monson, Mass., with whom I now reside, and by other friends.

After the "Book of Mormon" came out, a copy of it was taken to New Salem, the place of Mr. Spalding's former residence, and the very place where the "Manuscript Found" was written. A Mormon preacher appointed a meeting there, and in the meeting read and repeated copious extracts from the "Book of Mormon." The historical part was immediately recognized by the older inhabitants as the identical work of Mr. S., in which they had been so deeply interested years before. Mr. John Spalding was present, who is an eminently pious man, and recognized perfectly the work of his brother. He was amazed and afflicted that it should have been perverted to so wicked a purpose. His grief found vent in a flood of tears, and he arose on the spot and expressed in the meeting his deep sorrow and regret that the writings of his sainted brother should be used for a purpose so vile and shocking. The excitement in New Salem became so great that the inhabitants had a meeting and deputed Dr. Philaster Hurlbut, one of their number, to repair to this place and to obtain from me the original manuscript of Mr. Spalding, for the purpose of comparing it with the Mormon Bible to satisfy their own minds and to prevent their friends from embracing an error so delusive.

This was in the year 1834. Dr. Hurlbut brought with him an introduction and request for the manuscript, signed by Messrs. Henry Lake, Aaron Wright and others, with all of whom I was acquainted, as they were my neighbors when I resided in New Salem.

I am sure that nothing could grieve my husband more, were he living, than the use which has been made of his work. The air of antiquity which has been thrown about the composition, doubtless suggested the idea of converting it to purposes of delusion. Thus an historical romance, with the addition of a few pious expressions and extracts from the sacred Scriptures, has been constructed into a new Bible, and palmed off upon a company of poor deluded fanatics as divine.

I have given the previous narration, that this work of deep deception and wickedness may be searched to the foundation and its author exposed to the contempt and execration he so justly deserves.

MATILDA DAVIDSON.

Rev. Solomon Spalding was the first husband of the narrator of the above history. Since his decease she has been married to a second husband, by the name of Davidson. She is now residing in this place, is a woman of irreproachable character, and an humble Christian, and her testimony is worthy of implicit confidence.

A. Ely, D.D., pastor of the Congregational Church, Monson.
D. R. Austin, principal of Monson Academy.

Monson, March 1, 1880.

The above has been carefully compared with a transcript taken from the files of the Boston Recorder, to secure an accurate copy of so important a document. A typographical error occurred in the Recorder, in which "Mormon preacher" was printed "woman preacher." The correction has been made on the authority of Rev. D. R. Austin, who acted as amanuensis for Mrs. Davidson.

Pittsburg, March 25.

The history of the Book of Mormon, as it is generally accepted by unbelievers in Joseph Smith, is thus told by the Springfield Republican:

Remarkable local testimony has been discovered by the "Republican" sustaining the charge that the religion of Joe Smith and Brigham Young had its origin in a romance written by Rev. Solomon Spalding, of Ohio, half a century or more ago. The story is furnished by Mr. J. A. McKinstry of Longmeadow, a son of the late Dr. McKinstry, of Monson, and grandson of Rev. Mr. Spalding. Rev. Mr. Spalding's widow, who afterward became Mrs. Davidson, came east from Ohio to live with her daughter at Monson many years ago, bringing the manuscript of his romance with her. She died some twenty-five years ago, but before her death a plausible young man from Boston came to see her and get the Spalding writing. It was a time of considerable excitement concerning the Mormons, and he claimed to represent some Christian people who wanted to expose Mormonism. He therefore begged the loan of the manuscript for publication. Much against the wishes of Mrs. Dr. McKinstry, Mrs. Davidson consented to let her husband's unpublished romance go. Nothing was ever heard from it again, and the family have always considered that the bland young gentleman was an agent of Brigham Young to destroy this convincing evidence that Joe Smith's Mormon bible was of very earthly origin.

The story of how Rev. Mr. Spalding came to prepare his romance, which Mr. McKinstry remembers as a child to have seen, is fresh and interesting. He was out of the active ministry in Ohio—the name of the place Mr. McKinstry does not recollect, but it was near Palmyra, we believe—running a small iron foundry; and being a man of literary tastes employed his leisure moments in weaving a romance. It was a time when the work of the mound-builders was creating wide interest, the implements of cookery and war being unearthed, showing the existence of a forgotten race. This furnished the inspiration for the chronicles of the story-writer. He entitled his production "Manuscript Found," the idea being that the romance woven by the ex-preacher was dug up out of one of the mounds in the region. It was a history of ancient America, not all written at once, but at leisure spells, and as the fancy fell to him Mr. Spalding would add to it. His writing was no secret in the neighborhood. In that then frontier region, with few opportunities for literary enjoyment, Mr. Spalding was prevailed upon to read his production to his neighbors as it progressed. It was written in bible phraseology, and made as quaintly olden as possible, so as to carry out the conceit of its alleged mound origin. Among the attentive listeners at these readings were Joe Smith and Sidney Rigdon, the same who founded Mormonism. Not only did Smith hear the manuscript read, but on one occasion, as Mrs. Davidson frequently testified before her death, he borrowed it for a week or so, giving as a reason that he wanted to read it to his family, who had been unable to attend on Mr. Spalding's readings. Not long afterward, it will be remembered, Smith claimed that an angel had revealed to him the existence of a buried history of aboriginal America, the plates of which it is alleged were dug up, and the book of Mormon made as a translation of their inscriptions. The widow of Mr. Spalding and her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Mc Kinstry, of Monson, compared the Smith bible with the pastor's romance, and they were essentially the same. The similarity was so overwhelming as to leave no doubt that Smith copied in full Rev. Mr. Spalding's writing, and made out of it bodily his divine "revelation."

The character of the minister's romance was such, and his elaboration of it so thorough, as to strike the fancy of Smith, who was given to the mysterious. His family had been noted for divination, treasure-seeking, etc., and so Joe found Mr.

Spalding's work just in his line. That the results of his appropriation of it have been so stupendous was always a great cross to Mr. Spalding's good widow, Mrs. Davidson. She mourned that, even innocently, her husband should have been the means of foisting upon the world so great an evil. This was the real reason of her willingness to allow the manuscript to be taken to Boston for publication. It is to be regretted that her family have not better preserved Mrs. Davidson's recollections of her husband's writing, now forever lost to the world. Enough has been handed down, however, to establish beyond doubt the truth of the claim that here was the source of Joe Smith's "inspiration." Mrs. Davidson's story has long been familiar to leading men of Monson, and so impressed was the late Rev. Dr. Ely with it that he prepared a considerable account of it years ago.

2985. Hon. RUFUS-PAINE[6] [1223], (Rufus[5], Ebenezer[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]). He was the eldest son of Dr. Rufus Spalding, and the fifth in lineal descent from Edward Spalding, of Braintree (1640); was born on the 3d day of May, 1798, at West Tisbury, on the island of Martha's Vineyard, in the State of Massachusetts. His father belonged to the Connecticut line of the family, and was the great-grandson of Benjamin Spalding, son of the first Edward, who emigrated from Chelmsford, Mass., and settled in Plainfield, Conn., in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

R. P. Spalding

His mother was Lydia Paine, daughter of David Paine, Esq., of Canterbury, Conn., and a descendant, in the direct line, from Thomas Paine, who came over from England about the year 1639, and settled in Massachusetts. Elisha Paine, the son of Thomas, was an extensive landholder in the first settlement of the town of Canterbury.

Rufus P. Spalding, the subject of this sketch, was pledged, by his father, from his infancy to one of the learned professions. He was therefore kept at school from the earliest dawn of his understanding. In preparing for college, he was sent successively to the academies at Bridgewater, Mass., Plainfield and Colchester, Conn. In September, 1813, he entered the Freshman class in Yale College, Connecticut, and in 1817 received from that institution the degree of Bachelor of Arts. His diploma was signed by Rev. Jeremiah Day, Doctor Timothy Dwight having died at the end of the first quarter of his senior year.

Upon leaving college, he entered upon the study of the law with the Hon. Zephaniah Swift, Chief-Justice of Connecticut, who lived at Windham, the then seat of justice for Windham County.

After completing his professional studies, he migrated to the State of Ohio, where he became eminent as a lawyer and as a statesman. On the 1st day of October, 1822, he was married to Lucretia A. Swift, daughter of Chief-Justice Swift, of Connecticut.

Having lost his first wife, the subject of our sketch was married, on the 11th day of January, 1859, to Nancy-Sargeant, eldest daughter of Doctor Wm. S. Pierson, of Windsor, Conn. His second wife died at her residence in Cleveland, Ohio, on Dec. 2, 1889.

In December, 1841, being, for the second time, a member of the Legislature of his adopted State, Mr. S. was chosen speaker of the House of Representatives, and served in a very acceptable manner during that session, and an adjourned session in 1842.

In the winter of 1848-9 he was elected, by joint vote of the two Houses of the General Assembly, a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio for the constitutional term of seven years, of which he served, however, but the term of three years. The new constitution, then adopted, reorganized the judiciary, and he declined being a candidate in the popular canvass that followed.

The Hon. Wm. Lawrence, at this time member of Congress from Ohio, and reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court while Judge Spalding was on the bench, thus speaks of him in a letter written to Prof. Wm. H. Barrows, the publisher of the work entitled "The Fortieth Congress of the U. S."

"The judicial service of Judge Spalding commenced March 7, 1849, and terminated Feb. 1, 1852. He brought to the exalted position the force of a vigorous and cultivated intellect, imbued with a profound knowledge of the law, and enriched with classical attainments of no ordinary character. His opinions will be found in the 18th, 19th, and 20th volumes of Ohio Reports; and it is, at least, no disparagement to others to say, that Judge Spalding has never had a superior on the bench of the State.

"The generous and urbane deportment of the Judge was such that he enjoyed the profound respect and esteem of the bar and all with whom he was associated, as the writer of this has abundant means of knowing."

On retiring from the bench, Judge Spalding resumed the practice of the law in the city of Cleveland, and, as an advocate and counsellor, maintained the highest rank in the State.

In politics, he was an active and devoted member of the Democratic party from the days of Andrew Jackson until the passage of the Fugitive Slave law in 1850, when he threw all his energy and influence into the ranks of the Free-Soil or Anti-slavery party.

He was a member of the Convention at Pittsburg, Pa., in February, 1852; and it was on his motion that Hon. John P. Hale was nominated for the Presidency. He was again a member of a convention in Pittsburg in 1856, and it was here that the party adopted the name "Republican." He was, the same year, one of the delegates at large, from Ohio, to the National Convention at Philadelphia, which nominated John C. Fremont for President.

In October, 1862, Judge Spalding was chosen a Representative to the 38th Congress of the United States, from the 18th district of Ohio, made up of the counties of Cuyahoga, Summit, and Lake. He continued in Congress six years, having been twice re-elected; so that he participated in the important legislation of the two last years of the war of the Rebellion, and in the exciting work of reconstruction that followed, until the 4th of March, 1869, when he retired, of his own choice, from the public service, very much to the regret of his constituents.

"The determination of Judge Spalding to withdraw from active political life," says the author of a work recently published, entitled, "Cleveland, Past and Present, its Representative Men," "was a matter of surprise and regret to his colleagues in Congress, who had learned to value his sound judgment, ripe scholarship, earnest patriotism, and great legislative ability. It was a positive loss to the people of the Eighteenth Ohio District, for never had the interests of that district been better cared for. To Cleveland especially he proved, in reality, a representative member. The wishes of his constituents were promptly attended to, their interests carefully guarded, and 'no stone was left unturned' in the endeavor to benefit the city and its people. The withdrawal of Judge Spalding from public political life was a loss to the national councils in which he had achieved distinction, but was a still greater loss to the constituency he represented.

"He has returned to the legal profession, in which he ranks among the brightest lights, and finds in its practice, and in the quiet enjoyment of social and domestic life, a satisfaction which his public career, brilliant as it was, failed to give."

Judge Spalding was a communicant in the Episcopal Church, and one of the vestry of Trinity Church, Cleveland, where he was a constant attendant.

Hon. Thaddeus Stevens once remarked to Hon. Benj. Wade, "Spalding is the right bower of intellectual liberty."

He died Aug. 27, 1886, at his residence, No. 264 Prospect Street, Cleveland, Ohio. His death was sincerely mourned by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and regretted by all who appreciated his worth as a citizen.

He left Massachusetts for Pittsburg, Pa., in 1815, where he was engaged in a contract on the arsenal at that place. After having built the bridge across the Monongahela River, he moved to Washington, Pa., about the year 1818. He was at one time sheriff of Washington County, Pa. During the time he lived in Washington, he was engaged on heavy contracts on the National road, which was then building (he being a stone-mason by trade). He emigrated to Zanesville, Ohio, in 1827, having been engaged in the building of the road from Wheeling, Va., to that place, where he has left numerous monuments of his skill and energy, having built the whole of the canal around the falls of the Muskingum, and locks connected with it; two wagon bridges and two railroad bridges across the Muskingum River. Having amassed a considerable fortune, and finding no more heavy works to accomplish, he built a large iron furnace in Dresden, Ohio, where, after a long series of misfortunes, he lost all. He sacrificed all his property, and, having paid every debt, to the last dollar, he found himself destitute of everything but his good name. Broken down in health, he died, regretted by all citizens, and especially by the large class of laboring men, to whom, by his untiring energy, he had given labor for so many years. A just, true, and kind man.

3264. SOLOMON-ROBINSON[6] [1349], (Benaiah[5], Joseph[4], Joseph[3], Joseph[2], Edward[1]), b. May 31, 1805, in Putney, Vt.; d. Aug. 31, 1874, at Saratoga Springs, N.Y.; m. Ann-Maria Kingsbury, May 23, 1833.

He was a merchant in Boston, and was at the head of the firm S. R. Spalding & Sons.

In early boyhood he was constantly occupied upon his father's farm, except two months in summer and three months in winter, when he went to the district school. At the age of fifteen his father placed him under the instruction of the parish minister, thinking to prepare him for college, and subsequently for a professional life. But having become pecuniarily embarrassed by the failure of a local improvement, to which he had lent his credit, the college course for his son was abandoned. Solomon, now sixteen years of age, conceived the idea of seeking his fortune in Boston, but the project seemed to his parents extreme folly. He pressed the matter, and at last gained their consent. The next question was, where to find money to defray his expenses. At that time freight was moved through the country by the old-fashioned baggage wagons, and in front of the Spaldings' house was a steep hill, up which many teams passed daily, frequently requiring extra assistance; and by rendering such, with a pair of oxen, he often received ten or twelve cents for each load. By this means he had now accumulated eight dollars; to this his father added four dollars and a half, making twelve dollars and a half to start with.

With this amount in money and his clothing all packed in a checked linen handkerchief woven by his mother, he set out on his long journey.

In parting, his mother, taking him by the hand, warned him of his exposure to evil, and besought him, for her sake, to shun every path of vice.

He started alone and on foot; reaching Boston, he secured a boarding-place at a dollar and a half per week, and began looking up employment by going from door to door through the business portions of the city. After many disappointments, he stopped at a store in Broad Street, and asked the usual question, and received the usual answer, No! When near the door, going slowly away, one of the partners called him back, and asked what he could do? "Anything you ask me to do." "Will you set the store on fire if I employ you, and request you to do so?" "Yes, sir." "And would you put it out if I told you to?" "Yes, sir." "Well, boy," said he, "you may go to work for me." And here, at six dollars per month, boarding himself, he commenced his business career. When winter came, he had no overcoat, and no money to buy one; so, rather than obtain one on credit, he endured the cold.

At one time, when sweeping the store, he found a ten-cent piece, which he handed his employer, who said, "Why did you not keep it?" "Because it does not belong to me," answered the young man. By this and similar proofs of his integrity, and by his unwearied fidelity, he won the confidence of his employers, and soon bettered his finances.

At the end of three years he obtained a vacation to go home, being able this time to take a seat in the stage-coach.

Soon after returning to Boston, one of his employers died; the other was an indifferent business man, and in time the house failed, and Solomon was thrown out of his situation; but, having made the favorable acquaintance of one of their customers, he was offered the position of bookkeeper and salesman. This gentleman was about to relinquish his country store, and open one in Boston in the hide and leather business. From this time date the circumstances, which, in after life, have so frequently given S. R. Spalding the name of father of the hide and leather trade of Boston.

He continued with his employer for several years, when, in 1832, an older brother having come to the city, they started business on their own account. They unfortunately connected themselves in the shipping business with a Philadelphia partner, who had considerable influence at the United States Bank, then in existence. This man proved a disaster to them; for, loading several vessels with the credit of the firm, he escaped with them to South America, located at Buenos Ayres, and died after years of dissipation, having squandered the substance of his villany.

Mr. Spalding returned to his former business in leather and hides, and gradually established a successful trade between Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Boston. As he traveled often between these cities, by the slow process of journeying then in vogue, he was told by his old-fogy neighbors, that they could not afford to spend so much money in traveling, and he used to reply, "I cannot afford to stay at home."

About 1842 he associated with him another partner, when the firm became Spalding & Bryant. In addition to their Southern business, they engaged extensively in tanning, and soon took the lead in the trade.

In 1847 Mr. Spalding went to Europe for the first time, and was the first in his trade to import hides, leather and skins, to any large extent.

The same year Mr. Spalding obtained the charter of the Exchange Bank, now the National Exchange Bank of Boston, and he was a director in the institution since its organization.

In 1853, with the assistance of several of his early Baltimore friends, he started a line of steamships between Boston, Norfolk, and Baltimore; they have proved a success, and the line is yearly enlarging.

Prior to the Rebellion, the company conferred the honor of naming one of the steamships the "S. R. Spalding." This vessel was a transport and flag-ship, doing signal service during the war, and her name became as familiar along the coast as a household word.

Later, he associated with him his two sons, the youngest of whom, Frank, died at Vichy, in France, in 1866, whither he had gone for the restoration of his health. He was a young man of rare qualities and of many friends, and had just arrived at the age to which he had been looking forward as the period when he might take a prominence in business life, after a dozen years of patient study and observation in mercantile usages. His last words on leaving home were to explain his plans for the future, which he was destined to leave uncompleted.

S. R. Spalding was one of the Vice-Presidents of the Boston Board of Trade for several years.

He attributed the success which he enjoyed in business, and in its many collateral offices, to the good advice received on leaving home, and to the strict economy and perseverance of his younger years. By these he attained wealth and a high social and mercantile position.

He visited Europe on several occasions, either for business or pleasure, and on one visit extended his travels as far East as Egypt.

Solomon R. Spalding died suddenly, of heart disease, at Saratoga, N.Y., at nine o'clock on the night of August 31, 1874, at the age of sixty-nine years. He was a self-made man, of quick perceptions, energetic will and great self-reliance, but of few words. Action was his motto. For over forty years he was identified with the hide and leather trade of Boston; and as one of the foremost merchants of Boston, his enterprise and sagacity has been of good service in promoting the welfare of that city. His death was sincerely mourned by the business community, and a meeting of the Shoe and Leather Dealers of Boston was held to give expression of sorrow at his death, at which meeting Resolutions and Remarks were passed, eulogizing their kind and valued friend and fellow-merchant; and appointing a committee of four to attend the funeral; that their respective stores be closed during the funeral; and that a copy of the Resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased.

connected with the Free-Will Baptist denomination. He was settled in Belgrade, Me., and preached there and in many other places for about twenty-five years; he was frequently settled as pastor of some church, besides traveling much as an evangelist. After moving to Ohio, he was settled over churches in Liverpool and Brunswick, Ohio, but his health failing, he removed to Cleveland, with his son. There being no church of his persuasion there, he united with a Congregational church. He was a constant writer for the "Morning Star," printed at Dover, N. H., and published many sermons. He was a strong advocate of temperance, being one of the first movers in that cause in Maine."

He settled in Merrimack, N. H., on a farm adjoining his father's and died there. The farm in now owned by his grandson, George-Franklin Spalding.

The war records show that Samuel Spalding was a soldier in the Revolutionary war and served in the campaigns of 1779 and 1780 as a private; he was also in Capt. John Barron's Co., Col. Caleb Hyde's Regt., Oct. 20, 1781.

In the early part of the war Samuel Spalding was a Lieut. in Capt. Reed's Co., Col. Naham Baldwin's Regt., mustered at Wilton, Sept. 26, 1776. This regiment was in the battle of White Plains, Oct. 28, 1776, and was dismissed in December of the same year. From the fact that the records show that Samuel Spalding, who had been a Lieutenant in 1776, went as a private in 1779 and 1780, is rather queer; and it is very probable that the private soldier of 1779 and 1780 is a son and namesake of the Samuel Spalding who served as a Lieutenant in 1776.

The following notice of Henry Spalding is from the Farmer's Cabinet, a newspaper printed at Amherst, N. H., Dec. 4, 1856:

"A VETERAN.—Mr. Henry Spalding, of Francestown, formerly of the neighboring town of Lyndeborough, now in his ninety-sixth year, rode four miles on the day of the last presidential election, to attend the meeting, and gave his vote to swell the majority in New Hampshire for 'freedom and Fremont.' So anxious was he to vote, that several days previous to the election, he sent to see that his name was on the check list, saying he should be there; and he kept his word, although the day was an inclement one.

"We understand he voted for Washington, and has voted in each successive presidential campaign since, with the whig party. He is still 'hale and hearty,' never had a sick day in his life, and says he 'never had but two serious complaints, lameness and laziness;' the former, he thinks might have been cured, had it been taken in season, but the latter has defied all prescriptions, and he has long since given it up as incurable.'

"Mr. Spalding has ever been a worthy and industrious citizen, highly esteemed by all who know him, for his many virtues. A large family of children are settled around him, and among them are those whose gray hairs tell of more than threescore years; but the patriarch of the family 'still lives;' one of the few survivors of a generation passed away; one of the very few whose heads are whitened by the frosts of nearly a hundred winters. That another four years may deal as gently with him as have the four years past, is the earnest wish of all who know him, and that he may live to see the candidate for whom he voted in 1856, for president, elected in 1860, and that he may help elect him, is the hope of those who voted with him."

He settled first in New Ipswich, N. H., where his first three children were born; then removed to Wilton, N. H., where his other children were born, and where he remained till his death. He was a tanner and currier by trade.

His father, Samuel Spalding, of Merrimack, N. H., was a man of considerable property for those days. He settled all his sons, except Isaac, on farms near his own. To Isaac he intended to give a liberal education, and so put him under the care of Rev. Mr. Fiske, of Wilton, to be prepared for college. But his circumstances changing, it was decided that Isaac should learn a trade, and so he was apprenticed to Mr. Farley, a tanner, of Hollis, N. H. He served his time faithfully, and then commenced business with Jeremiah Prichard, in New Ipswich, N. H. About 1800 he removed to Wilton, N. H., where he continued to reside until his death. He was a man of marked ability, who loved his home and had no aspirations for riches. His house was the house of his friends, and they were frequently with him on their way to and from the county seat. He had dealings with almost every man in the town, but never had a disputed account. His education and good judgment made him a congenial companion, and a reliable and valuable friend.

Mr. Spalding was of a strong and healthy constitution, and an industrious worker. Although not an office seeker, he filled many minor offices of the town, such as Surveyor of highways, and the various offices of his school district. The farm on which he was born and spent his whole life was situated on the Naticook Upperpond, and from the windows of the house can be viewed the top of the grand Monadnock and other mountains. The farm consisted of one hundred and twenty acres; sixty acres were fenced into lots of from one to four acres each, with a heavy stone wall, covering from three to seven feet of ground at the base. There are also many large piles of these stones with a circumference of seventy-five feet or more, and a height of six to eight feet, all of which testify to his great industry. The farm has always been productive, but was very hard to cultivate until relieved of its many stones. It still remains in the family, being in possession of his grandson, Charles Warren Spalding [12153], President of the Globe Savings Bank, of Chicago, Ill.

From an obituary notice, published in the "Gospel Banner" at the time of his death, we extract the following:

"No man ever lived in the town more respected, venerated and beloved, and none ever died more generally lamented, than Father Spalding. He was prudent and temperate in all his habits. He was honest in principle, pure in mind and motive, and of strict integrity. He possessed a mild and amiable disposition, and was always seeking to make those around him happy. His habitual uprightness, honesty, goodness, and ability secured him the respect and confidence of his fellow-citizens, who many times raised him to the highest honors and offices within their gift. These offices he filled with honor to himself, and with credit and usefulness to his constituents."

He was the son of pious parents, and at the age of sixteen made a profession of religion. He fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Andover; entered Yale, and after one year joined the Sophomore Class in Harvard, where he graduated in 1840. His theological course was at Andover, where he graduated in 1843. He was one of the "Iowa Band" of eleven classmates, who, in the fall of 1843, were commissioned as Home Missionaries for Iowa. He commenced his service at Ottumwa, on the banks of the beautiful Des Moines. Here he expended most of his labors, though thirty other places occasionally heard his voice. He was ordained Nov. 5, 1843; was home missionary in Wapello Co., Iowa, 1843–45, also superintendent of schools; stated supply at Agency City and Ottumwa Iowa, 1845–49; went to Ottumwa in 1849, and was installed pastor of the Ottumwa church in 1851, and continued his relation with that church till 1863, nearly 12 years. Ill-health compelled him to resign his charge, and seek a more northern clime. After his dismission from Ottumwa, he proceeded to Eau Claire, in Wisconsin, hoping in that tonic climate to do something more for Christ. There, after laboring about nine months very successfully, he found his physical system was not improving, but rather indicating a decline. He therefore returned to his old home at Ottumwa with the hope that he might secure by rest, what he had failed to gain by a change of climate. It was all in vain. He d. Andover, N.Y., being nearly 102 years old at the time of her death.

He began life as a farmer in New Marlboro', Mass.; in 1834 or '35, he sold his farm and moved to Canaan, Conn., to the old home of his wife, her father having died. Here he passed the remainder of his days.

On Aug. 29, 1890, fifty guests from several states assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D.-B. Spalding [10103], at Andover, N.Y., and pleasantly celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Thankful-Benedict Spalding. She was very bright and intelligent, and wore a pair of cuff buttons 200 years old, which were of solid silver, set with amethysts. The gathering was a most interesting one to look upon—people of nearly all ages—the time-honored and venerable "Grandma Spalding," children, grand-children, great-grand-children, and great-great-grand-children; those on the down-hill side of life, those in the full vigor of manhood and womanhood, and those just entering the spring-time of existence—the Centennarian and the infant! It was a touching sight to see the one-year-old babe sitting upon the lap of her whose years numbered one hundred, joining hands over the interval of years—years of pleasure and pain, years of realization and disappointment, and yet, withal, years that tell of good deeds done and a life-work well performed.

Children all b. in Greenfield, Mass.

He was a woolen manufacturer in Greenfield, Mass., and considered an excellent machinist. He was much attached to the Military, and was Colonel of his Regiment at Greenfield, Mass.

Aaron Spalding, of Greenfield, Mass., was a member of the 2d Regt., 2d Brigade, 4th Division, Mass. Vols., of which he was commissioned Ensign, May 2, 1826; promoted Captain, April 18, 1827; promoted Major, Sept. 2, 1829; promoted Lieut-Col., May 26, 1830; and was honorably discharged Jan. 16, 1833. He was but thirteen years old when his wise and tender father died of severe injuries received by accident, leaving his family of six sons and two daughters in a new home, entirely dependent on their own exertions, and surrounded only by strangers. The mother, overwhelmed with grief for her loss, and anxiety about the future of her fatherless children, soon fell into a state of invalidism, from which she never fully recovered. The family had been tenderly nurtured, and were unaccustomed to severe labor or hardships. With literary and musical tastes and accomplishments, it was their habit to gather about the fireside in the evenings and pass a pleasant hour together reading, singing or playing upon their musical instruments, of which they possessed a number. Aaron played the flute, Willard the violin, upon which he became very proficient, a sister accompanying upon the piano, a quaint little instrument with small fluted legs and drawers at the sides with queer glass knobs. (This rare specimen is now in possession of her son, Mr. J.-P. Swinerton of Taunton, Mass.)

The boys were all of a fine noble appearance, with fair complexion, and light brown or flaxen hair; high-spirited and affectionate, never becoming hardened or indifferent to each others' sorrows or distresses. They clung together and shared each others griefs, and cheered one another in every possible way.

Aaron Spalding and his brothers, after the death of their father, entered the employ of Dr. Craigie, the proprietor of vast estates. Some of his brothers were on farms as far away as what is now Lowell, Mass., whence they used to carry their produce over Queen Anne's Highway to Boston, stopping for rest and refreshment at those old taverns, the remnants of which one sees occasionally now, standing solitary and uninhabited by the wayside.

On one of these expeditions to Boston, Aaron, always imbued with military fervor, joined the regiment that was ordered out to defend the city in the war of 1812. Its service was short-lived, for the soldiers only marched through Boston and encamped on Dorchester Heights, where after spending one night, they received the news of the victory of the good ship Constitution, that filled every one with joy. The British fleet sailed away and the regiment was dismissed, much to the disgust of the lad who was then only fifteen years of age, and thirsting for military exploits.

At that time the Craigie House was surrounded by an immense farm, and finally Aaron, being the Dr's favorite of all the boys, was intrusted with the management of that farm, and the direction of all the household affairs, and came to live in the stately mansion in the capacity of general Superintendent of the whole place, and Dr. Craigie's confidential friend.

The generous old man had deeded five hundred acres of wild land in northern Vermont to each of the boys, and had often told Aaron that to him would be left an additional bequest, and even wrote a codicil to his will to that effect, but left it unsigned, and when he was suddenly stricken with apoplexy, it was too late. His last words were "call Aaron," and he expired in the arms of his faithful young friend, whom he so loved, and to whom he had been so kind. Aaron was then twenty-seven years of age, having lived in the Craigie House ten years. Things changed for him; after his benefactor's death, he went to Greenfield to join his brother Joel, who had established there the first mill in Western Massachusetts, for the manufacture of woolen goods. They were very prosperous, and built soon a new stone mill, with many adjacent houses, necessary to the business. These were built in a triangular-shaped valley, nestled among low undulating hills, and encircled at one side by the Fall River, which water power they used. A half a mile away, through a gap in the hills, the great Connecticut was dimly seen, as it tumbled over a pile of rock, forming a natural waterfall, famous in history as Turner's Falls; and with these foaming, roaring waters the gentle Fall River mingled and flowed onward to the sea. Foreigners had not then swarmed among us, and farmers' sons and daughters came down from the surrounding hills and performed the work in the factory, respected, and self-respecting.

For many years it was a thriving village, known in common parlance as "The Holler." Several of the Spalding brothers lived there, or near by on farms, often meeting to renew their musical evenings. One sister only survived. Rebekah, the youngest child of the family. She was very beautiful and talented, the idol of her brothers, who gave her a superior education, which she deeply appreciated. She had a taste for painting, her work comparing favorably with many productions of the present day. The brothers were very athletic, one "standing up before the whole county in combat."

Aaron was five feet and eleven inches tall, and never became plethoric. "His complexion was like alabaster. He had large speaking blue eyes, and a finely cut chin; his teeth were large, white and regular, and when he died at the age of fifty-two years, he had never suffered with toothache. He was broad in the shoulders, strong of limb, and the blue veins stood out on his arms like whipcords."

His countenance was uncommon and singularly beautiful, and well portrayed his lovely character, which was generous, noble and unselfish. He always won the love and respect of those he employed, and had great control over people in masses, who would always obey his slightest wish; his presence alone quelling any trouble that might arise among the operatives. He was charitable in every sense of the word, forgiving quickly the sins of boyhood, remembering not peoples' errors against them. He took a vital interest in public affairs, never shirking his duty. He belonged to the militia, and led the yearly "sham-fight," the special feature of training day.

Col. Spalding always did his own thinking, and hailed with joy the first upward lifts New England made, out of a gloomy Orthodoxy—and largely helped to build the first Unitarian Church of Greenfield. He was very fond of little children, and never failed to provide for their happiness whenever possible. He was passionately fond of horses, and owned none but the best.

The brothers wishing to enlarge their business, Joel went to Middlebury, Vt., where he established another woolen mill, and manufactured under the firm name of Aaron Spalding & Co. After Joel's departure, Aaron carried on the Greenfield business alone. All went prosperously for several years, when reverses came. Aaron lost heavily in the Vermont venture, and was obliged to sell his interest in the Greenfield Mill. Times were hard all over the country, and the Col. determined to leave manufacturing and return to farming, which he declared he considered to be his legitimate business. The blood of pioneers was in his veins, and his eyes turned longingly Westward. With high hopes they packed their worldly goods, and with their six children, he and his wife sought the then far West — thinking to end their days in peace and plenty in true pastoral fashion. In 1845 they went to Oswego, Ill., and bought a farm, but the location proved malarious, and much sickness followed. A severe drought the first season completely ruined their crops, and further distressed them.

The Colonel's health also failed, but he never lost his interest in public affairs; and when in 1847, Illinois was disturbed by rumors of war with Mexico, he helped to raise a company in his little town, and himself drilled them in military tactics, their Capt. Abraham Dodge being deficient in that knowledge.

He removed to Greenfield, Mass., where he engaged as a woollen manufacturer. In 1836 he removed to Bennington, Vt., where he established a wadding mill. In the spring of 1839 he removed to Middlebury, Vt., where he established a woolen manufactory, under the firm of Aaron Spalding & Co. In 1843 he invented the first card-sharpening machine, which greatly facilitated labor in that branch of wool manufacture. In 1849 he removed with his family to Watertown, N.Y. He was a thorough machinist and an ingenious mechanic. In July, 1857, he was struck with lightning, from the shock of which he never recovered. He died at Watertown, N.Y., Nov. 5, 1857. Mr. Spalding was an enterprising manufacturer when it required almost a hero to engage in the business in competition with the manufacturers of England.

All this family are now residents of Illinois.

He returned to the country of his forefathers about 1842; studied medicine, and before the Rebellion broke out went South and married a Southern lady and settled in Florence, Alabama. When the Rebellion shut the South from the North, he was caught as a Northern sympathizer, and subjected to constant outrages by day and by night. He was twice robbed, and twice arrested for his Northern proclivities; and his wife, being a Southern woman, was forced by her relatives to elope from him when he was absent, taking with her their little boy and only child. Weary and worn, harassed and bereaved, he lived to see the end of the Rebellion; but died on the first of August, 1865, and was buried on the 2d, his 38th birthday, in Florence, Ala.

6030. Hon. ELBRIDGE-GERRY[7] [2630], (Edward[6], Levi[5], Edward[4], Ebenezer[3], Edward[2], Edward[1]), b. Feb. 24, 1809, at Summer Hill, Cayuga Co., N.Y. He has resided in Buffalo, N.Y., since 1834; 1st, m. Jane-Antoinette Rich, Sept. 5, 1837; she d. Aug. 6, 1841; 2d, m. Nancy-Selden Strong, Sept. 5, 1842; she d. May 4, 1852; 3d, m. Delia Strong (widow of Clark Robinson), May 2, 1854.

He has been mayor of the city, treasurer of the State of New York, a member of the canal board, and six years a member of Congress, serving four years on the committee of Ways and Means; and he was the author of the legal tender act, passed during the late Rebellion.

When about twenty years of age, he commenced the study of the law in the office of Fitch & Dibble, at Batavia, Genesee Co., N.Y. He taught school in the winter and other portions of the year, and also acted as recording clerk in the county clerk's office, during the first two years of his law studies, in order to pay his board and other expenses. In 1832 he entered the law office of Hon. Harvey Putnam, at Attica, in the same county, where he pursued his law studies until admitted to practice in the court of common pleas of Genesee County.

In 1834 he removed to Buffalo, and continued the study and practice of the law in the office of Potter & Babcock. At the May term of the supreme court in 1836, he was admitted to practice law as an attorney of the supreme court of the State of New York, and as a solicitor in the court of chancery; and in 1839, as a counsellor of the supreme court, and in the court of chancery.

After his admission to practice as an attorney in the supreme court, he entered into partnership, first with George R. Babcock, and afterward with Heman B. Potter, and continued to practice law until 1844, when the partnership was dissolved. He afterward received into partnership the Hon. John Ganson, with whom he continued until 1848. From the time he entered the profession of the law until he retired from it, he was laborious and unremitting in his exertions, and enjoyed an extensive and lucrative practice.

In 1836 he was appointed city clerk of Buffalo, and in 1841 was elected alderman, and served as chairman of the finance committee. In 1847 he was elected mayor of Buffalo, and during his term many important measures were inaugurated. Among these, he took a very active part in the adoption by the State of the Erie and Ohio basins for enlarging the facilities of lake and canal commerce at Buffalo; the organization of the Buffalo Gas Light Company for lighting the city; and the adoption of an extensive system of sewerage. In 1848 he served one term as a member of the New York legislature, and was chairman of the canal committee. In the fall of the same year, he was elected a member of the thirty-first Congress, which assembled in December, 1849. In the long contest for the speaker, he voted on every balloting for Robert C. Winthrop, but owing to some defection among the Whig members, Howell Cobb was finally elected. He was placed on the committee on foreign relations. He opposed the extension of slavery on all occasions; supported the policy of General Taylor for admitting California and New Mexico as free States, and opposed the fugitive slave law and the compromise measures adopted at the very long session in 1850, and which received the approval of Mr. Fillmore after the death of General Taylor.

In 1853 he was elected treasurer of the State of New York, and ex officio a member of the canal board, serving two years from January 1, 1854. During this term he performed important service as a member of the canal board, in adopting the plans and contracting for the work of enlarging the Erie and Oswego canals, involving an expenditure of $9,000,000, which was borrowed on the credit of the State of New York.

He opposed the repeal of the Missouri compromise in 1854; took an active part in organizing the Republican party; was for several years a member of the State central committee; and in 1860 he was an active member of the congressional executive committee in conducting the political campaign which resulted in the election of Abraham Lincoln for president.

In 1858 he was elected to the thirty-sixth Congress, and in 1860 re-elected to the thirty-seventh Congress, and served four years on the important committee of ways and means. He was one of the most active members of this committee during a most eventful period in the history of the country. As chairman of the sub-committee of ways and means, he drafted the national currency bank bill, and originated the legal tender act for the issue of treasury fundable notes to circulate as money, which he introduced in the House of Representatives, December 30, 1861. He advocated it as a war measure, and opened the debate upon it in an exhaustive speech, showing the imperative necessity of the measure to sustain the army and navy.

This speech was the first official exposition of the necessity of the legal tender notes as a war measure, the constitutionality of that measure, and a full statement of the grounds on which it should be supported, in order to provide the means for carrying on the war. It received very general comment from the press, as well as from individuals. The opponents of the measure criticised it in severe terms, but the positions he took in the speech, legally and otherwise, have never been successfully controverted; and it stands to-day as one of the best arguments in favor of legal tender fundable notes, as a war measure, that has ever been presented. It had great influence in carrying the bill through Congress. Nearly all the most important loan laws for carrying on the war originated under the supervision of the sub-committee of ways and means, of which he was chairman.

In a letter to him, dated Aug. 3, 1869, Hon. Charles Sumner says: "In all our early financial trials, while the war was most menacing, you held a position of great trust, giving you opportunity and knowledge. The first you used at the time most patriotically, and the second you use now (in preparing a financial history of the war) for the instruction of the country." The history alluded to by Mr. Sumner, as having been prepared by Mr. Spalding, was published at Buffalo, N.Y., 1869, entitled "History of the Legal Tender Paper Money issued during the Great Rebellion."

Mr. Spalding has been engaged in banking since 1852. He organized the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Buffalo in 1864, and he owns more than three-fourths of its stock, and is its president. By industry, frugality, and economy he has accumulated a handsome fortune.

He retired from political life after the Civil War, since which period he has devoted his time to business and home interests, and is still President of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, although he is not able to personally attend to business at the present time (1896).

CENTENNIAL.—BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL.

1775.—JUNE 17.—1875.

In filial regard to the memory of the New England Fathers who fought for civil and religious liberty and American Independence, resulting in National Union, I have caused to be prepared an unpretending, yet substantial monument, to be placed on my lot in Forest Lawn Cemetery. It will be completed on June 17, 1875, which will be the one-hundredth anniversary of the memorable battle of Bunker Hill. DANIEL WEBSTER, in his masterly address at the laying of the corner-stone of the Bunker Hill Monument in 1825, fifty years ago, characterized this bloody conflict as "the First Great Battle of the American Revolution," and it is my wish that my children should read that noble and patriotic address at each successive anniversary of the resolute stand taken by the yeomanry of America to "conquer or die."

The SPALDING family were well represented in this battle. My grandfather and eight others of our name and kindred, participated in this conflict. Lieut. JOSEPH SPALDING was killed by the side of his brave commander, COL. PRESCOTT, who had the chief command, and WILLIAM was wounded. Other gentlemen residing in Buffalo are the kindred or descendants of patriotic men who were in the Battle of Bunker Hill. Among them I may name REV. GROSVENOR W. HEACOCK, JAMES D. SAWYER, GIBSON T. WILLIAMS, JOSEPH WARREN, REV. A. T. CHESTER, and doubtless many others.

I have two objects in view in erecting this monument: First, to keep alive in the hearts of my children and their descendants, the principles of liberty and patriotism which animated the plain but resolute men of the four New England Colonies, to fight this great battle in the cause of justice and the inalienable rights of man, against the civil and military oppressions of King George the Third. Second, with reverence and gratitude to erect an enduring memorial in honor of my kindred who participated in this Revolutionary conflict to achieve American Independence. On this Tablet, which was taken from the Granite Hills of New Hampshire, in which State my father and grandfather were born, are placed the names of the nine SPALDINGS engaged in the battle. The inscription on one side of it is as follows:

CENTENNIAL.

BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL.

JOSEPH,	THOMAS,
JONAS,	URIAH,
EBEN,	JOHN,
WILLIAM.	EBENEZER.

100 YEARS OF PROGRESS.

On the other side of the tablet are these words:

IN MEMORY OF THE

NEW ENGLAND FATHERS.

WHO FOUGHT FOR

CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS LIBERTY,

AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE,

RESULTING IN

NATIONAL UNION.

PLACED HERE JUNE 17, 1875, BY E. G. SPALDING.

On one end of the tablet, surrounded by thirteen stars, are the words:

FIRST GREAT BATTLE OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

And on the other end, surrounded by thirty-eight stars, are the words:

LIBERTY AND UNION.

It is not to be expected that the people generally will take any special interest in regard to those of my kindred engaged in this battle, but the day and the historical events to be commemorated, will no doubt largely enlist the feelings and patriotism of friends and neighbors, and the people generally, in the solemn ceremonies to be observed here and elsewhere on the seventeenth of June.

It is now more than ten years since we all co-operated in making common cause to preserve the Union of our Fathers, against a misguided and ambitious attempt to divide and destroy it; but in these days and years of Centennial Celebrations to commemorate the achievements of all the heroic and patriotic men in all of the old thirteen States, who pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honour, in support of Independence and National Union, it is to be hoped that precious memories of the recorded events which occurred ninety and one hundred years ago, will be revived. This will bring into clearer view the causes, hardships and unselfish patriotism which compelled a union of the old thirteen Colonies in self-defense. It will stir the hearts of the present generation to discern more clearly the noble deeds of the wise and patriotic men who achieved our Independence. They can more clearly estimate the blood and treasure spent to finally establish our National Government under the Constitution, which went into operation in 1789, fourteen years after the first blood was shed at Lexington and Concord.

It is to be hoped that the bitter feeling engendered by the late civil war will be laid aside in all the thirty-eight States of the present Union, in the more patriotic feeling that will be aroused by the contemplation of the constancy, firmness, and great ability manifested by the Revolutionary Fathers in the early days of the Republic. There will be numerous Centennial Celebrations, each having its peculiar memories to commemorate, in which all our countrymen can participate.

The celebration of the first great battle of the American Revolution will be observed this year with solemn and impressive ceremonies at the foot of Bunker Hill Monument, on the seventeenth of June. Hon. Robert C. Winthrop has been selected to deliver the address. Most extensive preparations are being made for the International Celebration at Philadelphia on the fourth of July, 1876. Solemn ceremonies will be observed at Independence Hall in commemoration of the immortal Declaration of Independence adopted and promulgated by the Continental Congress representing all the Colonies, in which great principles were enunciated and all allegiance to the British Government totally dissolved. Yorktown will afford another opportunity for a Grand Centennial Celebration to be participated in by all true Americans, to commemorate the surrender of the British forces by Lord Cornwallis to Gen. Washington on the nineteenth day of October, 1781, which was the last Great Battle in the war for American Independence. And finally the celebration of the crowning act of adopting our National Constitution, by which the union of all the States was based on a firm foundation under a Republican form of government, and under which we have so greatly prospered.

Marvelous progress, which is known to you all, has been made in the last hundred years. We ought to be grateful to the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, that thirty-eight States, having a common interest and one destiny, are now embraced in the Union under the Constitution. May union and harmony prevail, internal discord forever cease, and the Union be perpetual.

With these views and feelings, I have invited my friends and neighbors to join in the proposed ceremonies at Forest Lawn Cemetery on the seventeenth of June. The granite memorial which I intend to place on this beautiful ground is the visible expression of my gratitude to the heroic men whose patriotic deeds so wisely shaped the destiny of this great country one hundred years ago.

Very respectfully,

BUFFALO, May, 1875. E. G. SPALDING.

Ceremonies at Forest Lawn Cemetery.—Hon. James Sheldon, President of the Buffalo Historical Society, will preside. Rev. G. W. Heacock, D. D., will deliver the address. Prayers, with vocal and instrumental music, suitable to the occasion, a full programme of which will hereafter be announced.

The soldiers bearing the name of Spalding, who fought in the Battle of Bunker Hill, are as follows:

The soldiers of the Revolution, whose memories are thus perpetuated by one of their own kindred and name, Captain Levi Spalding, of Hillsborough county, N.H., and grandfather of Hon. E. G. Spalding, who renders this magnificent tribute. He was captain of the 9th Company, 3d Regiment, commanded by Col. Reed and participated in the Battle of Bunker Hill with other New Hampshire troops. He was also in the service most of the time during the war and was present at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. Three years ago his remains were transferred from Plainfield, Otsego county, N.Y., to E. G. Spalding's family lot, where the monument now stands.

Lieut. Joseph Spalding of Pepperell, Mass., was shot from his horse during battle, while standing by the side of Col. Prescott.

William Spalding was wounded in the wrist at the battle of Bunker Hill. He continued for a long time as a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and drew a pension as long as he lived.

Joseph Spalding lived and died at Chelmsford, Mass. He fought in the battle of Bunker Hill, and killed the first man, a lieutenant.

First Lieut. Ebenezer Spalding and Second Lieut. Thomas Spalding, were also in Col. Prescott's regiment at the battle of Bunker Hill.

Eben Spalding and Uriah Spalding fought in the battle of Bunker Hill as private soldiers.

Dr. John Spalding was a surgeon in one of the regiments. And thus briefly are told the stories of the men to whose memory the cenotaph was dedicated yesterday.

The following is an extract from the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser regarding the dedication services of the Spalding Monument:

BUNKER-HILL CENTENNIAL.

Dedication of the Spalding Monument.—The Programme Interfered with by the Rain.—Exercises at the First Presbyterian Church.—Military Parade.—Reception in the Evening.—Letters.—The Monument.

Owing to the very unpropitious weather yesterday afternoon the exercises dedicatory of the monument erected in Forest Lawn Cemetery by the Hon. E. G. Spalding, as a memorial of his nine relatives who took part in the famous battle of Bunker Hill, were held at the First Presbyterian Church, instead of at the Cemetery, and consequently the original programme had to be partially abandoned.

Notwithstanding the rain, however, a goodly number of people assembled in the church, and among those present were many well-known and prominent citizens. On the platform were seated the President of the day, the Hon. James Sheldon, President of the Historical Society; also Mr. Spalding, and the following named gentlemen: The Rev. Dr. Wm. Shelton, the Rev. Dr. G. W. Heacock, the Rev. Dr. A. T. Chester, the Rev. J. D. Adams, Lt.-Gov. Dorsheimer, Mayor Dayton. Also the Hon. E. Darwin Smith, the Hon. Milton W. Merwin, the Hon. J. W. Gilbert, the Hon. John L. Talcott, the Hon. Chas. Daniels, and the Hon. George Barker—all Justices of the Supreme Court; ex-Judge R. P. Marvin of Jamestown; the Hon. James M. Smith, Judge of the Superior Court of Buffalo.

About three o'clock the members of Company D, Buffalo City Guard, and the Cadet Corps, entered the church and took seats which had been reserved for them. Gen. Rogers and the members of his staff arrived shortly after. The male chorus of the Buffalo Choral Union occupied the north gallery, and Kehr's band took a position in the organ-loft.

The exercises began with the playing of "Hail Columbia" by the band. Judge Sheldon then arose, and made a brief opening address.

An impressive invocation was then made by the Rev. Dr. Chester.

"The Bunker-Hill Battle Chorus," composed by Mr. J. W. Bixby for the occasion, and heretofore published, was then finely sung by the members of the Choral Union, led by Mr. Edward P. Mills.

The Rev. Dr. Shelton, before offering prayer, said that we had met to commemorate one of the great events by which we had achieved our liberty, and it would be preposterous and profane on such an occasion not to acknowledge our indebtedness to Him from whom all blessings come. Dr. Shelton then read some appropriate sentences from the Bible, after which he knelt and invoked the Divine blessing.

The song "Where is the Nation?" was then rendered by the Choral Union.

The Rev. Dr. Heacock, orator of the day, was then introduced, and was received with applause. His excellent and appropriate address will be found in full upon the first page of this issue. In the course of his remarks the Doctor exhibited an antique powder-horn carried by Benjamin Williams at the battle of Bunker Hill. Also the sword of a British officer, taken at the same battle by an American soldier. The powder-horn is the property of Gibson T. Williams, Esq., and the old sword belongs to Mr. Spalding. The sight of these articles caused the audience to break forth into enthusiastic applause.

When Dr. Heacock had finished, Prof. E. L. Baker played several national airs upon the organ, in his usual fine style. The anthem "America" was then sung with spirit by the Choral Union. The audience rose and joined in singing the Doxology, following which the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. D. Adams. The exercises closed about half-past four o'clock.

After the close of the exercises in the church the day was further celebrated by a street parade of the military organizations which were to have formed the procession to Forest Lawn, had the weather been fine.

The procession passed through some of the principal thoroughfares, and luckily the march of the soldiers was not rendered unpleasant by a renewal of the rain, which had ceased about four o'clock. At the corner of Chippewa and Franklin streets, they were reviewed by General Rogers and staff. The appearance of the men on parade was very creditable.

The reception given by Mr. Spalding at his residence on Main street last evening was a brilliant and delightful affair, attended by a very large number of guests, including the elite of the city. The house, beautifully lighted and decorated, was thrown open to the visitors until a late hour, and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Spalding was of the most bountiful character. The floral decorations of the different rooms were superb. Over the glass in the dining room was a floral inscription—"Bunker Hill, 1775." The "liberty cap," made of red, white and pink flowers, was conspicuous and greatly admired. This was to have been placed on the monument at Forest Lawn, had the exercises taken place there. The original "flag of freedom" used at Bunker Hill, which was also to have adorned the monument, was displayed for the benefit of the guests.

The hours were most happily spent in social intercourse, dancing, etc., and at twelve supper was in order. It was some time later—or earlier—before the guests exchanged the brilliance and elegance of the mansion, for their carriages, and a ride home through the darkness and chilly atmosphere of "the small hours."

The following is an extract from the "Courier," of Buffalo, N.Y.:

The reception in the evening, at the hospitable residence of Mr. Spalding was one of the most brilliant known to the history of the city. The house, which is one of Buffalo's proudest mansions, was thrown wide open, and the numberless lights and brilliant decorations argued an entertainment of a princely character.

Mr. and Mrs. Spalding received their guests in the front parlor with generous assurances of welcome, which ceremony was kept up until a late hour in the night. The house was magnificently adorned with flowers, the floors were covered with spotless duck, and the scene was altogether a charming one. Over the pier glass in the dining-room was placed the floral inscription, in white blossoms dotted with red, and the "liberty cap," constructed of tiers of scarlet, red, pink and white blossoms, was indeed a triumph in the florist's art. It was about four feet in height, and half as broad, and rested in a bow-window, where it was constantly surrounded by an admiring crowd. Mr. W. J. Palmer, whose skill is reflected in it, can certainly be congratulated upon his success. The liberty cap was to have adorned the top of the cenotaph of Forest Lawn had the weather proved favorable. Silken flags of many descriptions were draped appropriately in various rooms; and upon the lawn, where it was planned to have a secluded retreat for a promenade behind a wall of growing plants, and upon the velvety lawn, was hung a copy of the original flag of freedom, used at Bunker Hill. It has a blue field and a red cross upon a ground of white, in one portion of which is the pine tree. The guests began to arrive shortly after eight o'clock, and by eleven the spacious rooms of Mr. Spalding's mansion were crowded. Dancing was in order and a large number of those present availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy life to the enlivening strains of the excellent band of music in attendance. An elaborate supper was announced at twelve, and as a competent corps of waiters were present, all were served with convenience to themselves and in a manner to secure universal enjoyment. The festivities were continued far into the morning before a thought of the end was broached.

BUNKER HILL,

He drifted Westward at an early age, locating at Maquoketa, Iowa, where he lived many years, being both a farmer and surveyor. When past sixty years of age, in company with his sons, he removed to the mining districts of Colorado. It was here, at the age of seventy years, unarmed and single-handed, he encountered and slew a large mountain lion, an account of which adventure was published in the "Youth's Companion," and was extensively copied by other papers throughout the country. He next returned to his old home in Maquoketa; and finally, some ten years prior to his death, removed to his daughter's home at Weston, W.Va., where he ended his long and eventful life. His last words were: "I am resting under the shadow of the Almighty."

6360. Dr. JAMES[7] [2837], (Reuben[6], Reuben[5], Ephraim[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. March 20, 1792, in Sharon, Vt.; d. March 15, 1858; 1st, m. Eliza Reed, of Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 2, 1820; she was b. Oct. 13, 1798, at Hampstead, N. H.; she d. Aug. 8, 1853, at Montpelier, Vt.; 2d, m. Mrs. Anna (Lyman) Dodd, April 18, 1855, at Springfield, Mass.; she was b. Nov. 28, 1798, at Hartford, Vt.; she d. Dec. 11, 1856, in Montpelier, Vt.

His father, Deacon Reuben Spalding, was one of the early settlers in the State, whose life was not more remarkable for his toils, privation, and energy as a pioneer in a new country, than for his unbending integrity and for the best qualities of the old New England puritanism. James was the third son of twelve children, all of whom reached maturity, and were settled in life with families. At the age of seven years he received a small wound in the knee-joint, which was succeeded by an acute inflammation and suppuration, confining him for more than six months, and attended with extreme suffering. During this sickness Dr. Nathan Smith, of Hanover, was called; the knee had been opened at several different points, but still there was no improvement. This eminent surgeon discovered matter deeply seated in the ham, and made a free incision, after which the limb healed, leaving the knee partially anchylosed, to recover from which required years.

It was while confined that he entertained the idea of becoming a physician and surgeon, probably in consequence of his high estimation of Dr. Smith, which was retained through life. Hence he received from his companions the title of "doctor," and retained it, until by his scientific and literary attainments he became justly entitled to it. His early advantages were limited, having never attended a high school or academy, but still his love of study enabled him to obtain a good common school education, besides storing his mind with much general knowledge. Alone and without instruction, he had acquired that mental discipline which so highly distinguished him in after life. He commenced his medical studies at the age of seventeen, with Dr. Eber Carpenter, of Alstead, N. H., stipulating that the expenses of his education should be defrayed by his practicing one year with the doctor after he had graduated. He applied himself with uncommon assiduity to his medical studies, taking at the same time private lessons in Greek and Latin. At the age of twenty, he graduated at the Dartmouth Medical Institution, having heard the lectures from those celebrated teachers, Smith and Perkins.

It may not be improper to remark, that while a student, his opportunities for practice were very extensive. It was then that the spotted fever prevailed so generally throughout New England. This epidemic was truly appalling in Alstead and the neighboring towns. Dr. Spalding had an opportunity of studying the disease under all its varied aspects, and brought his discriminating mind to the subject with all the candor and close observation of a veteran in the science, and arrived at the same conclusions as to its pathology and treatment, as others who had the best opportunities for observation, and stood the most eminent in the profession. His position was very embarrassing, being called the boy physician, having to meet men renowned in the profession, for whom he entertained an exalted opinion. Modesty would hardly permit him to differ from them, yet he had so carefully studied the epidemic that in most cases his views and treatment were adopted.

After practicing two years in Alstead with Dr. Carpenter, he commenced business in Claremont; but having friends in Montpelier, he was induced by their urgent solicitation to remove to that place. Though but a boy, he had seen much practice, and performed many surgical operations, and therefore it required but a short time for him to gain general confidence as a physician, and more especially as a surgeon, which he retained without abatement through life. His fixed purpose seemed to be improvement in his profession, having never engaged in any other business or sought any political preferment. Others may have done more under other circumstances; yet, by his example, integrity, industry, communications for the medical journals, and dissertations before the county and State medical societies, from time to time, it may with propriety be said he added something to the general stock of knowledge in his profession. As a surgeon, Dr. Spalding was successful above most others. The distinguishing trait of his mind was a sound judgment based upon a careful and discriminating examination of all the evidence which gave to each case its peculiar character. Being well informed in the books and the general principles of his profession, and having an extensive intercourse with his medical brethren, he was well prepared to impart to others the results of his extensive experience. With propriety it may be said he was an original thinker, as was not only manifested in his medical and surgical practice, but in other departments of science.

Few men had occasion to change their opinions, when formed, so seldom, as Dr. Spalding. Others might come to conclusions more readily, but, when his opinions were formed, the evidence upon which they were based was in his own mind; and for this reason he was much sought for in consultations. It was a maxim with him, that there should be no guess-work in his profession, and more especially in surgery. In consultations, due respect was paid to the opinions of his professional brethren, but still he would suffer his judgment to be influenced only as the evidence in the case affected his own mind, never evading responsibility, and always governed by his own independent conclusions.

Dr. S. retained through life the confidence and respect of his professional brethren. From his commencement in practice until his death, he was much engaged in consultations. Though often differing from others in his diagnosis and treatment of disease, yet he succeeded in having the confidence of patient and friends in the attending physician unabated; thus discharging his duty to his patients without injury to the feelings or reputation of any one. It was the settled maxim of his life, that strict integrity was the true and only policy which should govern every man who desires his own interests or that of others, and therefore he never sought to appropriate to himself what justly belonged to them.

For more than forty years he was an active member of the Vermont State Medical Society, and through it he labored to advance the best interests of the profession he so much loved. He thus became acquainted with most of the distinguished physicians of the State, among whom he had many personal friends. In 1819 he was elected secretary, which office he held for over twenty years. In 1842 he was appointed chairman of a committee to draft a petition to the Legislature for a geological survey of the State. He was elected vice-president in 1843, treasurer in 1844, chairman of the committee on the history of the society in 1845. He read a thesis in 1846, "On Nature as manifested in Disease and Health," which was very highly commended. He was elected president in 1846-7-8, and delivered a dissertation on typhus fever in 1848, which was published by vote of the Society. He was elected corresponding secretary in 1850, and librarian in 1854, which office he held until his death. He was also a member of the Board of Fellows of the Vermont Academy of Medicine, besides holding many offices in the State connected with science, literature, temperance, etc. But few men in the country have seen such an amount of disease, and so carefully observed the peculiarities of the various epidemics occurring for nearly half a century; and it is to be regretted that so little is left on record of his extensive observations and experience, both as a physician and a surgeon.

Not only as a professional man would we lament our departed friend, but as a Christian, father, citizen, and philanthropist would we remember him. His life was that of the Good Samaritan—a life of toil, prayer, and sympathy for others. His principles were deeply rooted in the heart, and his faith manifested by his works. We love to contemplate his character, and hope his mantle will fall on many who will as faithfully devote their lives to the best interests of their fellow-beings; and as highly honor their adopted profession.

6370. Dr. Phineas[7] [2840], (Reuben[6], Reuben[5], Ephraim[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. Jan. 14, 1799, in Sharon, Vt.; 1st, m. Caroline-Bailey Lothrop, of Lyndon, Vt., Sept. 24, 1826; she was b. Aug. 15, 1803; d. Aug. 27, 1842, at Haverhill, N. H.; 2d, m. Charlotte Merrill, Sept. 17, 1843; she was b. Dec. 6, 1814, and was the daughter of Capt. Benjamin Merrill; she d. April 4, 1887.

After finishing his education at the Randolph Academy, Phineas taught school in his native state at Sharon, Tunbridge and Montpelier, consecutively.

In 1820 he began the study of medicine under the tuition of his brother James. He also attended lectures at Hanover, and was there elected honorary member of the United Fraternity of Dartmouth College. In 1823 he commenced the practice of his profession at Lyndon, Vt., and remained there sixteen years. In 1839 he settled in Haverhill, N. H., where he soon had a large practice, and was appointed to deliver a course of lectures at the Newbury Seminary; and subsequently was called to deliver lectures at the Vermont Medical College at Woodstock, Vt.

In 1835 he received the degree of A. M. from the University of Vermont. In 1861 he was appointed examining surgeon for pensions, which office he held for more than fifteen years.

Dr. Phineas Spalding was instrumental in raising funds for building the Lyndon Academy; also in establishing the Haverhill Academy, of which he was a member of the board for over thirty years. He is a prominent Mason, has ever been an active worker in the cause of temperance, and is a leading spirit in religious circles.

In 1887 he wrote and published, for private distribution, a Memorial and Personal Reminiscences of himself and his immediate family, which is a very meritorious work, and contains a collection of the selected poems of his beloved daughter, Caroline. In this work he says:

"During the sixteen years I remained at Lyndon I had a great amount of practice in the neighboring towns in all the branches that pertain to a physician's life. Being the principal surgeon and consulting physician, I had a good opportunity not only to become acquainted with the most important cases of sickness, but also with the views and practice of my professional brethren. Very many cases came up of great responsibility, and I will relate one, because I believe that it was a benefit to the profession, being a new departure at that time from the established mode of treatment:

"Gov. Cahoon of Lyndon fell sixteen feet in his mill, producing an inter-capsular fracture of the hip joint. I had been taught by Professor Mussey, and from the writings of Sir Astley Cooper of London, that fractures of this character would not admit of ossific, only ligamentous, union, on account of the nature of the parts; and a person suffering such an accident must necessarily be a cripple. After being perfectly satisfied as to my diagnosis, I stated this to Mr. Cahoon, and read to him the different authorities on the subject. I then said to him, if I was injured in this manner, I should make appliances and try for a perfect cure, but that it would require ninety days to give the limb a fair chance for ossific union, and perfect rest, without which it would not take place. He replied, on account of a pulmonary difficulty he could not submit to such a confinement. I therefore fixed the limb as well as I could, and left him. After a few days the limb shortened three inches, and the foot very much everted outward. Mr. Cahoon then sent for me and said he would rather die than remain a cripple for life, and he would submit to any treatment I thought best. I therefore made my appliances with an apparatus of my own invention, and watched the case with a great deal of care; and at the end of three months had the satisfaction of seeing a perfect cure. As this was so important a case in surgery, I felt it a duty I owed to the profession and the world, to publish it, and therefore wrote an article in the New England Medical Journal, printed at Boston, October, 1827, giving a full history of the case, my mode of appliances and my reason for disagreeing with former authorities. Mr. Cahoon lived about ten years longer, and no one would have supposed by his walk that he ever had a fractured limb; and he afterward died of consumption. I made an examination of the joint, found the bone had been fractured according to my diagnosis, and that there was a most perfect union. This examination I also published in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

"I am now of the opinion that if this case was not the first one where a cure of fracture within the capsular ligament was perfect, that it was the first case published, and the reasons given why under favorable circumstances we may hope for a perfect union of the bones. Several years after this Dr. Mussey carried a thigh-bone to Europe and showed it to Sir Astley Cooper, who acknowledged his error in his former teaching; and now in all our hospitals in this and other countries, the doctrine is fully established."

Dr. Phineas Spalding is ninety-six years of age, and still lives (1895) at Haverhill, N. H.

6371. Caroline-Anastasia, b. July 12, 1827, in Lyndon, Vt.; d. June 13, 1888, at Haverhill, N. H. She received a thorough education, and attained great ability as a musician and litterateur. She taught music in the Academy, and for twenty years led the service of song at the organ in the church. She was constantly engaged in philanthropic work; and organized various societies for the improvement of young people. Her contributions of both prose and verse were valuable acquisitions to the literature of the day, and about 120 pages of her selected poems were published in 1887 by her father, but for private distribution only.

Lydia Benham, of New York City, May 19, 1863.

He graduated from the Medical College in Fairfield, N.Y., in 1838, and subsequently practiced successfully in Fort Madison, Iowa; Tully, Mo., and Louisville, Ky. In 1846 he was appointed Surgeon for the Saux and Fox Tribe of Indians of Missouri. In 1849 he went to California, continuing the practice of Medicine in Sacramento. In 1855 he returned to Louisville, Ky. He next spent a year in Europe. In 1858 he settled in St. Joseph, Mo., and in 1869 he moved to Hamilton, Nevada; thence to Salt Lake City, Utah; thence to Virginia City, Nevada, and thence to San Francisco, Cal., in 1872, where he remained until his death.

The death of his only son, in 1883, was his great sorrow, from which he never fully recovered. In a letter dated July 6, 1883, he writes of his son: "Only a few weeks ago he was with us, eagerly anticipating the advent of his eighteenth birthday; and now 'The grave grows green, the flowers bloom fair,' over buried loves and blighted hopes. I cannot think him dead. I hear his footfall on the stairs, the tones of his voice, his looks — all, all as in life. I call his name! There is no answer; he is not here."

He acknowledged himself a cosmopolitan; had experienced the successes and reverses of business; the intense joy of loving and being loved; and the agonizing sorrows of bereavements. The earthly remains of Dr. Volney Spalding, repose by the side of his beloved son in the beautiful Mountain View Cemetery, in Oakland, Cal.

Wilhelmina Harris Makee, July 18, 1871, at Ulupalakua, on the island of Mani, Hawaiian Islands; she was b. March 26, 1847, the eldest daughter of Captain James Makee, formerly of Woburn, Mass., and Catharine (Niven) Makee, formerly of New York City.

He is the second son of the late Hon. Rufus-Paine Spalding, a learned Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio; his mother was a daughter of the late Hon. Zephaniah Swift, Chief-Justice of Connecticut, and author of "Swift's Digest," after whom he was named.

Col. Z. S. Spalding took an active part in the civil war, and was a member of the famous New York Seventh, going to Washington on April 19, 1861. Afterwards he commanded the 27th Regt. Ohio Volunteer Infantry as Major and Lieutenant-Colonel, participating in numerous severe battles and skirmishes.

After the close of the war he was sent to Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, as Special and Confidential Agent of the Department of State. There he was appointed United States Consul for Honolulu, and for a time had charge of the Legation as Acting Charge d'Affaires. He represented the Hawaiian Government as Commissioner at the Exposition Universelle, at Paris, in 1889, and received from the French Government the order of the Legion d' Honneur. Under letters of Denization he now (1896) holds Commission from the Republic of Hawaii as Charge d' Affaires for the Kingdom of Belgium.

He has large sugar interests in the Hawaiian Islands, having been somewhat prominently connected with that industry for over a quarter of a century. He first went into the manufacture of sugar with the King of Hawaii, Kamehameha V., after whose death he formed a partnership with King Kalakaua, in the same business. Besides his sugar interests, Mr. Spalding has business investments in various parts of the United States and Canada, and the greater part of his time is spent traveling about in connection with these interests.

In December, 1895, Col. Spalding was granted by the United Stated Government a subsidy of forty thousand dollars a year, toward building and maintaining a cable from the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. It is estimated that the construction of this cable will amount to $3,000,000; and that it will cost at least $300,000 to pay interest and expense of maintenance.

Although much of his life has been spent on his plantation in Hawaii, and abroad, he has always held allegiance to the United States, his last vote having been cast in San Francisco, which is his American home. For a number of years he has lived in Paris, solely to afford his children the best of educational facilities.

At Albany, N.Y., he started in life as a druggist, and hence derived the title of doctor. Accidentally he became connected with the circus business. He had advanced some money to one of those traveling shows, and the only way he had of recovering it was to take possession of the circus and manage it himself. Once fairly embarked on his new venture, he managed it with such enterprise, liberality and prudence, that he became known as the leading circus manager of the country, and in the course of years amassed a large fortune. He associated with himself after a time Mr. Roger, and afterward he and Mr. David Bidwell became partners. Success attended all their enterprises, and both grew immensely wealthy. Afterward Dr. Spalding launched out into theatrical managership. He and Mr. Bidwell became proprietors and managers of the Academy of Music, New Orleans, and the joint direction was not dissolved until about 1872. After the war, in 1865, Dr. Spalding purchased the Olympic, then used as a circus, and afterward metamorphosed it into a theater. After managing it most successfully he withdrew, yielding the active duties to his son, Charles A. Spalding.

Dr. Spalding left property considerably over one million dollars in value. In St. Louis his real estate cost him $226,000 cash down. Most of it is situated in the block where the Olympic Theater stands, of which two-thirds belonged to him. At Saugerties, on the River Hudson, New York, he owned a magnificent residence and grounds extending for 100 acres along the river bank. For the ten years prior to his death, Dr. Spalding and his wife lived at this beautiful spot and spent most of their time improving and beautifying it. He also owned lands and farms in New York State, real estate in New York City, lands in Indiana and at Girard, Pennsylvania. The sole heir to this vast property was Chas. A. Spalding, who had practically managed it for the last eight years for his father before his death.

Jesse Spalding

He was elected to the Legislature in 1853, and again in 1863. He was a man of earnest convictions, fearless in expressing them, and took great interest in all public affairs. The public placed great confidence in his integrity and ability, as was often shown by the numerous trusts and honorable positions that were imposed upon them.

In 1875 his health began to fail, from the effects of a sunstroke, and ultimately his death resulted from a stroke of apoplexy, in August, 1877, at Janesville, Wis.

On attaining his majority he engaged in lumbering on the north branch of the Susquehanna, as woodsman and raftsman, subsequently dealing in lumber on his own account. In 1857 he went to Chicago, and soon after commenced the manufacture of lumber in Wisconsin. He bought a saw-mill at Menekaunee, which has since been rebuilt, and is now thoroughly equipped with modern machinery. His purchase of timber lands in Wisconsin and Michigan to supply his mills have aggregated 265,000 acres. Besides its value for timber, this land has proven rich in iron ore, and three mines are now successfully operated on the property. The output of the mills at Cedar River is shipped in boats owned by the Spalding Lumber Co., direct to Chicago.

Mr. Spalding is amply fitted by nature and training for the manipulation of large interests, and his success is in no small degree due to the fact that he does not despise small things. All the minutiæ of his extensive interests are familiar to him, and his practical experience enables him to give attention to the smallest detail. His investments in banking and other financial concerns are made with the same judicious care, and are equally successful with his other undertakings. He is a director in many large corporations of the city, and his advice is frequently sought in the conduct of many tentative, though important enterprises. It is not strange that his fellow citizens should discover in him a capable man of affairs; and when the city was destroyed by fire in 1871, he was sought out as one who would be useful in adjusting public business to existing conditions, and in raising Chicago from its ashes and rejuvenating business activity. He was three years in the city council, and while Chairman of the Finance Committee he, by judicious management, aided in the restoration of the city's financial credit, materially furthering the establishment of good municipal government. In 1861, when the nation was threatened with destruction, Mr. Spalding was among the most active defenders. He was requested by the Adjutant General of the State of Illinois to build and equip barracks for the Government soldiers, (afterwards known as "Camp Douglas,") besides which he built barracks the following year on the north side for returning soldiers. He furnished all the material for these structures, receiving in payment the State Auditor's warrants, there being no funds to be applied to this purpose.

Mr. Spalding has been an active worker in the interest of the Republican party from its inception, because he believed the weal of the Nation depended upon the success of the principles maintained by that party. He was a personal friend of Grant, Arthur and Conklin, as well as other prominent National leaders, and gave counsel in many grave exigencies. He presided at the unveiling of the Grant Monument in Lincoln Park. When appointed Director of the Union Pacific Railroad on behalf of the Government, by President Harrison, he made a personal investigation of the property in his own painstaking way, submitting a report to the Secretary of the Interior. This report, which gave a careful view of the resources of the country traversed by the line, and its future prospects, was ordered printed by Congress and commanded careful attention from financiers and those concerned in the relations of the Pacific Roads to the Government. It was also embraced in the annual report of the Board of Directors of the Union Pacific Railway Company.

The companies of which Mr. Spalding is the head annually produce about seventy-five millions of feet of lumber.

Mr. Spalding is also a director in many large corporations of Chicago. He was three years in the City Council, and in 1881 was appointed Collector of the Port of Chicago. President Harrison appointed him a Director of the Union Pacific Railroad on behalf of the government.

Mr. Spalding was associated with William B. Ogden and others in the project for cutting a canal from Sturgeon Bay to Green Bay, which was completed in 1882. This canal was purchased by the government in 1893, and made free to all navigation.

6796. Rev. HENRY-HARMON[7] [3131], (Howard[6], Joseph[5], Joseph[4], Nathaniel[3], Joseph[2], Edward[1]), b. Nov. 26, 1803, in Bath, N.Y.; d. Aug. 3, 1874, at the Lapwai Mission, Idaho; 1st, m. Eliza Hart, of Berlin, Conn., Oct. 12, 1833, at Hudson, Ohio; she was the daughter of Capt. Levi and Martha Hart, and was b. Aug. 11, 1807, in Berlin, Conn.; she moved with her parents to Holland Patent, Oneida Co., N.Y., in 1816; she d. Jan. 7, 1851, in Brownsville, Linn Co., Oregon, a lingering victim of the Waulatpu tragedy of Nov. 29, 1847; 2d, m. Rachel-Jahonnet Smith, May 12, 1853.

His early life was spent in Wheeler, Steuben Co., N.Y. He became a Christian under the ministry of the excellent Rev. James H. Hotchkin, and united with the Presbyterian Church at Prattsburg, N.Y. He educated himself by his own exertions and the help of friends; graduated at Western Reserve College in 1833, and at Lane Theological Seminary in 1835; ordained missionary of the A. B. C. F. M., by the Bath Presbytery of Tioga Co., N. Y., Aug., 1835; and in 1836 crossed the Rocky Mountains with his wife, and in company with Dr. and Mrs. Whitman. An account of the labors and sufferings of the early missionaries of Oregon are given in Senate Ex. Doc. No. 37, 41st Congress, 3d session. He became a missionary in Oregon, U. S., and res. Brownsville, Linn Co., Oregon.

"I visited the old mission and Indian burial ground," writes a recent visitor to the Lapwai mission in Idaho, "and bared my head by the graves of Spalding and Monteith. The following, taken from one of the headstones, speaks volumes concerning the consecration of the early missionaries on this coast: 'Rev. Henry

Harmon Spalding, Born at Bath, N.Y., Nov. 26, 1803. Commenced the Nez Perces Mission in 1836. Died among his people at Lapwai, I. T., Aug. 3, 1874, Aged 70 yrs. 8 mos. 7 days.'

"The pen of the historian has hardly done relative justice to the memory of this remarkable soldier of the cross whose ashes repose beneath the sod at the quiet old mission. The thrill, the dash, the romance of Whitman's ride have diverted the public mind from the achievements of his associate and co-worker. Yet surrounding the youthful sacrifice of Rev. Spalding there were some circumstances that made his missionary efforts more simply heroic than those of the lamented Whitman. Spalding and bride had set their faces toward the broad savannas of the west before the youthful Whitman started upon his remarkable wedding journey. The former had chosen as his field of missionary labors the country of the Osages. Whitman ran after him, overtook him in his novel conveyance of combination sleigh and prairie schooner, and importuned him to go with himself and bride to the solitudes of the ultima thule of the Oregon. Mrs. Spalding was still weak and emaciated from the effects of a severe illness, but the resolute young couple sought inspiration from their Master, and ten minutes later the heroic wife, with radiant face and eyes filled with holy zeal and hope, said, 'I have made up my mind for Oregon.' And to Oregon they came, blazing the trail through the wilderness and the desert—the trail that Fremont followed six years later and claimed for himself the 'Pathfinder.' Upon the very summit of the continent Mrs. Spalding fainted from exhaustion, but a cup of water dipped from a tiny stream flowing to the Pacific, restored her to consciousness. There was magic, it seems, in the very waters that went rippling to the mighty Oregon. The civilization thus faintly begun has yet to do full justice to the memory of those gallant men and heroic Christian women. They were the first to come in peace and love; all before them had come in conquest and trade. They brought the priceless leaves of religion and knowledge; their memories should be perpetuated and sanctified in every church and school house that sits upon the smiling slopes of the Pacific coast.'

"In his infancy, his parents removed from Townsend, Mass., to Jaffrey, N. H., where he had his home until he commenced his academical and professional studies. His preparatory course was at Meriden, N. H., and he graduated at Amherst College in 1831. After leaving college he taught two terms at Appleton Academy, New Ipswich, N. H., from which place he went to the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass., where he graduated in 1834. He preached several Sabbaths in Marlborough, Mass., six months in Troy, N. H., and about four months in Chesterfield, N. H. In 1835, he was invited to preach in Cornish, N. H., and at the end of three months' 'probation', he was ordained, Oct. 1, 1835. He remained pastor at Cornish nearly thirty years. He was dismissed Feb. 7, 1865, to accept a call from the Congregational church at Weathersfield Centre, Vt., where he was installed, June 28, 1865. He was a man of buoyant feeling, genial manner, and naturally a fine mind. He was a kind pastor and a faithful preacher. His theology was thorough and clear, giving prominence to the doctrines of sin and atonement, yet he was no polemic. His funeral was held at his church in Weathersfield, May 14. His body sleeps in the cemetery at Cornish, N. H., among the people of his first charge." [Cong. Quar., vol. 10, p. 381.]

Mr. Spalding was engaged for many years as agent of different journals. He was the founder of the Commercial Bulletin, was connected with the Boston Traveler for thirty years, and is now connected with the Boston Globe.

The following is part of what appeared in the Boston Traveler, about their Golden Wedding:

"Fifty years ago last week Elder Hezekiah Buzzell, at Alton, N. H., officiated at the nuptials of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Spalding, and now a half a century after, three sons, a daughter and six grandchildren assisted in the celebration marking their golden wedding day. Mr. Spalding is one of the best known newspaper veterans in Boston. For more than forty years he was connected with the Boston Traveler and for twenty-five was a stockholder in the paper. Five years ago he became connected with the Boston Globe, and is now in active work on that paper. He is also a prominent mason. Of the sons, two have become identified with the newspaper world, George F. Spalding, Jr., being advertising manager of the Boston Post, and Charles H. connected with the Traveler. The third son is proprietor of the well-known educational bureau on Bromfield street. The daughter is Mrs. Samuel Holton. Mr. and Mrs. Spalding have lived in West Medford for over thirty-three years, where they have an elegant estate. Mr. Spalding has also long been interested in Medford real estate and owns a large number of houses.

"The wedding reception was a most enjoyable affair, calling out a very large attendance of relatives and friends from near and far. Among them Medford's foremost citizen, the Hon. Eleazer Boynton, Senator in '85 and '86, an old friend and neighbor of Mr. Spalding, who boasts equal business veteranship. Alderman Lovering and wife, Alderman McIntire and wife, and the members of the city council were among the other prominent guests. At eight o'clock the gray-haired, sweet-faced bride of fifty years, attended by the groom and two little granddaughter bridesmaids, entered the room and took their station with the sons and daughters to receive. Mrs. Spalding wore a rich dress of black silk and jet relieved with white lace and pink roses. Mr. Spalding never looked handsomer, in spite of his seventy odd years. Mrs. Samuel Holton, the daughter, was gowned in red and black-figured India silk and wore white flowers; Mrs. Charles Spalding was in black silk, jet and pink chiffon, with diamonds; Mrs. Frank Spalding wore heliotrope silk with white satin ribbon and diamonds; Mrs. George Spalding was in white silk and otter, with pink carnations. The two little granddaughters, Lucy and Frances Spalding were in white and pink silk. Mrs. Nathaniel Chase of Alton, who was Mrs. Spalding's bridesmaid fifty years ago, was unable to be present. Messrs. D. E. Ahearn, W. E. Crosby and H. F Johnson, with white ribbon lovers'-knots for boutonnieres, acting as ushers.

"The gifts were exceedingly numerous and costly. General Taylor presented to the bride a handsome gold watch, and to the groom a diamond cluster scarf pin. From Mr. Spalding's associates on the Globe came a daintily conceived golden trinket, "two hearts in one."

"During the evening an orchestra furnished music, and an elegant collation was served in the flower-decked dining room. It was a late hour before the festivities were brought to a close. A beautiful poem was written for the golden wedding by Mrs. J. B. Plummer, of Medford, apropos of the event."

He became a practical expert in the jewelry business at an early age, having thoroughly learned the trade in his father's store at Aurora, Ill. He subsequently entered into business, and established the firm of Browne, Spalding & Co., which for many years was one of the leading jewelry houses of New York City, but which was finally dissolved in 1871. He then accepted a responsible position with the celebrated jewelry house of Tiffany & Co., New York. He was sent to Paris to conduct their branch house in that city, and soon after became a member of the firm. While connected with Tiffany & Co., he became personally associated with nearly all the royal imperial personages of the Old World, obtaining for his firm the patronage of the principal sovereigns of Europe, and succeeded in establishing the reputation of that house throughout the whole of Europe.

In 1888 he established the firm of H. E. Spalding & Co., Chicago, which is to-day one of the best known and most popular jewelry houses in America. Mr. Spalding has also filled many public and private positions of honor, which have added greatly to the lustre of his name.

Isaac Spalding

8126. Hon. ISAAC[7] [3959], (Isaac[6], Samuel[5], Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. Feb. 1, 1796, in New Ipswich, N. H.; d. May 14, 1876, at Nashua, N. H.; m. Lucy Kendall, of Amherst, N. H., May 1, 1828; she was the daughter of Nathan Kendall, and was b. Dec. 13, 1796; res. Nashua, N. H.

Mr. Spalding removed from New Ipswich, N. H., to Wilton, N. H., in 1800. His father, Capt. Isaac Spalding, was a man of good education for those times, but never possessed a property of more than two thousand dollars. His son therefore had a very limited education—only a few weeks instruction in winter, and was very early thrown upon his own resources.

In 1809, at the age of thirteen, he went to Amherst, N. H., as clerk of Robert Reed, Esq., a leading merchant of that place, with whom he continued seven years.

About 1816 he became a partner of Mr. Reed, and remained in that situation ten years, being also for the greater portion of the time postmaster.

In 1826 Mr. Spalding removed to Nashua, where he was a prominent merchant of the then new and thriving village. After twelve years in business, he retired from it to engage in railroad enterprises, chiefly in the Concord Railroad, with which he was connected for some twenty-five years. He was among the first who saw the importance of a railroad connection between the lakes and tide-water, and gave his aid to those enterprises.

He has been a man greatly respected by his own townsmen, and such was the confidence felt in his impartiality, that in the most heated political strifes, he would often be chosen moderator by unanimous consent. He was several times elected selectman, and representative of the town in the Legislature; and after the town became a city, he served in the board of aldermen. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention convened in Concord, Nov. 6, 1850; also a member of the Governor's Council in 1866-7 and 1867-8. He was chosen one of the trustees of the State Asylum for the Insane in 1863, and was elected president of that Board in 1869, succeeding Rev. Charles Burroughs, D.D. He was one of the earliest friends of the Concord Railroad, and its first treasurer; and from its incorporation in 1835 to 1866, he served either as treasurer, director, or president. He was for more than twenty-five years president of the Nashua Bank, a State institution which wound up its affairs in 1869, having never made a bad debt nor lost a dollar.

In the late war of the Rebellion, he was appointed Financial Agent of the Government, and assisted in providing the means of our country's success.

He is said to have been the richest man in New Hampshire and acquired his property by a course of integrity, industry, and economy, united with a wise forecast and untiring energy.

His will was probated May 23, 1876. There were over thirty bequests to various relatives of his family, aggregating two hundred thousand dollars, which did not include the valuable real estate and buildings that were bequeathed to his beloved wife, Lucy. His public bequests were: To the First Congregational Society of Nashua, $5,000; Sabbath School, $1,000; Appleton Academy, $5,000; Dartmouth College, $5,000; New Hampshire Asylum, $10,000; to the towns of New Ipswich, Wilton, and Amherst, $10,000 each, for a perpetual fund, the interest to be used for educational purposes; and various other smaller bequests.

John-Perrin Spalding, the Sugar King and Philanthropist, was a millionaire, and a bachelor. He avoided public life, but his good deeds made his name a familiar one throughout America. He served as Alderman in 1878, and in 1880 was Executive Councillor from the Fourth District, Boston. During this term of service he was a member of the committees of Finance, Railroads, Hoosac Tunnel, Charitable Institutions, and Military Affairs.

As a philanthropist he is best known, his gifts having been most munificent, while the poor and deserving were never forgotten; nor have any of his relatives been lost sight of.

He helped his business associates in times of disaster, and he and his late brother wired a ruined merchant before the flames of the big Chicago fire were extinguished: "Draw on us for $100,000." The then ruined man is to-day one of the wealthiest in Chicago. John-Perrin Spalding subscribed to such funds as that of the Rev. Dr. Hale, of $10,000 on his seventieth birthday; of $10,000 to the Rev. Dr. Herrick's new church; and large gifts to Bates College, the Children's Hospital, and various other institutions. In 1892 he gave $36,000 to eight young women employed at the United States Hotel; his protege, Helen Keller, that wonderful deaf, dumb and blind girl, owes her splendid education to his generosity. He was ever a friend to all classes, and kind and obliging in the way of advising widows and orphans as to the judicious investments of their savings.

He remained in Madison until 1855, when through his father's influence, as well as his own acquaintance, he managed to enter into partnership with Isaac Bullens of Chicopee, under the firm name of Isaac Bullens & Co., wholesale grocers. Two years later this partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Spalding removed to Boston, where he at once entered as a partner into the firm of Israel Nash & Co., 87 Broad St., wholesale grocers and dealers in West India supplies. He made no further change, except that in 1863 the firm name gave place to Nash, Spalding & Co., as at the time of his death, and that three years later the wholesale grocery end of the business was dropped and the big concern confined itself solely to the importation of teas, sugar and molasses.

The first departure in the manufacture of sugar on their own account was made in 1867, when Nash, Spalding & Co. bought the entire interest in the Oxnard sugar refinery on Broad St., afterwards conducting and enlarging on the enterprise until March, 1871, when the great Revere sugar refinery was established.

Business at the old refinery was continued for ten or a dozen years after the purchase and equipment of the big plant at Revere, which by that time had grown to enormous proportions.

While the sugar refinery held his chief attention, it was not by any means the only great business enterprise or interest with which his name was associated. He was for years a director in the Union Pacific railroad corporation before Jay Gould took control and possession. He was also, up to the time of his death, a director in the Boston & Albany railroad, the Atlas national bank, and International Trust company of Boston, and the American Surety in New York.

Notwithstanding that most of his property interests were in Boston and Revere, he was practically almost as well known among business men in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and New Orleans, as here. He was personally known to every banker and broker of the city, and his opinion on financial matters, especially in relation to investment in the securities of the sugar trust, was always highly prized. In fact, sugar stock was one of his hobbies, and although he was not personally identified with the management of the big combine, he was always on the "inside" on all matters pertaining to its dividend and other policies, and enjoyed the personal friendship and confidence of the Havemeyers and Searles.

He had pleasant rooms at the United States Hotel, Boston, and at his Maine farm, near Madison. He also maintained a palatial home at Dorchester, Mass., the grounds of which are eighteen acres in extent. It is located on the summit of a hill, and a splendid view of the harbor can be obtained from the upper stories.

The Boston Sunday Globe contained nearly two columns anent his death, of which the following is an extract: "By the death of John P. Spalding, the sugar king and philanthropist, Boston loses another of the great and good men, New England another of her commercial pillars, and the United States another of her millionaire merchants, true, loyal and patriotic citizens.

Solomon Spalding

8271. SOLOMON[7] [4045], (Solomon[6], Daniel[5], Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. July 20, 1811, in Merrimack, N. H.; m. Sarah Darling Edson, of Springfield, Vt., Feb. 16, 1834; she was the daughter of Asa Edson and Theodosia Cutler, and was b. March 1, 1811, and d. June 25, 1883.

His parents were also born in Merrimack, N. H., and the name of Spalding on the voting list of the town, in his younger days, numbered more than thirty legal voters. Merrimack is bounded some eight miles on the East by the Merrimack River, and the Souhegan River runs through the width of the town about five miles, East and West. There are several small lakes or ponds, the largest of which is Naticook (the Indian name), being one mile in length by three-quarters of a mile in width, and contains an island of several acres; it has been known as Spalding's Pond for more than a century. The Old Homestead lies on the North shore of this pond, running back with a gradual ascent for about 160 rods, giving a grand view of Monadnock and other mountains, North and West, with also an extended view East and South. It was on this farm that Solomon, the subject of this sketch, was born; his father before him owned it and there lived and died. It still remains in the family, and is now the property of Charles Warren Spalding [12153], President of the Globe Savings Bank, of Chicago, Ill.

Solomon Spalding remained on his father's farm at Merrimack, N. H., until he was sixteen years of age. He then went to Nashua, and worked in the general merchandise store of the late Joel Carter, and later in the same year for Hugh Jameson, whose interest he purchased in 1832. Then, together with his brother-in-law, John Reed, they established the successful mercantile firm of Reed & Spalding, which became widely and favorably known throughout New Hampshire and Vermont. After many successful years the firm dissolved, and Mr. Spalding went to Franklin, N. H., which was the terminus of the Northern (N. H.) Railroad. After some two or three years there he moved again still further North, and together with Putnam Spalding [8266] went to Wentworth, N. H., where they established the firm of P. & S. Spalding. At the end of four successful years, the firm disposed of their business at Wentworth, and Solomon Spalding returned to Nashua. He again entered into mercantile life, establishing the well-known Flour and Grain Store on Railroad Square, now conducted by his one-time partner, Henry Stearns.

In 1874 he disposed of all his mercantile interests and retired from active business. The Nashua Gazette of that date, in a short note of his retirement, closed their sketch as follows: "He has been in business here longer than any other citizen. He has been in active business over forty years, and has been remarkably faithful to all his trusts. He is entitled to a full discharge from service."

So many years of active life would not admit of his being contented to sit down, with nothing to do; and he was induced by Governor Weston to accept the position of Police Judge for the city of Nashua. In this capacity Judge Spalding earned an enviable reputation, and proved himself a man of quick perception and judicial fairness.

About 1880 he became one of the founders and incorporators of the New Hampshire Banking Company. He was one of its first Board of Directors, and for many years has, as its President, directed the policy of this popular institution.

He was at one time Commander of the then famous Nashua Artillery, a military organization which at the time sustained a very high reputation.

Mr. Spalding has always been prominently identified with the Unitarian Society in Nashua, and for the past sixty-eight years has attended the same church. At the advanced age of eighty-five years, Mr. Spalding still holds a foremost place in the business circles of Nashua, N. H.

16, 1877; m. Julia-Inez Dearborn, May 5, 1850; she d. July 9, 1865 (other authority states that he d. unmarried); he is a musician, and resided in San Francisco, Cal.

He was the originator of the celebrated "Spalding Brothers' Swiss Bell Ringers." In early life, his parents not wishing him to become a musician, sent him to a popular institution of learning, at Francestown, N. H. But they were soon informed that he neglected everything but his violin, upon which he continually practiced from morning until night. He was consequently taken from the school, and placed under the tuition of Prof. Herman Eckhardt, a graduate of the Leipsic Conservatory, then residing in Boston. Young Spalding lived in the family of his teacher, and received from him careful and thorough instruction, both in the art of violin playing, and in composition; enjoying the privilege of listening to, and being instructed in, the works of the great masters. After being six months with his instructor, he was placed as second violinist in the orchestra at the theatre. Not long subsequently he was made chief of the orchestra, which position he well sustained, being a quick reader and familiar with the score. At the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1861, he was among the first to volunteer, and was for a time bandmaster in the 1st Regt. of Massachusetts Infantry.

After the war was over, he joined the "Original Swiss Bell Ringers" as "solo violinist," and continued with them five years. He then went to New York, and organized a company of his own, "Spalding's Swiss Bell Ringers," which still existed in (1872).

The violin playing of Mr. Spalding was characterised by wonderful execution, taste, sweetness of tone, originality, and pathos. He has sometimes been called "The Ole Bull of America." In rendering the "Carnival de Venice," by Paganini, and in his imitation of the organ, the tones of his violin were said to be sometimes surprising.

His boyhood was spent with relatives, through whose influence he was placed at the West Point Military Academy, where he remained about six months. On the breaking out of the war of 1812 he left West Point, and without the knowledge of his friends, and only in his sixteenth year, enlisted as a private in the army, where he served during the war. He was one of the heroes of Lundy's Lane, assisted in the reduction of Fort Erie, and participated in various other engagements on the northern frontier. When peace was proclaimed, he settled in Montreal, where he learned the trade of a stone-cutter. After his marriage, in 1821, he removed to Rochester, N.Y., where he established himself as a contractor and builder. He was the contractor for constructing the aqueduct at Rochester, and all the stone bridges on the Erie canal between that city and Lockport. In 1837 he started for Michigan to find a home for himself and six young children. He located in Port Huron, and, in 1840, became the purchaser of the tract of land lying between Sixth and Tenth Streets, known as "Spalding's Addition." Though at that time straitened for means, he persevered until he converted the tract from a wilderness to a garden, and it now forms one of the most attractive portions of that city. In the later years of his life, Mr. Spalding enjoyed an easy competence, but he was long a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, and for the last six years of his life withdrew from business.

He was an ardent democrat of the Jeffersonian stamp, and an uncompromising States' rights man, regarding the inviolability of the State as the only efficient security of the citizen. Though early left fatherless, and only favored with small advantages of education, he left honorable memorials of what a strong mind and an inflexible will can accomplish.

Sarah-Chase Shepley, Nov. 16, 1882; she is the daughter of Leonard-Downs Shepley and Frances Chase his wife, and grand-daughter of Judge Ether Shepley, Chief Justice of Maine.

James-Alfred Spalding studied in the public schools, and at the age of sixteen entered Dartmouth College, from which he graduated in 1866, when he was less than twenty years of age. In the Autumn after his graduation he entered the medical department of Harvard University, where he graduated in 1870, presenting a Thesis on "The Surgical Uses of Carbolic Acid." He soon went to Europe where, in London and Vienna chiefly, he studied upon the subjects in which he was interested, the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, subjects which he took up all the more diligently, because his hearing became affected in 1870, a few months before his graduation; he felt that he could never be successful as a general practitioner who needs above all acute hearing in order to catch the whisper of the sick or to hear the sounds of the heart and lungs.

Thus completely equipped, Dr. Spalding entered into practice in Portland, Maine, in 1873, but owing to a great personal diffidence, due to his deafness, he had to be content with a small practice. By 1879 he began to be better known, and since then he has obtained and maintained the reputation of a faithful, skillful and honest practitioner. He has studied many modern languages, and has in the course of years translated from the German, French, and Italian, and published, mostly in the Archives of Ophthalmology and Otology, an exceedingly large number of articles on the diseases of his specialties, the total of which if bound together would make several volumes of medical essays.

Furthermore, he has contributed to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, to the New York Medical Record, to the Transactions of the American Ophthalmological Society, to the Transactions of the Maine Medical Association, to the London Lancet, to the Archiv Fuer und Otologie of Germany, and to other medical journals a large number of original papers based on cases and observations from his private and hospital practice.

In conjunction with the late Warren Webster, M.D., of the United States Army Medical Service, Dr. Spalding translated, annotated, and published in 1881 a monograph on "The Sympathetic Diseases of the Eye," a work which is still the standard on that special topic.

Dr. Spalding is a member of the American Ophthalmological Society, of the New England Ophthalmological Society, of the American Academy of Medicine, of the Maine Medical Association, and of a number of smaller local medical societies. He was chosen Eye and Ear Surgeon to the Maine General Hospital in 1880, and of the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary in 1890, and is still in active occupation of those positions.

He has made three voyages of study to Europe, making notes each time of all things likely to interest his fellow practitioners, and on his return detailing them with vigor and animation to the various societies to which he belongs.

He aspired to no higher office than Justice of the Peace and County Supervisor; and was never better pleased than when he could bring plaintiff and defendant to a peaceful settlement without putting the case to trial. Though a man with decided opinions, he had not an enemy in the world, and among his neighbors the "Squire's" word was as good as a bond. Just a few weeks before his death, his daughter found him alone in his room whistling like a boy; she said: "Father, you are the happiest old man I ever knew!" "Well," he said, "Why should I not be happy? I have a comfortable home, good children, owe no man anything, and have cheated Father Time out of eighteen years!"

Mr. Spalding for many years did the largest dry goods business in Lynn. He afterward became the head of the house of Spalding, Hay & Wales, of Boston, Mass., wholesale and retail Dry Goods merchants, from 1864 to 1880, when they retired from business. They were among the largest and most successful merchants in their line in Boston.

Mr. Spalding was highly esteemed for the worthiness of his character and business ability. He manifested great interest, and afforded financial aid in the publication of the original "Spalding Memorial" in 1872: Rev. Dr. S.-J. Spalding dedicating the work to him and other friends mutually interested.

During the War of the Rebellion he took an active interest in those who served in the field, raising funds, and giving his time and means liberally for the comfort and welfare of the soldiers and their families.

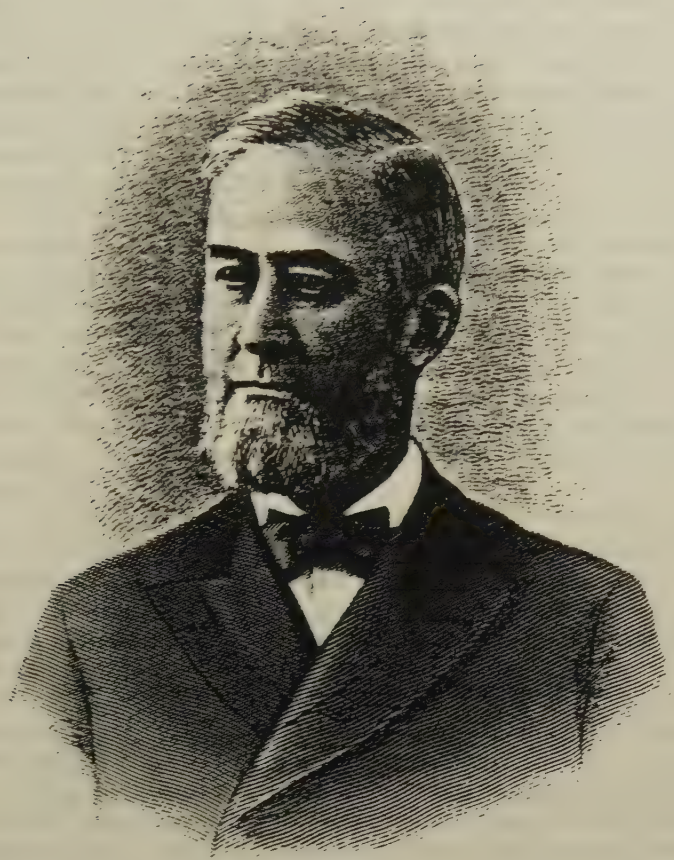
10305. ROLLIN-AARON[8] [5686], (Aaron[7], Robert[6], Robert[5], John[4], Joseph[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. March 23, 1835, in Greenfield, Mass.; 1st, m. Georgianna-Francena Floyd, of Brookline, Mass., Dec. 2, 1869; she d. Jan. 22, 1891, at Lynn, Mass.; 2d, m. Anna-Horton Little, Feb. 6, 1893; she was b. Feb. 25, 1858, at Newburyport, Mass.

At the age of ten years he removed with his parents to Illinois, and while a youth was employed in Chicago, Ill., subsequently in Belvidere, Ill., and Comanche, Iowa. He then became a commercial traveler for a St. Louis house. In 1858 he settled in Lynn, Mass., beginning as clerk in the store of his cousin, J. V. Spalding. Two years later he was admitted as partner, and in 1860, he and his present partner bought out J. V. Spalding's interest, and still (1895) are proprietors of the same establishment.

He has not only been remarkably successful in his business, but is one of the leading men of that prosperous city—warmly interested in its prosperity and good name—and connected with its various beneficent institutions.

There was a peculiarly close bond between the boy and his mother, and in their many confidential talks he imbibed a love and understanding that laid the foundations of a character, always loyal to truth, right and duty.

He relates that when only a baby in years, his mother sent him to "the store" on an errand, and when he returned clasping a big nail in one hand, she asked him where he got it? "On the counter," he replied. "Did any one give it to you?" she asked. "No," he answered; "I knew they would let me have it, so I took it."



Rollin Aaron Spalding

"Well, my dear," she explained "it is not yours, and you must go directly back, and put it where you found it, and remember never again to take so much as a pin that does not belong to you." Nails were scarce in those days, but the little fellow whose vision of a grand time hammering, was so suddenly dispelled, bravely winked away the tears that filled his eyes, and trudged back to the store, laid the coveted treasure where he had found it, and ran quickly home, to hide his grief and shame, not heeding "Uncle Seth's" kindly voice calling after him, that he might "have the nail and welcome."

The mother then explained to him, what even so small a thing might lead to, and impressed upon him the necessity of strictest honesty, even in little things. When ten years of age Rollin removed with his parents to Oswego, Ill., where he endured many hardships, and privations incident to a newly settled country.

When Rollin was but twelve years old, the beloved mother fell a victim to the fever, and six months later the father followed her, thus leaving their six children alone and in a strange land.

Through a family friend a position was secured for Aaron with a Mr. Carpenter, in Chicago, where he could learn the dry-goods business, and meanwhile earn a small stipend. Mr. Carpenter was a brilliant, dashing man, fond of adventure, and his business methods were peculiar, and forced the boy into a somewhat nomadic existence. He was sent from Chicago to various towns to open stores, and force sales of left-over goods, with promises of many advantages therefrom, which were as readily forgotten as given.

Some of these journeys to and fro were fraught with danger, for the state was sparsely settled at that time. On one occasion, Rollin, when seventeen years of age, made the trip on horseback from Comanche, Iowa, to Chicago, a distance of one hundred miles, in two days. He rode from New Albany on the Mississippi to Dixon, the first night, through an almost unbroken wilderness, there being one stretch of fourteen miles without a sign of human habitation, the road in some places being almost undiscernable; but to quote his own words: "I had an elegant stallion, that had no thought of giving out, until the end of the route, and he brought me through in good shape." The next day he rode up the valley of the Rock river, to Rockford and Belvidere, which was and is, the most beautiful part of the state, and he passed some very fine farms even at that early period.

In 1854 Rollin-Aaron, being then nineteen years of age, decided to leave his very erratic employer, and went with a friend to Grand Haven, Mich., thinking to engage in the lumber business. He bought three cargoes of lumber, brought them across the Lake, sold one in Chicago, shipped the other two to Garden Prairie, Ill., and sold them at retail. He found this business somewhat trying to his delicate health. He also bought up Iowa land which was then just coming into market, and sold at a very good profit. In the spring of 1855 he took a position with a St. Louis house to travel through the states of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, collecting, but the continual traveling did not agree with him, and his health gave out. Soon afterward he went back to Belvidere, where he remained as clerk in a dry-goods store until 1858, when he was afflicted by the death of his only brother Mourton, which left him entirely alone, all his sisters having returned East. His cousin John V. Spalding, advised him to return East, and offered him a position as clerk in his store in Lynn, Mass., which he accepted and remained there until 1865, when with Mr. F. E. Abbott he bought out the business. Mr. J. V. Spalding at that time going to Boston, where he built up the business under the well-known firm name of Spalding, Hay & Wales. Rollin's business tragedies seem to have ended with his advent to the "City of Soles." He has occupied the same location during the thirty-eight years of mercantile life there; but in the meantime the store has been enlarged to about four times its original size. He has not only been remarkably successful in his business, but is one of the leading men of that prosperous city. He has been one of the board of directors of the National City Bank of Lynn, twelve years. He is deeply interested in the welfare and good name of his adopted city, and actively connected with its various beneficent institutions.

Mr. Spalding is of about medium size, with a natural dignity of bearing, courtly but gentle in manner, and keenly alive to the needs of those less successful than himself. He is ever ready to aid the unfortunate, yet his charities are dispensed with such modesty, and absolute lack of ostentation, that only those who knew him intimately are aware of the ever open hand. A devoted Episcopalian, he has been for twenty-two years a vestryman of St. Stephen's Church. He is a man who wins the highest honor and esteem of all with whom he is associated.

He served in the war during 1862-3-4 and 5. In 1862 he raised a company in Chicago for the 88th Ill. Vols., popularly known as the 2d Regt. of the Board of Trade. He was commissioned as Captain and went into active service under command of Col. F.-T. Sherman. He participated in the battles of Perrysville, Nashville, Stone River, Chattanooga, and all the battles fought by the army of the Cumberland. During one of the forced marches, he sank exhausted. He was picked up by an ambulance, and lodged at a small cabin. The next day he was sent to the hospital, and as soon as his fever abated, he was sent home on furlough. When he thought himself sufficiently recovered, he returned to active service. Once, when acting as reserves, the order was given to lie down; a shell exploded, killing a man near Capt. Spalding, instantly, and covering him with dirt, turf, etc., and tearing the heel from his boot, but he was uninjured. His health gave out late in the summer of '64, and he was sent to Lookout Mountain hospital. From there he was sent on detached service to Chattanooga, as Superintendent of the Topographical Engineer's Office, which position he filled until his term of service expired.

Joel Johnson and his brother, Charles Lewis, were the proprietors of a business in Chicago, where they had the largest job-printing office in the Northwest; they also operated a first-class bindery, and had an extensive stationery store.

He graduated as a Civil Engineer at the University of Vermont, in 1849. He then went to California, and engaged in mining for three years, when he returned home via the Pacific Coast, City of Mexico and New Orleans. He next laid out a railroad in Dayton, Ohio, and engaged in the building of several railroads in Illinois and Kentucky. He started the first paper in Lawrence Co., Kan., surveyed the State lines, and was also employed as a correspondent of the New York Tribune. He was chosen an Alderman, and subsequently was made Mayor of Kansas City. When the War of the Rebellion broke out he went East with his wife, and enlisted in the 5th Vt. Regt., serving two years. Mr. Spalding next published a paper at Newport, Vt., finally settling in Boston, where for three years he was connected with the Boston Post. The last eight years of his life he was a reporter upon the Boston Herald, principally as Municipal Court reporter, in Boston, Mass. Charles-Carroll Spalding was one of the most popular and esteemed journalists of the century, and his death was sincerely mourned.

H., in the arms of his brother (George-B. Spalding); as the darkness fell upon his eyes, he said: "Put me ashore"; m. Mary-Elizabeth Atwater, Jan. 18, 1865; she was b. June 5, 1837, in Catskill, N.Y.

He graduated from the University of Vermont in 1840, and was afterward a private tutor in Georgia, at the same time studying law. On his return to Montpelier, Vt., he was admitted to the bar, and opened an office with Joseph Prentice.

His literary tastes led him to relinquish his profession, and he spent several years in travel in Europe and Asia as a close student of manners, morals and politics. He was a witness of the great events of the revolution of France in 1848. His letters to the New York "Courier and Enquirer" during his sojourn abroad won for him the highest praise from English and American scholars for their philosophical grasp of events and persons, and brilliancy of style.

In the spring of 1850 he became one of the editors of the "Courier and Enquirer." His remarkable abilities as a writer were soon widely recognized. His reputation as a fearless, independent critic of public men and measures, created a demand for the establishment of a new journal which might be a full reflection of his own spirit and character. The New York "World" was the result. It began its career in June, 1860. In 1861 Mr. Spalding became connected with the New York "Times," and many of its most powerful appeals to the country in its years of darkest disaster were from his pen.

His published addresses are "Spiritual Philosophy and Material Politics," and "The True Idea of Female Education." Richard Grant White, the distinguished Shakespearean scholar, who was associated with Mr. Spalding in editorial work, says of him: "Mr. Spalding's vigor and elegance have never been excelled by a writer upon the city press."

He was a gentleman of the most liberal culture, and as an Editor he stood among the very foremost of his profession. He was a man of profound convictions, and the scintillations of his wit illumined the subjects he treated with wonderful vividness. All the resources of classical culture, of historic study, and of extended travel, were always at his command; res. of widow, Catskill, N.Y.

10800. Dr. WILLIAM-COWPER[8] [6363], (James[7], Reuben[6], Reuben[5], Ephraim[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. Sept. 4, 1825, in Montpelier, Vt.; 1st, m. Isabella McLaughlin, Aug. 2, 1855; she was b. in Greensburg, Pa.; she d. Nov., 1855, at Watertown, Wis., leaving no children; 2d, m. Anna-Amelia Potter, March 10, 1857; she was b. July 4, 1835, at Potter's Mills, Pa.; she d. July 4, 1888; 3d, m. Mrs. Susan-D. McRae, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

He graduated at the N. Y. University in 1847; was commissioned surgeon in the 29th Regt. Wis. Vol. Infantry, Sept. 3, 1862. Soon after he left for the front and was engaged in several battles, acting as brigade surgeon. He was in the battle at Port Gibson, May 1, 1863, in which the North was victorious; also in the battle at Champion Hills, Miss., when their division numbered 4400, and the loss during the day was 1320. They marched night and day for twenty-two days until they came in the rear of Vicksburg, fighting most of the way, and this on three days' rations. Although suffering much bodily, Dr. Spalding remained at his post of duty for seven weeks, till the city at length surrendered to Gen. Grant. He then resigned on account of his health and returned home.

He had a very narrow escape during the siege at Vicksburg. One morning, feeling a little better than usual, he crept up the hill through the bushes, and came out on a piece of table land where stood a solitary oak tree some fifty feet high. A ladder had been run up about thirty feet, holes had been bored in the trunk, and long sticks driven in. The thought occurred to him that if he could only climb up into the tree he might look down into the city. Having a good deal of Yankee curiosity, he made the trip, and sat down on a limb, completely tired out. In less than thirty seconds fifteen or twenty bullets came whizzing both sides of him. He looked across the ravine at the hill opposite, and saw that he was in the hands of the rebel sharpshooters, which caused him to descend from the tree and make his way back with the greatest speed possible.

Since returning to Watertown, Wis., Dr. Spalding has been devoted to his profession, in which he takes a high rank as a physician.

10802. Rev. GEORGE-BURLEY[8] [6367], (James[7], Reuben[6], Reuben[5], Ephraim[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), b. Aug. 11, 1835, in Montpelier, Vt.; he is the third son of James Spalding, a distinguished physician and surgeon, and Eliza Reed, only daughter of Thomas Reed, Esq., of Montpelier, Vt.; m. Sarah-Livingston Olmstead, of Boston, Mass., Aug. 6, 1861; she was the daughter of Rev. John-W. Olmstead, D. D., editor of the "Watchman and Reflector," the great organ of the Baptist denomination in New England; she was b. Oct. 28, 1838, in Little Falls, N.Y. Mrs. Spalding is in the direct line of the Livingstons of Scotland, of noble birth, and whose descendants have made the name illustrious in the history of America.

On the maternal line Mr. Spalding's ancestry is unbrokenly traced to Brianus de Rede, who in 1139 held a great estate at Morpeth, on the Wensback, in the north of England. The earliest American ancestor was John Reed, of Rehoboth, Mass. A great-grandfather was Captain Hezekiah Hutchins, a soldier at the capture of Louisburg 1745, an officer in all the French and Indian wars, Captain in the battles at Bunker Hill and Saratoga.

Geo. B. Spalding

George Burley Spalding, D.D., LL.D., graduated from the University of Vermont in 1856; studied law with Judge W.-G.-M. Davis, of Tallahassee, Fla.; studied theology two years at Union Seminary, New York City, and one year at Andover, Mass., graduating in 1861.

On Oct. 5, 1861, Mr. Spalding was installed as minister of the Congregational Church at Vergennes, Vt. In Sept, 1864, he became pastor in Hartford, Conn., of the North Church, in which Dr. Horace Bushnell had had his long and brilliant ministry. This church is now known as the Park Church; on Sept. 1, 1869, he was installed pastor of the First Congregational Church at Dover, N. H. After fourteen years of ministry in this old historic church, he was pastor of the Franklin St. Church, Manchester, N. H. He was installed Oct. 1, 1885, over the First Presbyterian Church of Syracuse, N.Y., where his service still continues.

Dr. Spalding's literary work has been large and varied. During his Seminary course he contributed many articles to the "New York World," (of which his brother, James-Reed Spalding, was the founder,) to the "Courier and Enquirer," and to the "New York Times." While in Dover he wrote for years the leading editorials of the "Watchman;" and in January, 1881, established the "New Hampshire Journal," the state organ of the Congregationalists, and was its sole editor for several years. He was chairman of the School Committee of Dover, president of the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School, member of the Constitutional Convention of New Hampshire in 1877, and representative of the city of Dover in the State Legislature and chaplain of that body in 1877. He was also trustee of the New Hampshire Missionary Society, and of the State Orphan Home. Since being in Syracuse he has been elected repeatedly trustee of Auburn Theological Seminary, and of Hamilton College. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by Dartmouth College, in 1878, and of LL.D. by Syracuse University in 1894.

The printed discourses and magazine articles by Dr. Spalding have been very many, and upon matters most important to Church and State. Among them may be named: "The Presence and Purpose of God in the War," preached in Vergennes, 1863; "In Memoriam, John Parker Hale," Dover, 1873; "The Dover Pulpit in the Revolutionary War," 1876; "On Garfield," 1881; The "One Hundredth Anniversary of the Piscataqua Association of Ministers," 1881; "Relation of the Children to the Church," preached before the National Council of Congregational Churches, 1883; "The Birthday of the Nation," at Syracuse, 1889; "The Prophets,"

Andover Review; "Shall we Surrender the Christian Sabbath to the Rum Power?" 1895; "Fifty years of the Public Schools of Syracuse," before the N.Y. State Association of Teachers, 1895.

Until 1862 he was extensively engaged in farming, mercantile and lumber business, and was very prominent in public affairs in Wysox, Pa. In Aug., 1862, assisted by his nephew, A. E. Spalding, he enlisted a company, in response to the call of the President for volunteers, and on Aug., 12, was elected Captain. This company became Co. I, 141st Regt. Pa. Vols., and upon the organization of the regiment Capt. Spalding was commissioned Major. He was in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg; was mortally wounded at Gettysburg, July 2, 1863, and d. July 28, 1863.

The following is an extract from a sketch of Major Spalding in Craft's History of the 141st Pa. Vols.: "In the course of this narrative it has been seen how in more than one instance he was placed in very responsible and delicate positions and how well he met them. At Fredericksburg, though less than four months in the service, the picket line was placed in his charge and he was intrusted to bring the last two hundred from the left field in the face of the enemy. At Chancellorsville he received the special commendation of his superior officers for his coolness and bravery. On the long march from the Rappahannock to Gettysburg, peculiarly trying to the men on account of the great heat, and clouds of dust, he acquitted himself so well as the commanding officer of his Regiment that he received the personal thanks of General Graham; while at Gettysburg his conduct was equally gallant and heroic, where he fell while fearlessly exposing himself to save his men."

In 1865 he went to Kansas City, and with his father established Spalding's Commercial College, of which he is president. Under his able management, this college has become one of the largest and most successful in the West. Mr. Spalding has devoted his life to business education, and is the author of several works on book-keeping.

The following extract is from "The Western Penman:" "It is but just to Spalding's Commercial College, Kansas City, Mo., to say that it ranks with the very best business colleges of the country. Founded thirty years ago, it has grown from term to term, never retrograding, but always progressing, till now the name of Spalding is a household word wherever anything is known of the indispensable advantages of a business education. This institution was incorporated in 1867.

"Its extraordinary success has not been due to chance, but has been achieved through indomitable energy, ability, and the application of the best and most progressive methods of instruction. The college occupies the entire third and fourth floors of the east wing of the New York Life building, in Kansas City, Mo. The rooms, twenty in number, are provided with all modern conveniences, and are the most commodious, best arranged, and elegantly furnished college rooms in the west, ample accommodations being provided for 500 students at each session."

Nathan Spalding's father was a school teacher as well as a practical mechanic, and in addition to mechanical skill possessed a mind and intellect clear and undimmed, and that faculty of concentrating the powers of the mind upon any particular subject so necessary to success in the line of invention. From his mother he inherits strong common sense, keen and critical powers of observation and analyzation, and a remarkable faculty of reading and judging of character. Nathan was the eldest of eight children, all boys. As a youth he possessed a sound constitution and a sturdy frame, and as he grew to manhood he was and is a splendid exemplification of physical strength and manhood, standing six feet and three inches in height, and weighing some two hundred and twenty pounds. He had the usual common school advantages of New England boys of his day and the further advantage of home instruction so important in bending the twig to a proper inclination to form the future tree. At the age of thirteen years he began to learn the trade of carpenter and builder, having his father as instructor. Having a natural aptitude for the use of tools, he made great proficiency in his trade and soon became an expert workman. One of his uncles being a millwright, he learned from him that trade also, and when he reached his twentieth year he stood in the foremost rank of the mechanics of his neighborhood. He had wrought both in Portland and in Boston, and while in the latter city he spent one winter in a saw factory and there acquired that knowledge and insight into the technicalities of a business, to the improvement and development of which so great a portion of his later life has been devoted.

Nathan left Maine July 7, 1851, for California, via Panama, in company with thirteen others, all arriving safely in San Francisco on Sept. 13th of the same year. He was a millwright by trade, and constructed the first quartz-mill built in the state of California. In 1861 he established a saw manufactory in San Francisco, in which business he is still engaged, with residence in Oakland. He invented and patented an adjustable saw tooth in 1862, which proved to be of great value; and has since taken out several U. S. patents on saws, saw-teeth and machines, which have completely revolutionized the circular saw business.

He is the author and publisher of a scale for the measurement of logs, and known as the "Spalding Log Scale," which is universally used on the Pacific Slope; and it has been made the legal scale by the Statutes of the Western States and Territories.

Mr. Spalding, although never an office-seeker, has always held it to be a patriotic duty to serve the people in any position he was called upon to fill, and at various times he has, at the sacrifice of his business interests and of his ease and comfort accepted office. Four years he served in the city Council of Oakland and was twice elected Mayor of that city, without opposition. During his occupancy of these important offices, he mapped out and crystallized into reality nearly all the substantial improvements which the people of Oakland now enjoy, and in many ways then, and since, has shown himself possessed of great executive ability. In those positions, with ceaseless vigilance and great personal sacrifice, he did his whole duty and earned the plaudits of all good citizens.

He was elected a member of the City Council of Oakland, Cal., and served four years; and in 1871 was elected Mayor, received the re-election without opposition, and declined the nomination for a third term. He donated the salary of his office, amounting to $6,000, to the Oakland Benevolent Society. In 1881 President Garfield appointed Mr. Spalding U. S. Assistant-Treasurer at San Francisco. He served four years, during which time he received and disbursed three hundred and twenty-three million dollars, without the loss of a cent. He is a Director of the Industrial Home for the Adult Blind, a State Institution; is a trustee for the Chabot Sheltering Home for Women; he is a member and has served as an officer in the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco; is also a director in the State Board of Trade; he was one of the founders and Directors in the Mechanics Institute of San Francisco, and a life member; and is one of the founders and directors of the Manufacturers' Association.

He is a prominent Mason, and has held the offices of Master, High Priest and Grand High Priest, of California; he is a Knight Templar and a 33° member of the Grand Council at Washington, D. C., of the Ancient and Accepted Order of the Scottish Rite. He has served the Grand Lodge F. and A. M., of California as Grand Treasurer for nine years, and is a life member of all the Masonic bodies to which he belongs.

He was selected by the late Hon. Leland Stanford as one of the trustees of the Leland Stanford, Jr., University (a life position). This is the largest and most popular institution of learning west of the Mississippi River.

Mary-Jane Clark, Nov. 4, 1864, at Boston, Mass.; she was the daughter of Dr. Albert-S. Clark and Ann Herbert, and was b. Nov. 19, 1840, at Tynmouth, Vt. Her grandfather, Elisha Clark, was a prominent military man in Vermont in Revolutionary days.

He moved to Richmond, Me.; thence to Fort Payne, Ala.; thence to Boston, Mass.; thence to Melrose, Mass., where he now (1896) resides. He is attorney and counseller at law; was member of the House of Representatives in Me., 1868, 1870, and 1879; member of Maine Senate in 1871 and 1872; Reporter of Decisions Supreme Judicial Court of Maine from 1880 to 1888; Mayor of Fort Payne, Ala., in 1892; present residence, Melrose, Mass.

In July and August, 1862, he assisted in raising Company A, 19th Regt. of Maine Infantry Volunteers, and was mustered into the U. S. service as 1st Lieut. of the company, Aug. 25, 1862, at Bath, Me., having just arrived at the age of twenty-one. The captain of the company was taken sick, and he assumed command at Frederick City, Md. Oct. 3, 1862, the Regt. joined 1st Brig. 2d Div. 2d army corps, army of the Potomac, to which it ever after belonged. Nov. 10, 1862, he was promoted to captain of Co. A, 19th Me. Regt. Dec. 11-14, 1862, he was with his company at Fredericksburg, Va. The Regt. was on the extreme right and not engaged; had a few men slightly wounded. At the fight at Chancellorsville, his regiment was detailed to guard the telegraph from the battlefield to Falmouth, Va. June 25, 1863, was in skirmish at Haymarket, Va.; had one man killed; July 2 and 3, 1863, was with his company at Gettysburg, Pa.; suffered heavily. Sept. 13, 1863, participated in the advance of the 2d corps and cavalry across the Rappahannock, and pushed the enemy across the Rapidan. Oct. 11, 12, 13, 14, 1863, 2d corps was rear guard of the army, when falling back from Culpepper to Centreville, and had a fight, Oct. 14, with the enemy at Bristoe Station, in which the enemy was severely punished. Oct. 15, 1863, he was on skirmish line at Bull Run; had two men wounded. Nov. 20 to 26, 1863, had command of the regiment camp near Brandy Station. Nov. 26 to Dec. 1, participated in the Mine Run Campaign, which was very severe on the regiment, though they lost none; for sixty-six hours the regiment had but ten and a half hours for eating and sleeping. From Jan. 28, 1864, to Feb. 12, 1864, served as member of general court-martial. From April 23, 1864, to May 3, 1864, was a member of the 2d Corps Board for examination of applicants to attend the military school at Philadelphia, preparatory to receiving commissions in colored troops. May 6, 1864, he was in the Battle of the Wilderness; May 9, skirmishing with the enemy. May 10, Battle of Spottsylvania; at night he was sent to the rear by the surgeon; went to Naval School Hospital, Annapolis, Md. Rejoined his company, June 20, 1864, in front of Petersburg, and took command of regiment, and retained command until Sept. 7, 1864. June 22, 1864, was in the fight at Jerusalem Plank Road; four regiments of the brigade were taken prisoners, and 80 men of his regiment; they lost heavily, three color-bearers of the regiment were killed one after another, but they saved the colors. June 23, skirmishing. From July 9 to 19 he was a member of corps court-martial for trial of officers. From July 25 to Sept. 4 he served as member of division court-martial, except when moving or during engagements. July 27, participated in the engagement at Deep Bottom. Aug. 14, participated in the engagement at Strawberry Plains; Aug. 15, skirmishing all day. Aug. 25, participated in the fight at Ream's Station. Sept. 7, 1864, returned home on sick leave. Sept. 30, was detailed by the War Dept. as Inspector to the Assistant Provost-Marshal-General of Maine, at Augusta. Nov. 5, received from the Governor of Maine a commission as Major of 19th Me. Vol. Rejoined his regiment Dec. 1, and found a commission awaiting him as Lieut.-Colonel of the regiment. Dec. 2, was mustered as Lieut.-Col. Feb. 5, 1865, to Feb. 10, participated in the Hatcher's Run Campaign, in command of the regiment; only engaged with the enemy the first day. March 13 to 28, commanded the 59th Regt. N.Y. Vet. Vols.; relieved upon his own request. March 29 to April 9, participated in the final campaign. March 29 and 30, his regiment as skirmishers led the Division, took two lines of the enemy's works, and were stopped by the rebels at the fort near the Crow House; the regiment relieved on the night of the 30th. March 31 the regiment again advanced as skirmishers, captured the rebel skirmishers, and got within four rods of the fort. April 2, advanced with the whole line, took the enemy's works, put them to flight, and followed in pursuit. April 7 the regiment in advanced of the corps was attacked by a large force of the enemy at High Bridge, which bridge the enemy had set on fire, and they were trying to put it out. The enemy pressed them hard; they had no chance to fall back, and the men fought like tigers, maintaining their position until support arrived, thus saving the bridge upon which two army corps crossed the Appomattox on that day. The colonel was severely wounded in this engagement, and Lieut.-Col. Spalding ever after had command of the regiment. April 9 he participated in the general rejoicing of the army upon the surrender of Gen. Lee. The regiment was mustered out at the defences of Washington, May 31, 1865; returned to Augusta, Me., where it was finally paid, June 7, 1865.

Captain Mark-H. Spalding in his youth was apprenticed to a rope-maker, but a year later he went to sea, having concluded that he "would like the pulling of ropes better than making them." After an adventurous life as a common seaman, he was made second officer. He visited all the cities and ports of Europe, the Mediterranean, part of Africa, South America, and West India Islands.

In 1848 he shipped as first officer, and went to California during the gold fever. He continued mining until 1856, and was a member of the Constitutional convention that made California a state. He then returned to his native state, and became a prominent merchant of Northampton, Mass.

In 1861 he organized Co. A, 27th Mass. Vols., and was made first Lieutenant. He was in the Burnside expedition to North Carolina; the battles of Roanoke and Newbern. Sickness compelled him to resign and return home; as soon as he recovered he enlisted in the 52d Regt. Mass. Vols., and was commissioned Captain. He went with Banks' expedition to Louisiana, and participated in the second recapture of Baton Rouge, and was in numerous other battles, notably those of Franklin, Vermillion Bayou, Opelousas, and the assault and final capture of Port Hudson. He was mustered out in 1863, thus closing an honored and active military career.

For nine years he was collector and treasurer of Northampton, Mass. For two years (1875 and 1876) he was a member of the legislature. For ten years he was selectman, and assessor for thirteen years. Capt. Spalding framed Northampton's city charter. He possessed great courage, a generous and loving disposition, and commanded the respect of all who knew him.

Parker Toppan, of Hampton, Mass., Sept. 16, 1851; she was the daughter of Hon. Edmund and Mary (Chase) Toppan, of Hampton, N. H., where she was b. Sept. 7, 1822.

He prepared for college in Nashua, N. H., under the instruction of David Crosby, Esq.; entered Dartmouth College in 1838; graduated in 1842; entered Andover Theological Seminary in 1842, and graduated in 1845.

He was ordained pastor over a new parish in Salmon Falls, N. H., Oct. 28, 1846. Having accepted a call from the Whitefield Congregational Church in Newburyport, Mass., he was dismissed from his first charge, June 9, 1851, and was installed at Newburyport, June 30, 1851, where he remained until his death.

On leave of absence from his people, he was commissioned Chaplain of the 48th Mass. Regt., and mustered into service Dec. 29, 1862; served with his regiment in the 1st Brigade and the 1st Division of the army of the Gulf, under the command of Maj.-Gen. Auger. This regiment was at the battle of the Plains Store, May 21, 1863, at the siege of Port Hudson, being actively engaged in the first and second assaults on that stronghold, May 27, and June 14, and also in the fight at Donaldsonville, July 13. Was mustered out Aug. 30, 1863. Mr. Spalding was a member of "The New England Historic-Genealogical Society," and also corresponding member of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

He prepared the History of the Essex North Association, contained in the "Contributions to the Ecclesiastical History of Essex Co., Mass.," published in Boston, 1865.

By the death of Dr. Spalding the whole community suffers an irreparable loss. He was not only widely known as a clergyman, but he was always a most public spirited and able citizen. For twenty years he was a most active and efficient member of the School Committee. Such was his interest in education, that he held an official connection with many institutions in other towns; among them, Hampton Academy, Dearborn Academy, Dummer Academy, of which he was Treasurer for several years. He was one of the Trustees of the Newburyport Public Library, Treasurer of the Reading Room fund, Treasurer of the Book Club, Member of the Tuesday Evening Club. It is needless to say that he was always an honored member of the Grand Army organization. No good cause passed him by; and his place was that of a leader in all benevolent and public objects.

For many years Dr. Spalding led all the clergymen of the town in the number of weddings and funerals at which he officiated. These were not limited to his own parish, or denomination, and not even to his own town, for he was frequently called upon for such services in other towns, not only because he was always ready and willing to serve others, but because he had the fitting word and manner for the occasion. Indeed, he was the man for occasions, and could be relied upon for earnest eloquent extemporaneous ability with or without previous notice.

Dr. Spalding's taste was very much enlisted in historical, genealogical, antiquarian researches. To these he made a valuable addition in his Spalding Genealogy, and "Contributions to the Ecclesiastical History of Essex Co., Mass." He assisted others, with no economy of time or pains, in many historical studies. He had intended to write out the history of the Old Churches in the vicinity of Newburyport, and had some miscellaneous material collected for that purpose. Legends of old houses attracted him, and he had jotted down many curious scraps from tradition, chance conversations, particularly with "the oldest inhabitant"—old manuscripts which he hoped to utilize in some permanent form.

Dr. Spalding led a most active life, in the ministry and out of it; and for his many labors, his genial kindness and obliging spirit, he will long be gratefully remembered.

After leaving school he went to sea as clerk on one of his father's ships, later locating in Honolulu, where he was engaged in the mercantile business until Jan. 1, 1863; while in Honolulu he was appointed Captain, then Major, in the Hawaiian army. During the Civil War, he was in the U. S. Navy as Acting Assistant Paymaster; reported for duty in Mississippi Squadron, where he was assigned to gunboat Paw Paw. He served in several encounters on different vessels, and received honorable discharge in 1867. He sailed again in 1867 as Paymaster's Clerk in different vessels, once on the Kearsage until 1875. He was next appointed chief-clerk in the Navy Yard at Brooklyn, N.Y., from which he resigned in 1882, because of ill-health, and spent the rest of his life at his home in Nashua, N. H.

He was a member of the firm of Nash, Spalding & Co.; he was the projector of the iron vessel "Novelty," which was built by that firm, and designed to carry liquid cargo in bulk. This has been a complete success, and it is the first vessel of the kind ever built and sailed successfully. It promises to lead the way to a great revolution in the carrying of liquids all over the civilized world.

In 1877 M.-D. Spalding was given the honor of a grand dinner by the wholesale grocers of Chicago, in acknowledgment of the sympathy and assistance offered by him and his brother John-Perrin Spalding [8250], to their fellow-merchants at the time of the great fire at Chicago.

After receiving his education, Mr. Spalding entered the store of his father, and in 1861 secured employment in Lawrence, Mass. In 1865 he moved to the west, residing for four years in Columbus, Ohio; thence to Iowa, where for several years he was connected with the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad (now the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad).

In 1872 Mr. Spalding moved to Michigan, where he subsequently engaged in the lumber business, and for the past ten years has been in the wholesale lumber business at Philadelphia.

No children.

Chas. W. Spalding.

12153. CHARLES-WARREN[8] [8274], (Solomon[7], Solomon[6], Daniel[5], Henry[4], Henry[3], Andrew[2], Edward[1]), b. June 11, 1843, in Nashua, N. H.; m. Lizzie-K. Mitchell, Sept. 1, 1864; she was the daughter of Abraham Mitchell and Catharine Adams, of Nashua, N. H., and was b. Jan. 30, 1842.

Mr. Spalding received his rudimentary education in the public schools of his native town; and in 1860 entered Dartmouth College, graduating from the Scientific Department of that institution in the Class of 1863. He immediately commenced the practice of his chosen profession — civil engineering — and for two years was engaged as assistant engineer on the surveys of the Boston, Hartford & Erie Railroad in western Connecticut. He went West in 1865, and entered the employ of the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad Company (now the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad), serving that Company for eleven years in various capacities, as Civil Engineer, Land Agent, Tax Agent, and Secretary of the Land Department.

In 1876 Mr. Spalding purchased an interest in a coal business, and two years later organized the firm of Spalding, Mitchell & Co., wholesale coal dealers at Burlington, Iowa. In 1882 this business was removed to Chicago, and the firm is now one of the largest shippers of anthracite coal in the Northwest.

In 1876 he organized the Red Oak Investment Co., with which he was connected for nearly twenty years, as manager.

In 1882 Mr. Spalding removed from Iowa, in which State he had resided for seventeen years, and took up his residence in Chicago, which city has since been his home. Here in 1890 he organized the Globe Savings Bank, of which institution he was made President. He gave it his personal care and attention through the great financial disturbances of 1893 and 1896, and has devoted to it the best years of his business life.

In 1891 he was elected to the Board of Trustees of Dartmouth College by the Alumni as their first western representative. He served faithfully during his term, but declined a re-election in 1895 owing to pressure of other business. During his term of service as a Trustee he was active in securing some large bequests to the College, in securing the election of Dr. Wm. J. Tucker as its President, and advancing its interests in many directions. In recognition of which service he received the honorary degree of A. M. in 1894.

In 1893 Mr. Spalding became actively interested in the development of a large irrigation enterprise in the Snake River Valley, Idaho. He was one of the first to appreciate the great personal and public benefits to be derived by bringing under cultivation the vast tracts of soil naturally rich, but wholly unproductive from want of proper moisture. Irrigation is now a subject of national importance, and has become a matter of special and successful legislation. In 1896 he was awarded a government contract of one hundred thousand dollars to build a canal from the Snake River to Pocatello, Idaho. He is the treasurer and one of the principal stockholders of the Idaho Canal Company, which has constructed and is now operating one of the most complete and extensive systems of irrigating canals in the United States. These with their laterals consist of over one hundred and fifty miles, which when fully developed will provide water for about a quarter of a million of acres of land in Fremont, Bingham and Bannock Counties, Idaho.

In 1893 he became the treasurer of the University of Illinois, and has since received and disbursed over a million dollars for that popular institution of learning.

Although his time has been occupied with various enterprises, he has found leisure to undertake the republication of the SPALDING MEMORIAL, which will ever remain his greatest and most lasting monument.

He purchased the copyright of the original work in 1892, and soon thereafter commenced in a systematic way to gather material for its republication. The groundwork had been carefully prepared by Rev. Samuel J. Spalding twenty years previous, and the general plan he adopted was adhered to. During the twenty years which had elapsed since the work was first issued, the family had increased largely, and new avenues of information had been opened up; these were persistently followed up, and no trouble or expense was spared to make the present work the most complete Genealogical Record of any family in America.

He is a member of various Societies and a Mason, in which order he has received many honors. He owns the old homestead in Merrimack, N. H., which has been in possession of the family for more than a century. His father was born there in 1811, and his grandfather lived and died there.

It is a fine farm, situated on the Naticook Upperpond, running back with a gradual ascent for about 160 rods, giving a grand view of Monadnock and other mountains north and west, with also an extended view east and south. This fine estate is reserved for Mr. Spalding's summer home, and a retreat from the cares of Chicago business life.

13914. Lieut. EDWARD-BURSON[10] [13017], (Asa[9], Harry[8], John[7], Simon[6], Simon[5], Edward[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Feb. 2, 1840; 1st, m. Eliza-Amelia Atwood, of Chester, Vt., Sept. 8, 1873; she d. July 1, 1887; 2d, m. Margaret-T. Appleton, Aug. 28, 1889, of Sioux City, Iowa; she was b. Aug. 17, 1847; she was the daughter of Amos-T. and Hannah-A. Appleton.

He enlisted Oct. 1, 1861, in the Union army. He was sergeant in Co. E, 52d Ill. Infantry, and was engaged in many battles. At Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., April 6, 1862, he was wounded in three places, and crippled for life in left hand and arm; he was sent to the hospital, but steadily failing, as a last resort to save his life he was taken home on a cot by his father. He finally recovered and rejoined his regiment Aug. 16, 1862, at Corinth, Miss., although at Chicago, Ill., he was directed to report to surgeons for examination and discharge.

Edward was promoted to 1st Sergeant Sept. 1, 1862; and on Sept. 13 of the same year he was appointed 2d Lieutenant by his Colonel by special order therefor. The appointment was confirmed by Gov. Yates, of Ill., who sent Lieut. Spalding a commission endorsed across its face: "Promoted for meritorious services rendered at Pittsburg Landing." March 10, 1863, he was promoted to 1st Lieutenant. His regiment took an active part in the Atlanta campaign, and he was in command of his company during the whole campaign. When Atlanta was captured he was placed on detached service as Acting Assistant Adjutant General on the staff of Brig.-Gen. Rice, commanding 1st Brigade 4th Div. 15th Army Corps; and as such he served in Sherman's army as it marched through Georgia until Savannah was captured, when he was mustered out, Dec. 19, 1864. His time had expired Nov. 23d previous. The Medal of Honor was bestowed upon him by the Secretary of War for conspicuous gallantry at Pittsburg Landing.

Edward-Burson Spalding is a member of the Connecticut Society of the Cincinnati, which membership he inherited as eldest lineal male descendant from Gen. Simon Spalding.

Mr. Spalding was secretary of the Sioux City Building Fund Association for fifteen years—from its organization in 1874, until its charter expired by limitation. He was secretary and superintendent of the Sioux City Water Works Co., which constructed their present system of water works. He was also Secretary of the Library and Building Association, which erected the Public Library and City Hall building for the city of Sioux City. For ten years, ending in 1881, he was clerk of District Court at Sioux City. Since that time Mr. Spalding has been engaged in the successful practice of law, being senior member of the law firm of Spalding, Taylor & Burgess, of Sioux City, Iowa.

He graduated at the Chicago Medical College, in March, 1865. He was appointed Assistant-Surgeon 8th Ill. Inf., on duty at Mobile, Ala.; he was with his regiment at New Orleans, Baton Rouge, thence up Red River to Shreveport, La.; thence into Texas after Kirby Smith, the last of the confederates to surrender. In 1869-70 he attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at New York City. He next took up the practice of medicine at Elmira, N.Y., where he was appointed Health Officer of the city, and delegate to the American Medical Association at Washington, D. C. He is now (1896) located at Rochester, N.Y.

13925. ALBERT-GOODWILL[10] [13024], (James-Lawrence[9], Harry[8], John[7], Simon[6], Simon[5], Edward[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. Sept. 2, 1850, at Byron, Ogle Co., Ill.; m. Sarah-Josephine Keith, Nov. 18, 1875; she was the daughter of Henry-Snell Keith and Sarah-Howard (Manley) Keith, of West Bridgewater, Mass.; she was b. May 5, 1851; res. Chicago, Ill.

The name of Albert-G. Spalding is well-known throughout the civilized world as the American "baseball magnate," and for many years he has been the very head and front of the national pastime, guiding it from comparative obscurity to universal popularity.

It is rare for a man to make a decided success of life in two different directions; still more so when the chosen lines are so widely diverging as to stand in the relation of pleasure to business—playing baseball and building up a vast mercantile house. Albert-G. Spalding has achieved success, positive, and world-wide renown in these two fields—an achievement sufficiently remarkable to entitle him to something more than a passing notice in a book devoted to the genealogy and general history of his family.

We have seen that the early Spaldings showed great prowess in arms, bearing out the old Saxon significance of the name, in their physical strength and stalwart frames, and in this tenth generation the genius of the family is exemplified to the greatest degree of excellence in Albert-G. Spalding. Born of a line of ancestors of sterling worth, assured integrity and correct living, both on his father's and mother's side, we are not surprised to find him, as a mere lad, possessing health, energy and ability combined with a great love for out-door sports. The first twelve years of his life were passed in the small village of Byron, Illinois, and being thus practically a country product, he is another reminder of how large a proportion of our eminent and successful city men are drawn from the rural districts. His father died when he was but eight years old; however, the boy never realized the extent of his loss, for the widowed mother with constant devotion, wonderful strength of character, and inspiring heroism filled the place of both father and mother to the little children left to her care.

He was carefully trained in the modest schools of his native town, and thanks to his love for athletics was a well-grown, sturdy lad when his mother removed to the city of Rockford, Illinois, in 1863. There with better advantages he continued his studies, finishing them at the age of sixteen, with a course in the local Commercial College.

To make a complete success of this life one must be prepared to enjoy its pleasures, as well as to combat the difficulties; and in this regard, young Spalding, like most boys, was admirably equipped. The game of baseball—essentially an American pastime—originated in his youth and found in him an ardent devotee; indeed, while yet a mere lad he developed great ability in playing the then only half-formed game, and became favorably known to all the baseball enthusiasts of his section.

Healthful and invigorating sport, so far from being incompatible with, is a positive complement and a necessary adjunct of, mental activity in youth. Baseball evolved from the town-ball of our grandfathers, by the sport-loving students of American Colleges, reflects lasting credit upon its inventors and improvers. It has hardened the muscles, developed the chests and stimulated the brains of almost no end of puny students; has combined with text books and teachers, in fact, to turn out successful professional and business men. Without being the originator of the National game, no one has done more to perfect, to popularize, and to dignify baseball, than A. G. Spalding. Hence his name is a familiar and honored one to all boys, and those who were once boys, and who have not grown so old or so worldly as to have forgotten the circumstance.

The foundation of Mr. Spalding's life, upon which he has reared a superstructure of substantial business success, was begun in play. His first business position was as clerk in a retail grocery store in Rockford, Ill., at a salary of five dollars per week. While in this position he managed to find time to continue his connection with the Forest City Baseball Club of Rockford, which was considered the leading ball club of the West. The unexpected victory of the Rockford Club over the celebrated National Club of Washington, in 1867, (which then ranked as the champion club of the United States, and which was the first Eastern club to make an extended tour through the West,) gave young Spalding such a national reputation as a pitcher that attractive positions were offered him in Washington, Cleveland, New York and other Eastern cities, and at salaries ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 per year; and all of this before he was seventeen years of age. The sudden raise of salary from a five-dollar per week clerkship to $2,500 per year was well calculated to turn the head of a seventeen-year-old boy. His widowed mother and his sister strongly opposed his accepting any of these flattering offers, which contemplated very much ball playing and very little business experience, and it finally resulted in his accepting a position as bookkeeper in a wholesale grocery store in Chicago in September, 1867. Financial disaster overtook this firm the following winter. Mr. Spalding immediately connected himself with an insurance company in Chicago, which also failed a few months later. On account of these failures and home influence he was induced to return to Rockford and accept the treble position of cashier in a newspaper office, bookkeeper in an adjoining insurance agent's office, and pitcher of the Forest City Baseball Club, all of which yielded him an income of about $2,000 a year. He remained in these positions until the winter of 1871, during which time all of these concerns practically failed. The failure of every business concern with which he had become connected had so discouraged as well as mortified young Spalding, that he finally decided to go with the fates rather than against them, and do that towards which his inclination led him, and accepted a position as pitcher for the first professional Boston Baseball Club at a salary of $2,500 per year. In the winter of 1871 or 1872 he accepted a clerical position on the "New York Daily Graphic," which afterwards failed; the following winter he took a position in a prominent insurance office in Boston, which failed before Spring. In his efforts to follow the advice of his friends and to learn more business and less baseball, he had within five years been in the employ of seven prominent business concerns, all of which had failed during his connection with them.

To prepare for the responsibility of manhood, one must faithfully perform the duties of youth; to rise in the world, one must make good his present position and qualify himself for advancement. A. G. Spalding early realized the force of this time borrowed proposition, and always, under all circtmstances, did his very best. To this habit, which has been the rule of his life, he owes his many signal successes, and the same could have made him a winner in any profession or business upon which he might have entered. In both a literal and figurative sense, he "played ball." A defeat did not dishearten him nor a victory "puff him up." He never willingly aroused the jealousy either of his comrades or opponents, and thus made no enemies and hosts of friends.

For years Mr. Spalding entertained the idea that "the great American game" might be introduced and popularized in foreign countries; and, as a result of his enthusiasm and arguments, early in 1874 he visited England and made arrangements for a tour of the Boston and Philadelphia Clubs. Returning in April, he re-crossed the Ocean with the party in July following, acting as assistant to the Business Manager of the enterprise, the late Harry Wright. The visitors were royally received and made a successful tour of the principal cities of England and Ireland. From 1871 to 1875 Mr. Spalding was the only pitcher in the Boston Club and the Captain of the Nine, and had come to be regarded as one of the most skillful players in the United States. His reputation was augmented by the circumstance that during that time his Club was constant winner of the National championship.

In 1875 the Chicago Club wished to strengthen their organization, and opened negotiations to secure A. G. Spalding; the result of which he became, in 1876, the manager, captain and pitcher of the Chicago Club. That year this Club became the winner of the League championship, under his efficient management, in the initial year of the now celebrated National League.

To secure a good position in any walk of life is a difficult task, to hold it often a harder one. For twenty-five years, which ended with the season of 1891, Mr. Spalding was actively connected with the game, and during all of that time he was in the service of but three organizations—the Forest City of Rockford, the Boston and the Chicago Clubs, with the latter of which he served fifteen years as Captain, Manager, Secretary, and finally President.

In connection with William A. Hulbert, Mr. Spalding was largely instrumental in organizing the present National League, which is the recognized governing body of baseball throughout the world. Upon the death of Mr. Hulbert, early in 1882, he became President of the Chicago Club, a position he continued to fill until April, 1891, when on account of the demands of his rapidly growing business, he gave up active connections with the game which he had done so much to build up.

In 1888 Mr. Spalding carried into effect a long-considered plan of his which did more to popularize baseball, both at home and abroad, than anything before attempted. This was making a grand tour of the World with two representative baseball teams. These were organized under the name of the "Chicago and All American Baseball Teams." The first game of this organization, destined to become so famous, was played at Chicago, October 20, 1888, upon which day the party departed upon their long journey, going westward by way of San Francisco. This tour marked an era in the history of manly sports, serving as it did to introduce the American National game on five continents and in fourteen different countries of the World. Intent as mankind is upon the prosecution of business and the accumulation of wealth, athletic sports always touch a responsive chord in the universal human breast, and the pastimes of a nation furnish a good index to the real character of its people. In this way, thanks to the enterprise of A. G. Spalding, who assumed the expense of some fifty thousand dollars in the undertaking, millions of people acquired a knowledge of America and Americans and developed an interest in a country, little known to many of them before. In this way Mr. Spalding did more than any American who had preceded him to familiarize the name of Chicago with the people of distant lands, and he thus became the first foreign Apostle of the great World's Fair.

The party, which included thirty-five people, embarked at San Francisco for Australia on November 19, 1888, stopping on the way at the Sandwich Islands, Samoa, and New Zealand. Their reception in Australia surpassed all their expectations, and they played to large throngs in all the principal cities of the Continent. Leaving Australia, the party played in Ceylon, and in Egypt, giving an exhibition of their skill beneath the shadow of the Pyramids. They played in Naples, Florence, Rome, Nice, Monte Carlo, and other cities of Southern Europe, before large audiences. After a brilliant reception at Paris they crossed the English channel, and entertained hosts of people of their own blood in Great Britain.

They were everywhere royally received—and that in a literal sense. In Honolulu they were given a grand reception in the Royal Palace by King Kalakaua and banqueted on the grounds of the Queen's Palace. In Australia they were honored by twenty-eight banquets and public receptions, and this during a stay of only twenty-four days. Their games were personally witnessed and applauded by King Humbert of Italy, the Prince of Naples, the Khedive of Egypt, President Carnot of France, the Prince of Wales and large numbers of the nobility. This tour of the world, which occupied six months, attracted almost as much attention at home as abroad, and will go down in history as the most gigantic undertaking and remarkable tour ever made in the interest of any sport. The party was accompanied by four correspondents, representing nearly fifty American newspapers; and the people of this country manifested a lively interest in the triumphant progress of the Athletic Tourists.

As already indicated, the life of Mr. Spalding has not been all play, even of an earnest variety. He realized that the love of sport is deeply imbedded in the American character, and early conceived the idea of turning it to his own pecuniary advantage. In 1876, soon after his coming to Chicago, in conjunction with his brother, J.-Walter Spalding, he established in a small way a business in Chicago, which served as the nucleus around which the immense house of A.-G. Spalding & Brothers was built. They began operations on an original capital of eight hundred dollars, and with this motto pasted on their only desk: "Everything is possible to him who dares." Such was the success of this new venture that at the close of the season of 1877 the head of the firm retired from active work on the "diamond," though until 1891 he acted as Secretary and later as President of the Chicago Club, always a leading member of the National League. Before his retirement from the baseball field he manifested that energy which furnishes the only assurance of success in life. When his club was playing in Chicago he would leave the ground after a hard-fought game, and work, often until midnight, in his office —thus laying the foundation for as great a success of business as of baseball. In 1879 William-T. Brown, the brother-in-law of the Spaldings, became identified with the firm, which has since been known as A. G. Spalding & Brothers.

In 1885 the house of A. G. Spalding & Brothers, which is now a corporation with a paid-up capital of three million dollars, established a branch house in New York City, which is under the management of J.-Walter Spalding. In 1891 they established a branch house in the city of Philadelphia. In addition to managing this vast mercantile business, Mr. Spalding is the managing power in some ten large factories located in different parts of the country, where are manufactured vast quantities of athletic goods; such as uniforms and clothing for sportsmen's wear, baseballs, tennis balls, athletic suits of all kinds, bicycles, boats, fishing tackles, sporting shoes, and an endless variety of gymnasium outfits, etc. All told there are fourteen different branches to the immense business, the whole under the personal direction and government of A. G. Spalding, President of A. G. Spalding & Brothers, which corporation owns and directs these various branches. Mr. Spalding is also President of the Spalding Manufacturing Co., of Chicago; President of Lamb Manufacturing Co., of Chicopee Falls, Mass., makers of the Spalding Bicycle, and President of the Spalding St. Lawrence Boat Co., of Ogdensburg, N. Y. He is a director in the Royal Trust Co., of Chicago. At the Grand Annual Meeting in New York, in January, 1895, he was unanimously elected President of the National Board of Trade of Cycle Manufacturers, which is composed of all the prominent manufacturers of bicycles in America, representing a total invested capital of over $100,000,000. The rapid growth of this organization and the high position it occupies among the leading industrial boards of trade of the United States is largely due to his management, and serves as another evidence of his genius as an organizer and manager of large enterprises.

At the present writing (1896) he is an extensive owner of real estate. He has ever been a firm believer in the future of Chicago, and owns, just south of the city, an immense subdivision of over nine hundred acres. He owns a handsome Chicago residence on Woodlawn Ave., and a beautiful country place, with seventy-five acres of grounds, at Seabright, N. J.

Although over forty-five years of age, A. G. Spalding is in the prime of life and of physical and mental strength. He is a powerfully built man, six feet and two inches in height, and shows in his bearing the effects of early athletic sports. Socially he has been as successful as in business. He has many friends and acquaintances, and is universally highly regarded. He is a member of many clubs, including the Chicago Club, Union League Club of Chicago, Washington Park Club, Kenwood Club, Chicago Athletic Club, and Engineer's and Hardware Clubs of New York.

Mr. Henry Chadwick, the venerable American baseball writer, through whose instrumentality Mr. Spalding became a member of the Boston Club in 1871, and who has known him almost from boyhood, recently wrote as follows: "Mr. Spalding's whole career, from the beginning of his baseball success in 1867, to that of his leadership of a great business house in 1896, stands forth as a shining example of what high integrity of character, good business capacity and true American pluck, energy and enterprise can accomplish in our great Republic."

13926. Keith, b. Oct. 7, 1877, at Chicago, Ill. He entered the Hill Preparatory School, at Pottstown, Pa., in 1893. In 1896 studied music and the languages in Florence, Italy, and Paris. Entered Yale College in 1897.

13927. JAMES-WALTER[10] [13026], (James-Lawrence[9], Harry[8], John[7], Simon[6], Simon[5], Edward[4], Edward[3], John[2], Edward[1]), b. July 28, 1856, in Byron, Ill.; m. Mary Boardman, June 19, 1884; she was b. March 13, 1860, and is the daughter of Henry-K.-W. and Martha-J. Boardman, of Chicago, Ill.; he resides in New York City.

The early life of James Walter Spalding is embraced in the preceding sketch devoted to his brother.

He attended the public school in Rockford, Illinois, where he made good progress, showing, as a mere boy, the earnestness, uprightness of character and ability which signally mark his career as a man.

He left school a few months before graduating to enter a bank in Osceola, Iowa, of which his cousin was President. After a few months there, he was offered the position of book-keeper in the Winnebago National Bank, of Rockford — his mother's home — where he remained until 1876, when he entered into a business partnership with his brother, Albert G. Spalding.

They established a business in Chicago, under the firm name of A. G. Spalding & Brother, which has grown to be the largest athletic-goods firm in America.

In 1885 they established a branch house in New York City; this was placed under the management of J. Walter Spalding, and still remains under his personal supervision. In 1891 they established a branch house in the city of Philadelphia, and now control fourteen different mercantile or manufacturing enterprises connected with their business.

As a business man J. Walter Spalding is remarkable for energy, sagacity and quickness of perception; he is singularly fair-minded, and able to see at a glance all sides of a subject — as a result of which his judgment is almost unerring.

With very liberal ideas as to business methods, he has a comprehensive grasp of all the details in connection with his very complicated business which is most extraordinary. He is a director in Manhattan Savings Institution, New York; Citizens' Insurance Company, New York; The National Exhibition Company, New York, and a number of other Companies.

Mr. Spalding has traveled extensively in this country and in Europe in the interests of their vast business, and consequently is a man of wide and varied experience, and highly honored in the mercantile world.

Mr. Spalding spends his summers with his family at Monmouth Beach, New Jersey, where he has a beautiful and most attractive home.

14213. Col. JAMES-WILLETT [14205], (Benjamin); m. Miss Fetterman, of Pittsburg, Pa.

Prior to his marriage, he sailed with Commodore Perry in an expedition to Japan to make the first treaty with that country, and on his return wrote a book entitled "Japan Expedition." After his marriage he lived awhile in Texas, but returned, and got into Philippi, W.Va., just at the time of the first skirmish in West Virginia. He then joined the army, and was Colonel in the Confederate Army, and was killed at Sewell Mountain. He was a great favorite in his Regiment, and was taken to Richmond, and there buried. He had one daughter.

Col. James-Willett Spalding sailed as commander's clerk in the expedition to Japan, under Commodore Perry, prompted, as he relates in the separate account he afterward wrote under the title of "Japan Expedition," by a desire to visit that singular country and people of whom little reliable information was then known. The expedition was undertaken with a view to open up trade relations with Japan, by means of a treaty that should give American ships the right to enter Japanese ports and "be permitted to exchange gold and silver coin and articles of goods under such regulations as shall be established by the Japanese Government for that purpose, and incidentally to secure some assurance from the Japanese Government against a continuance of the inhospitality and cruelty inflicted upon the seamen of American Whalers who were thrown by shipwreck on their coasts."

The expedition which was to have consisted of several vessels was finally undertaken by Perry in the "Mississippi" alone, Nov. 24, 1852; his intended Consort, the Princeton, breaking down in Chesapeake Bay. The voyage was made by way of the Cape of Good Hope, and after touching at Mauritius, Ceylon, Singapore, and Hong Kong, where the Plymouth, Susquehanna, Supply and Saratoga joined the Expedition, anchored in Yeddo Bay July 7, 1853. The success of the American arms in the war with Mexico just concluded, was not unknown to the Japanese, and with the national prestige thus enhanced, the expedition under Perry was timed to "favorably influence them to enter upon a commercial treaty with a country greatly enriched as they believed by the conquest and supposed plunder of Mexico;" and the show of armed force which the American men-of-war made, no doubt weighed with the Japanese, who at first were inclined to doubt the pacific intentions of the squadron, deeming it an intended invasion. Considerable excitement prevailed at Yeddo, then a city of 1,200,000, when the "black ships" were first sighted. "With alarmed faces the people thronged to the shrines to pray, or hastily packed their valuables. Many who could, left their homes to go and visit relatives in the country. Seventy thousand people were massed on neighboring heights watching the entrance of the "fire ships of the Western Barbarians." The black ship remained in the bay eight days. Perry kept his men on ship's food, holding them all in leash, allowing no insults to the people, receiving no gifts. In no way was any Japanese insulted or robbed. The Americans burned no houses, stole no valuables, none were drunk. Not a single native was kicked, insulted or robbed. Our party landed, and actually showed such a politeness that impelled the people to set out refreshments of tea and peaches. These "hairy" Americans were so kind and polite, showed the people their trinkets and watches, and even patiently explained in strange and unintelligible language, but with pantomimic gestures, the use of many things." In this way they gained the confidence of the people, and truth to tell greatly surprised them, for this was not the way the Russian sailors had behaved in former visits to Saghalin nor the British at Nagasaki. The people began to think that probably the foreigners were not "devils," but men, after all. Eyes were opened on both sides.

The outcome of the expedition is well known. Though it did not accomplish all it set out to do, for the hermit was as yet unwilling to open all his ports to foreign trade, this proved the thin edge of the wedge, and may be regarded as an epoch-making event for Japan, whose fruit has been the great development of the country and the advancement in civilization, and in the mechanical and industrial arts of its energetic people.

APPENDIX TWO.

SPALDINGS WHOSE ANCESTORS CAME FROM SCOTLAND.

I. THE GEORGIA BRANCH.

THE name of Spalding is scattered all over Scotland, but it is understood that the County of Perth is the principal home of the name. Old history tells us that a family of that name was the proprietor of the estate of Ashantilly in Perthshire, and that Spalding was a vassal of the Duke of Athol, and was bound to furnish the Duke with thirty-three fighting men in troublous times.

The Spaldings of Georgia are descendants from the Ashantilly Spaldings, county of Perth, Scotland, and they from Sir Pierce Spalding, who surrendered Berwick Castle to the Earl of Murray in 1318.

Charles Spalding, Esq., of Sapelo Island, Ga., very kindly furnished the pedigree of this family. The emigrant ancestor came to this country before the Revolutionary War, and in that struggle espoused the cause of the King. After the close of the war, he returned to Georgia, where his descendants still live. These Spaldings are highly respectable, and have held important positions of influence and of trust in that State.

The following letters furnished partial information in regard to the Georgia Branch of the Spalding family. They formed the basis from which we were enabled to secure a complete record up to the present time (1896).

SUNNY SIDE, MACON & WESTERN R. R.,
June 7th, 1870.

DEAR SIR:—Your favor of the 13th of May only reached me yesterday, or it should have received an earlier answer. I welcome your correspondence, as taking us from a disagreeable present, to the past, where, in accordance with the instincts of advancing years, I like to linger.

Your last communication found me in an old ruinous house by the seaside, where I sometimes resort, but do not permanently reside; and I was able to answer you promptly, because I keep there my father's Bible, and some other relics, under the charge of an old Freedman, himself an heirloom, for he waited in his boyhood on my maternal grandfather. But I fear I cannot immediately give you the further information you ask for, as regards my brother Randolph Spalding's family, as his widow and her sons reside several hundred miles from me, and they have their family record with them. I propose, "Deo volente," to spend the next winter on the coast, in their neighborhood, and will then, if you wish it, furnish the fuller particulars you ask for.

I notice your request to be allowed to make use of the hurried memoir I sent you of my immediate progenitors. I can have no objection to your doing so, although I feel that it was very incompiete, and particularly as regards my grandfather, James Spalding, whose return to Georgia was not mentioned. I should have stated that after the close of the Revolutionary war, the Legislature of Georgia made all the amends in their power to this ill-used man. They restored such of his property as had not already passed into other hands, and voted him some small indemnity for the damage done him. He returned to Georgia and lived there very much respected, but greatly reduced in his circumstances. He died in Savannah, and was buried in the vault of his wife's uncle, Gen. Lachlan McIntosh, of the Revolutionary army. I have not the date of his death at hand, but it is inscribed on the tablet, and it was towards the close of the last century.

As you seem uncertain whether your ancestor, Edward Spalding, was of Scotch or English origin, I will mention a few particulars of the family in Scotland, which may not have come to your knowledge.

We trace to Andrew Spalding (I think that is the Christian name, but have not seen the records for so long, that I may have forgotten), a burgess of Berwick on Tweed, who admitted Robert Bruce into that fortress during his war with Edward; for this service rendered, he was given the lands Ashantilly in Perthshire, which remained with his descendants almost to our day. Consult Lord Hailes's annals of Scotland, if you can get them; probably the records of the Spalding Club, an antiquarian association in Scotland, might furnish interesting matter; but I live too much out of the world to get access to them. I think our name was originally Flemish, for the town of Spalding, in England, was settled by a colony of Flemings; and history also tells us that, not long before the surrender of Berwick to the Bruce, a body of Flemings had been butchered by Edward in Berwick, and the same annalists also tell us that my, and perhaps your, ancestor was moved to open the gates to the Scotch, by a sense of wrong suffered under Edward.

I am perhaps repeating to you what you know perfectly well already; if so, excuse me—if otherwise, I may have opened to you a pleasant field of exploration.

Thanking you for your kind invitation, and reciprocating it,

I am very respectfully and truly

Your obt. servt.,

CHARLES SPALDING.

GRIFFIN, GEORGIA, July 30, 1870.

DEAR SIR:—Having occasion to write to my brother Randolph Spalding's widow, I bore in mind your request to be furnished with the full records of her family, which she has obligingly furnished me, and which I here transcribe.

Randolph Spalding married, in Russell county, Alabama, Mary Bass, on the 7th of December, 1843. Had issue—1st, Sarah-E. Spalding, born on the 16th of September, 1844, at The Forest, McIntosh Co.; 2d, Thomas Spalding, born on the 16th day of September, 1847, in Russell county, Alabama; 3d, Thomas-Bourke Spalding, born on Sapelo Island, on the 23d of February, 1851. When, if ever you publish any genealogical paper, I should be glad to receive a copy. My postoffice during the present summer is Griffin, Georgia; during the winter Darien.

I am, dear sir, very respectfully and truly

Your obt. servt.,

CHARLES SPALDING.

BRUNO, MCINTOSH CO., GEORGIA,
March 12, 1871.

DEAR SIR:—Your favor of the 27th ultimo reached me a few days since. As regards your request that I would duplicate my letter of last year, which you have mislaid, I can only reply in substance, as I kept no copy.

My grandfather, James Spalding, came to America about the year 1760; he was the only son of Capt. Thomas Spalding, an officer in a Highland regiment, who lost his life by drowning, while serving in Holland.

From my grandfather's Bible, I make the following extracts:

"Thomas Spalding and Anna Lermouth were married in the city of Edinburgh about the year 1734—and afterwards his widow married Murdoch McLean, of the family of McLean of Loch Buy of the island of Mull, a captain of the 84th regiment." James Spalding, the son of Thomas and Anna, was married Nov. 5th, 1772, to Margery McIntosh at the house of her father, William McIntosh, planter, on Sapelo River, Georgia.

From this marriage was born at Frederica, on the island of St. Simon, March 25, 1774, Thomas Spalding, my father, an only child. Thomas Spalding married, at the residence of her father, Richard Leake of Belleville, Sarah Leake, my mother—and they had numerous issue, and many of their descendants still survive—but as it is not necessary to your object that I should enumerate them all, I will only add that none of the male line of James Spalding remain, except myself, a man advanced in life and childless, and my two nephews, Thomas and Bourke Spalding (sons of Randolph Spalding, deceased); they are now living on Sapelo Island, the former recently married.

From the above you will see that we are not connected with your family, or with that of Maryland, nor do I think we can be traced to any English family of our name, as my forefathers were established in Scotland from a very remote period, early in the fourteenth century.

Very respectfully and truly,
Your ob't servant,
CHARLES SPALDING.

14245. Capt. THOMAS[1], b. probably about 1710, in Ashantilly, Scotland; d. about 1750, in Holland; m. Anne Lermouth, in 1734, in Edinburgh, Scotland; after the death of Capt. Thomas, his widow m. Murdoch McLean; she d. Feb. 17, 1780.

He came in direct line from Peter Spalding, who opened the gates of Berwick to Robert Bruce, A.D. 1318. Being an adherent of the Stuarts, Capt. Thomas Spalding was forced to leave Scotland after the rebellion of 1745, and became a Captain in a Highland Regiment under Gen. Sir James Stuart, in foreign service, and lost his life by drowning, while serving in Holland, whilst crossing the river Rhine with his regiment.

By reference to the "Register of Sasines" of the County of Perth, Scotland, it will be found that Thomas Spalding, writer to the Signet, of Edinburgh, conveyed, in the year 1743, by an instrument dated November 29, and recorded the same day, to Thomas Bisset, of Glenelbert, Commissary of Dunkeld, the following property: Of all and whole these parts and portions of the lands and Barony of Ashantilly—the lands of Wester Burnside of Ashantilly, Craigencrab, Leiknafer, East Brae of Ashan-tilly, Creilfarick, Donanbadock, Bualrick, Bualfauck, Glenhilry-beg and Laidsmount, with appurtenance, lying in the Parish of Kirkmicheal.

What is given above requires explanation to parties ignorant of Scotch laws and terms. The Register of Sasines is a record of all conveyances or encumbrances on Real Estate, which is required by law to be kept in each Shire of Scotland; and the Commissary of Dunkeld was not, as might be supposed, a military personage charged with the provisioning of troops, but a high legal functionary, in whose Court alone could any Real Estate (in that land of strict entails), however encumbered, be brought to account and sequestered for the benefit of creditors. (The Commissary Courts were about this time merged in the Court of Sessions.)

From the foregoing explanation it will be understood that Thomas Spalding was a ruined gentleman, whose Estate in the year 1743 was placed in the keeping of the court. It is supposed that his financial ruin was brought about in a great measure by the participation of the family in various abortive attempts to restore the Stuarts to the throne of Scotland prior to 1745.

He left a widow and several small children at Leith Mills, near Edinburgh. It is not believed that any of these children grew to man's estate, except James; as in all the correspondence for nearly twenty years between mother and son, no mention whatever was made of any other children.

14247. JAMES[5] [14246], (Thomas[4]), b. about 1734, in Edinburgh, Scotland; d. March 7, 1802, in Savannah, Ga.; m. Marjory McIntosh, of Darien, Ga., Nov. 5, 1772, at the house of her father, William McIntosh, planter, on Sapelo River, Ga.; she was the granddaughter of John McIntosh Mohr, commonly written John-Mohr McIntosh; she was b. in 1754, and d. March 13, 1818; res. St. Simon's Island, Ga.

He emigrated to America about 1760, settling in the then Province of Georgia. He became a successful planter and merchant, of large means, and as Senator represented Glenn Co., Ga., in the State Legislature.

Soon after the death of his father, he entered the counting house of Messrs. Graham & Clarke, London, a firm having extensive dealings with the Southern Colonies, and having a branch house at Charleston, S. C. It is very probable that he made his first visit to America in the service of this house, but exactly when does not appear.

Mr. Spalding seems to have entertained from his youth up, with the tenacity of a Scotchman, a fixed purpose to redeem his paternal estate from the encumbrances under which it lay, and to resume the place which his forefathers had held for several centuries among the northern proprietors; with this view, making Charleston his point of departure, he extended himself in various commercial alliances in the adjoining provinces. When Florida was ceded in 1763 to Great Britain by Spain, he proceeded to that province and established the house of James Spalding & Co., and was appointed one of the Council which assisted the Governor in the administration of that Colony. At Frederica, St. Simon's Island, the house of McKay & Spalding had been for some time established, and in company with Roger Kelsall (a retired British officer who afterward played a very active part in the Revolutionary War,) he established at Sunbury the house of Spalding & Kelsall. He also located an Indian trading post at Fort Barrington on the Altamaha, which collected peltries from the Indians and supplied their wants in return.

In 1770 James Spalding made his last visit to Edinburgh to look after his affairs. He found that the last Laird of Ashantilly had been laid in the grave, and his estate, to which Mr. Spalding had claim both of succession and as a creditor was also in the keeping of the Court. He returned to America soon after, more intent than ever to secure by commercial enterprise the means of lifting the burden which weighed upon his home prospects. The Revolution burst upon the country before he could make himself safe, and he suffered accordingly.

James Spalding retired with his family to the banks of the St. Johns; but here, as through life, persistent ill-fortune followed him. The new Governor conceived that Mr. Spalding's close connection with the active leaders of the insurrection in Georgia, and as one who was slow in taking refuge under the Royal flag, he was a proper object of suspicion, and had his name stricken from the Colonial Council, and looked upon him with an unfriendly eye. James Spalding remained in retirement during the weary years that followed, until the restoration of peace. Mr. Spalding's house was a sort of neutral ground, where British officers, and such American officers as were prisoners on parole in Florida, constantly met in friendly intercourse. On the return of tranquility to the country, the Legislature of Georgia promptly removed the name of James Spalding from the Bill of Attainder, and voted him some compensation for his losses by the plundering expedition of Paddy Carr. They issued a loan office certificate to him for whatever property of his own they could separate from his partner's; and this certificate many years afterwards was the means of securing to his son the wreck of his property.

14249. THOMAS[3] [14248], (James[2], Thomas[1]), the only son of James, b. March 25, 1774, at Frederica, on the Island of St. Simon's, Ga.; d. Jan. 4, 1851, at Ashantilly, near Darien, Ga.; m. Sarah Leake, Nov. 5, 1795, at the residence of her father; she was the only child of Richard Leake, a native of the City of Cork, Ireland, and Jane Martin, of the Island of St. Christopher's, Carribean Sea; she was b. in 1778, and d. May 17, 1843, at Ashantilly, near Darien, Georgia.

He was a man of rare culture and enlightenment, and faithfully served his people in Congress. He was chairman of the Convention of 1850, at the advanced age of seventy-seven; and his influence helped to postpone the war that subsequently followed. The County of Spalding, Ga., was named in honor of him.

Mr. Thomas Spalding took his family to Europe, and visited the principal cities, and went to his ancestral home in Scotland. The Estate of Ashantilly, after the long delays and opportunities allowed for redemption by Scotch law, had been sold by order of the Lords of Session, and thus another family that had been seated for many generations in the Scottish parliament as Barons of Ashantilly, gave way to newer proprietors.

Soon after Mr. Spalding's return to America he purchased one-half of Sapelo Island, Georgia, being moved to do so by the fact that several French emigrant families of very high culture had established themselves on that Island. With one of these, the Marquis de Montalet, he contracted a friendship which only terminated with the death of that gentleman. With the natural desire to be known to the people of his country, he engaged at first in the political questions of the day, and served one term in Congress; he then retired to Sapelo, and led the life of a country gentleman. He had brought with him from London a well-selected library, to which he added all new publications of any value as they came forth. He devoted himself to agriculture and the rites of hospitality.

The most absorbing interest of Mr. Spalding's life was the desire to write his name on the records of his country by the execution of some work of public utility which would live when he and family had passed away. To this end he had long meditated connecting the waters of the Gulf of Mexico with the Atlantic by a canal which should unite the two great rivers—the Appalachicola and the Atlamaha—thus bringing through Georgia to their own seaports a vastly increased commerce. With this view he corresponded with that distinguished engineer, General Bernard, then Chief Engineer of the United States, having been driven from the same situation in France by the fall of the first Napoleon. General Bernard gave the project his most hearty approval; he considered it the only practicable route for such a connection, for he had lately examined the Peninsula of Florida under orders from the Government, with a view of connecting the Ocean with the Gulf through that State, and had reported adversely. Fortified with this high authority, he applied to the Legislature of Georgia for leave to construct a canal or railroad from the Ocmulgee, the main branch of the Altamaha, to the Flint River, a branch of the Appalachicola. These rivers seem to bend towards each other as if Nature wished to aid their union. The Legislature granted to him all that he asked for himself and such associates as he might join with him. But the mania for railroads was so strong at that moment, stimulated by the successful experiment of the Liverpool and Manchester, that he yielded to pressure, and employing that experienced engineer, Reynolds, and a party, he put himself at their head; and, although in bad health, he accompanied them every step, and slept in his tent until the whole railroad line had been located.

In the year 1850, the people of Georgia were intensely excited in relation to the Federal relations, and a party strong in numbers and in talents, clamored for a dissolution of the Union. To ascertain the will of the people, the Legislature of Georgia called together a convention of their delegates to decide whether they should withdraw from the Union or not. Although he had nearly accomplished his seventy-seventh year, the subject of this sketch did not decline the call of the people of McIntosh County to represent them in that Convention. He was called to the chair as its presiding officer, and by the moderation of his views contributed h s full share to the postponement of the evil days that followed some years after. As regards negro slavery he had long known and felt that it ought to be modified or abolished, and in early life had made some efforts in the former direction. He wished to prevent the dispersion of families by restraining the power of doing so under execution for debt, and ultimately to attach them to the land they cultivated, making them serfs rather than slaves; thus following the course which Emancipation in the far past had adopted in Europe. He was an ardent State's rights man, but he was too enlightened to believe that the Union could be dissolved without Civil War; and he knew that a war in support of slavery would bring no aid from countries abroad. When he adjourned the Convention and bade its members farewell, he said with prophetic truth: "Perhaps this may prove a graceful termination to a somewhat protracted life." He arrived at his son's house a few days after, and only left it for the grave, Jan. 5, 1851.

14250. Jane-Martin-Leake, b. Oct. 8, 1796, at Savannah, Ga.; she d. May 23, 1861; m. Haywood-Brailsford, June 13, 1821; their descendants are extinct.

14251. James, b. Dec. 12, 1797, at St. Simon's Island, Ga.; d. Nov. 24, 1820, at Milledgeville, Ga. He was a member of the State Legislature from McIntosh Co., Ga.

14253. Hester-Margery, b. April 23, 1801, in London, England; m. William Cooke, at Darien, Ga., Jan. 30, 1821; he d. Oct. 11, 1861.

Sarah-Barrow McKinley, Jan. 3, 1871; she was the daughter of William McKinley and Patience Barrow, and was b. April 1, 1847. His widow subsequently married William-C. Wylly, of Inverness, Ga. His home was on Sapelo Island, Ga., and he was killed in a railway accident at Macon, Ga.

He came in direct line from Peter Spalding, who opened the gates of Berwick to Robert Bruce; A.D. 1318; and through his grandmother, Sarah Leake, he was descended from Sir Francis Leake, Earl of Scarsdale, of the first creation.

No children.

14272. BOURKE[6] [14269], (Randolph[5], Thomas[4], James[3], Thomas[1]), b. Feb. 23, 1851, on Sapelo Island, Ga.; d. Sept. 5, 1884; m. Ella-Patience Barrow, Nov. 3, 1874; she was the daughter of David-C. Barrow and Sarah Pope, and was b. Feb. 8, 1849. He was accidentally killed while out hunting.

They also had an infant daughter, who died in infancy.

THE PAISLEY FAMILY.

Thomas Spalding [14286] writes as follows in regard to his forefathers:

OMAHA, NEB., May 2, 1894.

DEAR SIR: My grandfather, John Spalding [14274], was married in or about 1760; his wife's name was Hellan, I never knew her family name. His residence was in Edinburgh, Scotland, and his business was that of a stocking maker. They had three children, the two older were girls, I can't remember their names; the third a son, whom they named John, he was my father. A few years after this his wife Hellan died, and in process of time, he married another woman by whom he had one son. The name John seems to have been a family name in our connection. My great grandfather, my grandfather, my own father, my oldest brother, and his oldest son, were all named John. My father, John Spalding, was born July 3, 1769, as you will see on pages 9 and 11, of the Memoir. I am the youngest of my father's family, and the only one born in this country; and with one brother, five years older than myself, are the only ones of the old family now living.

This is the extent of my knowlege of our forefathers. The connection of our family with the coat of mail recorded in the first edition of the Spalding Memorial, I know very little. I can remember hearing one of my older brothers speak of it, but it is so long since I can only recall the fact without the subatance, for I thought but little on that subject in those days.

On the first page of the appendix you will find as good a record of our old family as I was able to collect. A full family record that we had, was, after the death of our parents, given to one of my older brothers, and some time after that his house was burned, and the supposition is that those records were burned with it, for they never could be found afterward.

You will notice that the Spalding who came to Georgia was married in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was evidently near the age of my grandfather, and may have been his brother or some near relative. I can tell you very little about my mother's family connection only that her name was Joanna Bissett, her father's name was William Bissett.

Thus I have given you a short sketch of our family, and a probable connection with one family named in your History; and, as I believe the whole Spalding race are connected, if we only had the genealogical records to show it.

I will also send you a list of my own family, and a list of our relations that were in the army of the Rebellion. I find that Samuel-Kennedy Spalding, M. D., has written you; also Lawrence-Dale Spalding; and perhaps the others may do so, but I will send them all together and you can arrange them to suit.

Yours respectfully,
THOMAS SPALDING.

14274. JOHN[3], b. in Scotland; he m. Hellan ——; they had two daughters and one son, John [14276]. After Hellan's death he married again; he had at least one son by the second marriage, but no record is at hand; res. Edinburgh, Scotland.

His father's name was John.

14276. JOHN[3] [14275], (John[2], John[1]), b. July 3, 1769, in Edinburgh, Scotland; d. Sept., 1846, in Beaver Co., Pa., at the age of seventy-eight years; m. Joanna Bissett, in 1794, at Paisley, Scotland; she was b. in 1776, and d. in March, 1852.

After the death of his mother, Hellan, he went to Paisley, Scotland, where he learned silk and linen weaving. All his family, except John, came to America, landing in Philadelphia, Jan. 1, 1817. In November of the following year they arrived in Pittsburg, having made the whole distance of 350 miles over rocky and ungraded roads and the Alleghany Mountains, their goods packed in a two-wheel cart pulled by one horse, the women and younger children riding alternately, and all the men walking. He next purchased 160 acres in Beaver Co., Pa., where the whole family settled in April, 1819.

Mr. Spalding was always to be found in the front ranks of every moral reform, and ready to extend a helping hand to any measure that would tend to raise the moral standard of the community in which he lived to higher and better platform. He was a man of strong convictions, and when satisfied that he was right, would act upon his convictions in the most firm and independent manner.

The house was about fourteen by eighteen feet, all in one room below, and in the attic you could not stand straight under the roof. Into that house the Spalding family of eight persons moved in April, 1819, and lived in it for three years. During this time they cleared off some twenty acres more land for cultivation, and then turned their attention to providing some better buildings, of which they were very much in need. The first was a hewed log house about twenty-two by twenty-six feet, and one and a half stories high, which when finished with shingle roof and close floors, and divided into rooms, made a very comfortable and respectable looking house; and in this house the younger children grew into maturity, and the father and mother spent the balance of their life on earth.

14370. THOMAS[4] [14369], (William[3]), b. about 1785, in District of Ashantilly, Perthshire, Scotland; res. Woodside, Burrelton, Perthshire, Scotland, where he d. in 1876, aged ninety-one years; m. Jane Johnstone, about 1810; her parents were what were called crofters, then holding for rent land growing flax, and manufacturing at home.

The following is an extract from a Scottish newspaper: "The finest men we have ever known have been gardeners. There was Thomas Spalding, of Woodside, for example. What a Nathaniel was he! A man without guile. His garden his endless delight, his flowers his companions, his children his merry friends. With what pride did his noble wife delight to display the trophies he has won against all the wide Strathmore. What a paradise of peace, of purity, of love was his humble home. Morning and evening ascended the simple psalm of praise. In lowliest reverence did he bow the knee and worship. Where was the suffering neighbor he did not bless, the wanderer he did not pity? He was an Original Seceder. Yes, original before the type was broken or its outlines obscured with the dust and din of strife. It does one's heart good to recall his kindly smile, his soft and musical voice. It refreshes the very soul to see him bending with his spade in his hand, the sweat on his brow, among his flowers, his wife cheering him by her companionship as she knitted her stocking. This is the kind of life Mr. Gladstone delights in. He would see more of this; less of life in garrets and crowded cities. Scotland has enriched the world with her sons, whose great magic wand is the spade. At this hour the son of that same grand old gardener of Woodside is a leading florist in the United States. He supplies the rarest flowers, the richest bouquets, and so upholds not only the honor of Auld Scotland, but follows still, amid all the hurrying, ambitious pursuits of those who hasten to be rich, the simpler, more ancient, grander mode of life. Like his fine old father, John Spalding follows Adam's profession, and still uses the oldest, most honorable of all inventions — he is a worker with the spade."

Sept. 3, 1839; her mother was a direct descendant of Capt. Peleg Redfield, who served in the Colonial War.

Hon. George Spalding emigrated with his parents to the United States in 1843; settled in Buffalo, N.Y., where he attended the public schools.

In 1853 he accompanied his parents to Monroe, Mich., where his father purchased a farm on the north bank of Raisin River, two miles west of Monroe. He taught school in the winter of 1860–61.

He was mustered into the United States service June 20, 1861, as a private in Company A, Fourth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry; promoted to first sergeant; first lieutenant, August 5, 1861; captain, Jan. 13, 1862; he was wounded in action at the siege of Yorktown, Va., April, 1862; wounded at Malvern Hill, July 3, 1862; transferred and promoted to lieutenant-colonel of the Eighteenth Michigan Volunteer Infantry, July 18, 1862; assigned to command of said regiment and by orders of the War Department reported to Major-General Wright at Cincinnati; was engaged in driving Gen. Kirby Smith and General Morgan out of Kentucky; was ordered to join General Rosecrans, in command of the Army of the Cumberland, in the spring of 1863; appointed provost-marshal of Nashville, Tenn., and given plenary power as provost-marshal by order of the War Department; resigned to accept promotion as colonel of the Twelfth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Cavalry, and was assigned to command of brigade known as "Johnson's Guard;" was engaged in protecting railroad from Nashville to Johnsonville; assigned to command of Fourth Division of cavalry, Army of the Cumberland, headquarters Pulaski, Tenn.; engaged with General Hood in his advance toward Nashville; was promoted at the battle of Nashville, Tenn., "for valuable services at the battle of Nashville," to brevet brigadier-general, and assigned with full rank and pay by special order of the President of the United States; severely wounded in said battle; mustered out of service Oct. 24, 1865.

He was postmaster of Monroe, Mich., from 1866 to 1870; special agent of the Treasury Department from 1871 to 1875; elected mayor of Monroe, Mich., 1876; president of the board of education; admitted to the bar by examination, 1878; elected director of the First National Bank of Monroe, Mich., 1876; appointed its cashier, 1877; continued as director and cashier until 1892, when he was elected president; appointed member of the board of control, State Industrial Home fof Girls, 1885, for six years, and reappointed in 1892.

He was elected to the Fifty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 23,708 votes, against 17,596 votes for Thomas E. Barkworth, Democrat and Populist, and 2,032 votes for David W. Grandon, Prohibitionist.

Dec. 1, 1895, he was appointed a member of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, and on the Committee on Militia.

January 15, 1896, in the discussion on the Pension Appropriation Bill, the Hon. George Spalding, in a short and vigorous speech, expressed his conviction that every pension that had been granted in the past or might be granted in the future to any soldier who had served in the war was by the Act of Congress in 1893 declared to be a vested right, (and was as thoroughly a gift within the rights and provinces of the law as is the patent to a piece of United States land after settlement or homestead entry), guaranteeing the payment thereof and providing that the pension should not be suspended without due notice. Referring to Gen. D. E. Sickles, who was present, he spoke of him as one of the grand heroes who had borne the brunt of the day at Gettysburg, who bore on his body the marks of wounds inflicted there, and who, when a member of the House of Representatives in 1893 had again in peaceful conflict borne the brunt of the day and proved to the satisfaction of every lawyer and member of the House that the pension of the soldier was a vested right.

Mr. Spalding has since taken part in debates on pension matters, and to contest the view that his pension is a gratuity, a gift, a bounty, and not a right.

He resides at Monroe, Mich.

APPENDIX THREE.

THE MARYLAND BRANCH OF THE SPALDING FAMILY.

THEIR SETTLEMENT IN MARYLAND, ETC.

The late Right Rev. Martin J. Spalding, Archbishop of Baltimore, said that it is certain that the Spaldings of Maryland were fully established in St. Mary's County before the year 1650, for deeds and other papers of that date, in their name, are still found in Leonardtown, Md.

Charles Warren Spalding [12153], after patient research, thinks that the progenitor of the Maryland Branch of the Spalding family was "Edmund Spalden," probably a brother of Edward—the progenitor of the New England family.

The name of "Edmund Spalding" appears in a Virginia State Document (Senate Report) entitled "Virginia Colonial Records, 1619–1680." On page 53 of that work, in a "Liste of the Livinge," in Virginia, Feb. 16, 1623, and under the caption of "More at Elizabeth Cittie," appears the name of

"EDMUND SPALDEN."

The supposition is that Edward and Edmund Spalding were brothers, and emigrated from England to Virginia in 1619; that some years later Edward went to the Massachusetts Colony, while Edmund joined the Maryland Colony, under Lord Baltimore, and became the progenitor of the Maryland Branch of the Spaldings.

It is known that there was constant communication between the Virginia Colony and the Maryland Colony; and in 1634, a short time after the landing of Leonard Calvert in Maryland, Sir John Harvey, governor of Virginia, visited him at St. Mary's.

No expense has been spared in tracing the origin of the Maryland Branch of the Spaldings, and to secure a full record of that family; and success would ultimately have crowned our efforts had there been time in which to complete the work. It would, however, be a work of years of investigation to fully connect the various branches that belong to the main stock of the Maryland Spaldings. A visit was made to Leonardtown, St. Mary's County, Md., but it was found that about fifty years ago the principal documents of the court house were destroyed by fire.

We shall therefore give whatever records we have secured in the following pages. They are given in separate groups or families. There is no doubt but that they all belong to the Maryland Branch, and it is to be hoped that in some future edition of the SPALDING MEMORIAL they will be fully connected with each other.

The following letters from the late Most Rev. Martin John Spalding, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore, furnished information in regard to the Maryland branch of the Spaldings, which was the basis of the greater part of the valuable family records collected and given in the following pages.

LOUISVILLE, KY.,

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 30th ult. reached Louisville while I was absent, and it could not be attended to sooner. I regret that it is not in my power to furnish you with much information, especially in regard to the New England branch of our family, of whom I may say I know nothing definite. I will give you some information in regard to the Maryland or Catholic branch, which is that to which I belong, though even in this my sources of information are by no means abundant. In a country where ancestry is so little regarded, and where every one is the artificer of his own fortune, our acquaintance with our forefathers is limited.

The ancestor or ancestors of our family came out to Maryland either with Lord Baltimore, or very soon afterwards. The family settled originally in St. Mary's County, Md., from which it branched off into Charles and the neighboring counties, and afterwards spread into Pennsylvania and Virginia. That the family is one of the oldest in Maryland, I infer from the fact that my grandfather had an uncle, Thomas Spalding, who, I believe, was born in Maryland, and who died more than fifty years ago at the advanced age of one hundred and twenty years. The family is still very numerous in Maryland; though all my more immediate relatives are in Kentucky or in the West. For more particulars in regard to the Maryland branch, I beg to refer you to Basil-R. Spalding, Esq., North Charles Street, Baltimore; also to James Spalding, Esq., Richmond, Va. You might also probably gain information by conferring with Mr. Davis, of Baltimore, author of the "Day-Star of Freedom," a work vindicating the Maryland Pilgrim Fathers, written by Mr. Davis, a Protestant lawyer.

My grandfather, Benedict Spalding, came with his family to Kentucky, in the spring of 1791. He had a large family of twelve children, all of whom, except three, are now dead, most of them leaving large families. My own father, the oldest son of my grandfather, Richard Spalding, died in 1850, leaving fourteen living children, I being the third son, having been born May 23, 1810. I was educated partly in Kentucky and partly in Rome, where I remained four years to complete my theological course, and where I was ordained priest in 1834. I was consecrated Bishop Coadjutor of Louisville on the 10th of Sept., 1848; and succeeded to the title of Bishop of Louisville on the death of my venerable principal, the Rt. Rev. Bishop Flaget, Feb. 11, 1850. I have at different times published five works, of which I will take pleasure in presenting you copies, should you require them, and conclude to go on with your work.

It is almost needless to add, that all the members of our branch are Roman Catholics. They came, no doubt, originally from Spalding, in England; and I believe that the original orthography of the name is that which we adopt. The family was originally German or Saxon; and Spalding is the name of a German philosopher of some standing, but tinctured, I believe—for I never saw his works—with infidel or rationalistic opinions. There was also an English Spalding, who was the author of a history of English literature, which is often quoted, but, from the account I have of it, it is not very reliable or unprejudiced.

From intimations which I have received from some of the older members of the family, I infer that our ancestors came over to America from Wales, to which principality a branch of the family had probably removed from the English town of Spalding. This town was originally one of the great abbacies, which were suppressed under Henry VIII or Edward VII. See 2d volume of Cobbett's History of the Reformation in England, where it is numbered among the suppressed abbacies.

My relative, Basil-R. Spalding, of Baltimore, to whom I referred above, has the coat-of-arms of the family, which he obtained many years ago from an English Professor of Heraldry. If he has returned from Europe, whither he went more than a year ago, he will take pleasure in showing you, or allowing you to copy, this curious piece of heraldry, in which the mitre, probably that of an abbot, crowns the escutcheon.

These meagre details contain almost all that I am able to say on the subject concerning which you ask information. I shall, however, take great pleasure in giving you any further aid or information which you may require, and which I may be able to furnish.

I remain faithfully yours,

M. J. SPALDING,

Bishop of Louisville.

106 N. CHARLES STREET, BALTIMORE,
Jan. 6, 1871.

DEAR SIR: I must commend you for your zeal in making genealogical researches in regard to the family of Spaldings; the more so, as in our own country and generation, men are so much taken up with current events and the present—and, I may add, with themselves—as to forget the past, especially their ancestors, proceeding apparently on the trite adage—alas, too true!—"out of sight, out of mind."

In addition to what I wrote some years ago to E.-W. Spalding, so far as I can recollect what I wrote, I beg to make the following remarks concerning the Maryland branch of the family.

1. It is certain that the Spaldings of Maryland were fully established in St. Mary's Co. before the year 1650; for deeds and other papers of that date, in their name, are still found in Leonardtown; though, if I mistake not, an accident of fire destroyed some of the documents. I incline to think that they came some years before this date, probably in the early commencement of the colony, very shortly after the arrival of the first ship of emigrants.

2. As you very correctly spell your own name, no doubt Spalding is the correct orthography; it is that of England, Scotland, and of Germany, whence the name originally came into England, probably with the Anglo-Saxons, in the fifth or sixth century. A great German writer, though far from orthodox, bears the name of Spalding, an infidel philosopher. All other spellings are simply barbarisms, to be eliminated.

3. I believe that the head-quarters of the family in England was Lincolnshire, where one of them, at a very early period, founded and gave his name to the great Abbey of Spalding, one of the thirteen great abbies of England spared by Henry VIII, but confiscated under his son Edward VI. I think, from my researches and whatever knowledge I may have in such matters, that the present town of Spalding grew up around and under the fostering influence of this abbey (not priory). Such is the origin of many flourishing European towns. The monks made desert places smile, and agricultural and population followed them.

4. In order that you may have some further clew as to the origin and relations of your branch of the family, I will mention to you: 1st, that my grandfather, Benedict Spalding, had twelve children to survive and raise large families, all except one, who had no children. 2d. His sons were named Richard, Thomas, Benedict, Joseph, Lewis, and William; and the oldest, my own father, Richard, had twenty-one children, of whom fifteen were raised to become men and women. He married Henrietta Hamilton, whose father was Leonard Hamilton, the same who emigrated to Kentucky with my grandfather in 1790. The names of my brothers were Leonard, Richard, Benedict, Clement, William, Joseph, Henry, and Thomas. The most current names of the family itself—not borrowed from side alliances—are still George, Samuel, Basil, Henry, John, Thomas, Richard, Edward, James, etc.

5. In Kentucky alone, I know of no less than five branches of the family from Maryland, all Catholics, evidently from the same stock, but little related: and as they are all prolific, the number must now be very great throughout the West.

6. I have little doubt that all the Spaldings came originally from Lincolnshire, in England; and that first the abbey, and then the town of Spalding, was their alma mater and nursery.

These are a few of the many things which occur to me. If there be anything else in which I can serve you,

I remain faithfully yours,

M. J. SPALDING,
Archbishop of Baltimore.

The late Rt. Rev. Martin-J. Spalding, Archbishop of Baltimore, Maryland, is of the opinion [see letters from him on the foregoing pages] that the ancestors of this family came out to Maryland, either with Lord Baltimore or very soon afterwards.

The settlement of Maryland had its origin in the exertions of Sir George Calvert, a catholic, afterward called Lord Baltimore. He had been a secretary of state under King James I, and was made a lord on account of his services to the crown — one of which services, it is said, consisted in bringing about a marriage between the king's son and a Spanish princess.

Lord Baltimore visited Virginia in person in 1628-29. In 1629 Calvert obtained a charter for domains beyond the Potomac. The nature of the document leaves no room to doubt that it was penned by the first Lord Baltimore himself, although it was finally issued for the benefit of his son.

In 1632 the country (the ocean, the 40th parallel of latitude, the meridian of the western fountain of the Potomac, the river itself from its source to its mouth, and a line drawn east from Watkins Point to the Atlantic) was given to Lord Baltimore, his heirs and assigns.

Sir George Calvert deserves to be ranked among the most wise and benevolent lawgivers of all ages. He was the first in the history of the Christian world to seek for religious security and peace to advance the career of civilization. Before the patent could be finally adjusted and pass the great seal Sir George Calvert died, and his son succeeded to his honor and fortunes. At a vast expense he planted a colony in 1632. Lord Baltimore who for some unknown reason abandoned his purpose of conducting the emigrants in person, appointed his brother to act as lieutenant; and on Friday, Nov. 22, 1633, Leonard Calvert and about two hundred emigrants, most of them Roman Catholic gentlemen, with their servants, arrived at the mouth of the Potomac River, and leaving the vessel, ascended in a pinnace as far as Piscataway, an Indian village, nearly opposite Mount Vernon.

The sachem of Piscataway gave Calvert full liberty to settle there if he chose; but it was not deemed on the whole safe, and in February, 1634, they arrived at Point Comfort, Va. In March, leaving Point Comfort, Calvert sailed into the Potomac and with the pinnace ascended the stream. A cross was planted on an island and the country claimed for Christ and England. The settlement was at an Indian town, Yoacomoco, and called St. Mary's. The province was named Maryland, by King Charles I, in the patent, in honor of his queen, Henrietta Maria, daughter of the king of France. A part of the province appears to have been included in the grant made some time afterward to William Penn, and to have given rise to much contention between the successors of Penn and Baltimore.

To gain the good-will of the Indians, Calvert made them presents of clothes, axes, hoes and knives. Their friendship was easily secured; and their women, in return for the kindnesses of the English, taught them how to make corn-bread. This, perhaps, was the first knowledge which the settlers had of "hoe-cake," or "johnny-cake."

The colony of Maryland met with few of the troubles which had been experienced by its sister colonies. The settlers arrived in time to cultivate the soil for that year, and the seasons for several of the succeeding years were all favorable. They had the Virginians, moreover, for near neighbors, who furnished them with cattle and many other necessaries, and also protected them from the Indians. In addition to all this, they enjoyed good health.

In February, 1635, in less than one year from the date of the settlement, the freemen of the colony assembled to make the necessary laws. The charter which had been granted them was exceedingly liberal. They were allowed the full power of legislation, without the reserved privilege, on the part of the crown, to revoke or alter their acts. The government underwent some changes in 1639; and, in 1650, they had an upper and lower house in the legislature, like their neighbors.

Ten or twelve years of peace having passed away, a rebellion broke out in Maryland, headed by one Claiborne. Having formed a little colony before the arrival of Calvert, he refused to submit to his authority. Convicted, at length, of murder and other crimes, he fled from the province, but returned with a large mob and broke up the government. Order, however, was in a little time restored, and things again went on prosperously.

When every other country in the world had persecuting laws, the Catholics of Maryland raised the standard of civil and religious liberty, where their co-religionists, who were oppressed in England and Ireland, were sure to find a peaceful asylum, and where religious freedom obtained a home at the humble village which bore the name of St. Mary's.

The Maryland family settled originally in St. Mary's County, Md., from which it branched off into Charles and the neighboring counties, and afterward spread into Pennsylvania and Virginia. They are very prolific, and their number is now very great throughout the West. In religious belief they are principally Catholics.

CHARLES W. SPALDING, ESQ.:

MY DEAR SIR: At the request of my father, Sam Spalding, of Lebanon, Ky., I send you herewith for the "Spalding Memorial," an account, a very brief one, of our immediate family, also of my father's brothers and sisters. They are all dead—died in various parts of the country, and I have been unable to obtain the dates of their marriages and deaths. Benedict Spalding and Alethair Abell were the progenitors of our branch of the family in Kentucky. Beyond them we know very few facts, and only general ones, about our Spalding ancestors. A cousin of mine, Ben-Dock Spalding, of Lebanon, is making for me a genealogical tree of Benedict and Alethair and their descendants. I examined it last December when home on a visit and found it very complete, though not quite finished. I have been waiting for this document, and that is the reason of my delay in writing to you. It has not yet arrived, so I have concluded to wait no longer. You should have this document. He may have sent it to you direct. If such is not the case, let me know and I will make another effort to hurry him up.

I also send you a short account of Bennett Spalding, a brother of Aaron, which my father forgot to send when he last wrote you.

Yours very truly,
S. B. SPALDING.

14605. BENEDICT[4], b. in St. Mary's Co., Md., where the family was fully established before 1650; he d. Aug. 1, 1815, in Marion Co., Ky.; m. Alethair Abell, daughter of Samuel Abell and Ellen O'Brian, said to have been a woman of gentle character and personal beauty; res. Marion Co., Ky.

He brought out a colony of Catholics from St. Mary's Co., Md., in 1790, and settled in Central Kentucky, (the State being then a part of Virginia,) in the valley of a small river called the Rolling Fork. The house he there built is still standing, is in a good state of preservation, and is occupied by a distant relative of the family.

He took his family of twelve children with him—six sons and six daughters. The names of five of the daughters are not now known.

Mrs. Ralph-L. Spalding, Lebanon, Ky., says that Benedict Spalding's father's brother Thomas was born in Maryland, and died about 1808, aged 120.

14606. Richard [14613], b. April 16, 1777.
14607. Elizabeth, b. 1780, in St. Mary's Co., Md.; m. Edward Spalding, in Marion Co., Ky. He was b. in St. Mary's Co., Md.
14608. Thomas [14624].
14609. Benedict [14628].
14610. Joseph [14629], b. May 7, 1786.
14611. Lewis-I. [14636].
14612. William [14639].

14613. RICHARD[2] [14606], (Benedict[1]), b. April 16, 1777, in St. Mary's Co., Md.; he d. about 1850, near Lebanon, Marion Co., Ky.; 1st, m. Henrietta Hamilton, in 1803, daughter of Leonard Hamilton (who emigrated with Benedict Spalding in 1790 to Kentucky) and Anna Thompson; she was said to be a beautiful, amiable and attractive woman; res. near Lebanon, Marion Co., Ky.

He was married three times, and had twenty-one children in all. He left fourteen living children. He was a very rich man, and left ten thousand dollars to each of his children.

Richard Spalding was a remarkable man, full of energy, strong sense, and excellent judgment. His charity was almost unbounded.

14614. Leonard-Augustine [14641], b. Aug. 24, 1806.
14615. Richard-M. [14647], b. June 7, 1808.
14616. Martin-John, b. May 23, 1810; d. 1872; archbishop of Baltimore. A full biography of Martin-John is given on the next and following pages.
14617. Benedict-J.; he was a priest; d. unmarried, in Louisville, Ky.; he was burned to death by the explosion of a coal-oil lamp. He studied at St. Mary's College and entered the Diocesan Seminary at Bardstown, Ky. In 1832 he went to the College of the Propaganda at Rome, where he was graduated five years later and then entered the Priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church. On his return to the United States in 1837 he taught for a time in the Theological Seminary of St. Thomas, and was afterward made agent of St. Joseph's College. In 1840, with the Rev. John Hutchins, he established a Seminary for boys in Breckinridge Co., which they carried on for two years. Mr. Spalding returned to Bardstown in 1842 to accept the vice-presidency of St. Joseph's College and continued in that place until 1844, when he was made pastor of the Church of St. Joseph in Bardstown. In 1847 he was called to the charge of the Cathedral in Louisville, and was appointed vicar-general of the diocese. These offices he held until his death, with two exceptions, when during the vacancy of the See he was invested by his superiors with the administration of the bishopric. He received no salary beyond his food and clothing, but gave largely of his own fortune to those that were in need. Father Spalding was greatly beloved by both Catholics add Protestants for his blameless life, his liberality and his self-sacrificing disposition.

14618. Clement-C.; he was a successful lawyer in New Orleans, La.; he later became a priest, and was a very able preacher; died unmarried.
14619. William-Thomas [14657], b. Oct. 18, 1818.
14620. Joseph [14670].
14621. Henry [14671].
14622. Thomas [14675], b. 1835.
14623. Perpetua.

Rev. Martin-J. Spalding, the seventh Roman Catholic Archbishop of the diocese of Baltimore, was born at Rolling Fork, Ky., May 23, 1810, the son of Henrietta Hamilton and Richard Spalding, his ancestors being of the band of Catholic pilgrims who founded the Maryland colony in 1634. The home of the family in England was Lincolnshire, where at an early date there was established the great Abbey of Spalding, under the protection of which it is probable that the town of Spalding flourished. Martin's great grandmother, Ellen O'Brian, was of Celtic origin. He was baptised by the celebrated apostle Father Neviucke, whose biography he subsequently wrote, and attended the school of a Mr. Merriwether in a backwoods log-cabin near Rolling Fork. In 1821, when St. Mary's College near Lebanon was opened, he and his two elder brothers were among its first pupils. The founder, Rev. Wm. Byrne, held the young student in high esteem, and when he was but fourteen years of age appointed him professor of mathematics in the institution, a position which notwithstanding his youth he filled with ability and distinction. He was graduated with honor from St. Mary's in 1826, and having decided to join the Priesthood, entered the theological seminary in Bardstown, where he was associated with many men, who afterward attained prominence in the American Catholic Church. His talents were so notable that after four years, Bishop Flaget resolved to send him to Rome to complete his theological studies in the Urban College. From this institution he received the degree of D. D., after defending for seven hours 256 propositions selected from universal theology, church history, and Canonical Law against some of the ablest theologians in the church, being the first American student in Rome to be thus honored. He was ordained a priest Aug. 13, 1834, and preached his first sermon in America in the cathedral of Philadelphia. As soon as he returned to Kentucky, Dr. Spalding was appointed pastor of the cathedral at Bardstown, a member of the Board of Trustees of St. Joseph's College, and professor of philosophy in the Seminary. Soon after, the St. Joseph's College "Minerva," was established, the first Catholic periodical issued in Kentucky, although more literary than religious in its character. Dr. Spalding was its leading contributor, making his first appearance as an essayist and reviewer in its columns. After a year's career the "Minerva" was abandoned, and through Dr. Spalding's instrumentality the Catholic Advocate, a weekly publication, was started, of which he became the chief editor. Its first number appeared in 1835, and its able articles speedily attracted the attention of the Roman Catholics throughout America. In 1835 Dr. Spalding reluctantly accepted the Presidency of St. Joseph's College, and two years later he was appointed pastor of St. Peter's, in Lexington, Ky., which was at that time the second city in population in that State. In 1841 the Episcopal See was removed to Louisville, when, in order to conciliate the naturally aggrieved people of Bardstown, Dr. Spalding was removed from Lexington and made pastor of the old Cathedral. In 1844 he was called to Louisville to assume the duties of vicar-general of the diocese. The Cathedral in Louisville was in those days a point of attraction to Protestants and Catholics alike, owing to the excellence of the choir and the able orators who filled the pulpit of whom Dr. Spalding was chief. Dr. Spalding was also active as a lecturer and writer and delivered courses of lectures in the Cathedral at Louisville on general and special theology and on Catholic worship, during the winters of 1844 to 1848, which attracted much attention; and he also lectured again and again in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New Orleans, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and other cities in the United States and Canada. Throughout his career as a public lecturer he maintained his popularity. He was if possible even more active as a preacher. In 1848 he was appointed Bishop of Lengone in partibus infidelium and coadjutor of the Bishop of Louisville cum jure successionis, and was consecrated Sept. 10 of that year, by Bishop Flaget, assisted by the Bishops of Philadelphia and St. Louis. Upon the death of Bishop Flaget in 1850, Bishop Spalding assumed entire charge of the diocese of the State of Kentucky. Shortly after he assumed control he invited the Jesuits to re-enter the diocese, which they did and conducted a free school for boys in Louisville. The Trappist monks settled in Kentucky at Gethsemane during the early days of his Episcopate.

He erected an orphan asylum for boys at St. Thomas which was opened in 1850, and another for boys and girls of German parentage, in Louisville, called St. Joseph's orphan asylum, and Aug. 15, 1849, laid the corner stone of a new Cathedral which was built at a cost of $75,000 and consecrated Oct. 3; 1852. He placed the matter of a division of the diocese before Archbishop Kenrich and at the recommendation of the fathers of the first plenary council at Baltimore Pope Pius IX created a new diocese in Kentucky which embraced all that part of the state situated east of the Kentucky River. The see was placed at Covington. In 1852–3 he went abroad to obtain assistance and induce new orders to enter the Diocese. The Xaverian brothers were among the first to avail themselves of the inducements offered. Bishop Spalding founded the American College at Louvain in 1857, the success of which even during his lifetime fully realized his anticipations.

He became engaged in a controversy with Geo. D. Prentice, during the "know-nothing" movement, and was active in quelling the riots which occurred in Louisville in 1835, and which but for his influence and interference would have assumed much greater magnitude. It was during the anti-Catholic agitation of this period that he published his "Miscellanea." In the first, second and third provincial councils convened at Cincinnati he held the position of promoter of the Council. During his administration of the Diocese of Louisville five new churches including the Cathedral were built in the city of Louisville alone, and the number of churches in the diocese were doubled; parochial schools were organized, the diocese was well equipped with colleges and academies for higher education, conferences of St. Vincent de Paul were established, and the see was not only entirely freed from debt but became possessed of property which served as a sinking fund and which was used in erecting new churches and aiding in works of charity. The number of religious women in the diocese who were members of religious communities reached six hundred. In 1866, upon the death of Archbishop Kenrich, Bishop Spalding was called to fill the see of Baltimore and was installed on July 31st of that year.

One of the first events of importance after he had assumed his new position was the establishment of a convent of the Good Shepherd in Baltimore by sisters brought from the motherhouse in Louisville. The Cathedral was finished and decorated and the Archiepiscopal residence enlarged. In 1864–5 the diocese of Charleston, which comprised the two Carolinas, was placed under Archbishop Spalding's charge during the absence of Bishop

Lynch in Europe, the latter being unable to return on account of the blockade of the Southern ports. Archbishop Spalding's sympathies were strongly enlisted with the suffering people of the South and he made an appeal in their behalf which was generously responded to by the Catholics of Baltimore. He established a protectory and Industrial School for boys which was placed in charge of the Xaverian brothers whom he brought from Belgium for the purpose. He was successful in obtaining important contribution for the America College in Rome, planned all the work accomplished by the second plenary council held at Baltimore in 1866, and presided over that assembly—the largest of the kind which had been held since the general council of Trent. In 1867 he went abroad by invitation of the pope, who had invited the Catholic bishops to be present at the centenary celebration of martyrdom of St. Peter. He gave Father I. T. Hecker efficient aid in the establishment of the Catholic Publication Society, writing himself the first tract of the series and exhorting all the pastors in his diocese to assist the parent society by disseminating its publications. Oct. 20, 1869, he sailed for Europe to take part in the acumenical council of the Vatican. He did not at first favor the definition of the pope's infallibility, believing that the time taken was inopportune, but he was subsequently convinced of its advisability. Upon his return to America he was welcomed by a demonstration that was a rare testimonial to his popularity and the reverence in which he was held by his people. In Baltimore more than 50,000 assembled to greet him. He subsequently gave lectures for the benefit of local charities—made a visitation of his diocese—commenced the building of the church of St. Pius, and erected handsome Parochial schools near the Cathedral, etc. He took a foremost rank as a reviewer, was for a time editor of the United State Catholic Magazine, and made many valuable contributions to Catholic literature. He was a man of beautiful manners, and with all his erudition ever maintained a child-like simplicity of mind and manners. His biography has been written by the Right Rev. J. L. Spalding. He died, at Baltimore, Feb. 7, 1872. His principal works are "D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation, reviewed," "Lectures on the General Evidences of Christianity," "Life, Times and Character of the Rt. Rev. B. J. Flaget," "History of the Protestant Reformation in Germany, Switzerland, and in England, Ireland, Scotland, The Netherlands, France and Northern Europe;" he also wrote many reviews, lectures and essays on historical, theological and miscellaneous subjects.

THE RT. REV. JOHN-LANCASTER SPALDING [14648], Roman Catholic Bishop, was educated in the United States and Europe, ordained in 1823 and attached to the Cathedral in Louisville as assistant.

In 1869 he organized a congregation of colored people, and built for their use the Church of St. Augustine, of which he was appointed pastor. He was soon after made chancellor of the Diocese and secretary to the bishop. He left Louisville in 1873 and went to New York, where he did missionary work in the parish of St. Michael's, becoming noted as an eloquent preacher and lecturer. When the diocese of Peoria was created in 1877 his appointment was recommended to the pope, and he was accordingly consecrated bishop of the new see on May 1st, by Cardinal M'Closky in the Cathedral of New York. His administration has been marked by energy and he has had signal success in developing the resources of his diocese. In 1877 it contained 75 churches, 51 priests, and about 45,000 Catholics. In 1887 there were 163 churches, 115 priests, 12 clerical students, 32 religious institutions, 8 academies, 41 parochial schools, an orphan asylum, and five hospitals.

Bishop Spalding has given much attention to the question of emigration and his efforts have attracted numerous emigrants to the West.

He has also labored successfully to establish a Roman Catholic University in the United States and his plans for carrying out this enterprise were adopted by the council of Baltimore in 1884. He is a contributor to Roman Catholic Periodicals and Reviews and the author of a "Life of Archbishop Spalding," "Essays and Reviews," "Religious Mission of the Irish People," and lectures and discourses.

The following article appeared in the Chicago Sunday Herald, on December 23, 1894.

One of the most unique and at the same time one of the most interesting and brilliant members of the Roman Catholic episcopacy in America is John Lancaster Spalding, bishop of Peoria. It is not the first time in the history of the Catholic church that the name of Spalding has been identified with its progress. Both in Europe and America the name for many generations has occupied a high place in Roman Catholic annals, and although the distinguished archbishop of that name, who for many years so ably acquitted himself as Archbishop of Baltimore, was a personage of far more than ordinary brilliancy, his peer can easily be found in the person of the head of the Peoria diocese, who has carried himself forward in every field of duty so far assigned to him and won such signal honors as a writer within as well as beyond religious confines. He is still a young man with a ruggedness of health and a vigor of intellect which few possess at his age, and although for thirty years he has almost unremittingly applied himself most assiduously to literary work, besides fulfilling the duties which ordinarily belong to the office of priest and bishop, he is still by no means tired of his labors and bids fair to be an active man for another quarter of a century.

The Spalding family was one of the few which clung to the Roman Catholic faith in England in the reigns of Henry and Elizabeth. The first of the family to come to America came over with Lord Baltimore, so that Bishop Spalding can lay pretty good claim to the title of American. He was born in Lebanon, Ky., June 2, 1840. His first education was received at St. Mary, Ky. He also spent some time at Emmetsburg, and subsequently studied for five years at Mount St. Mary's, Cincinnati, which was then under the control of the celebrated Bishop Rosecrans. He studied theology in Louvain, from which he took the title of D. D., and where he was ordained in 1863. After his ordination he took a special course of study in the Belgian College at Rome and returned to Louisville in 1865, for which diocese he was ordained, and as already he had attained quite a reputation as a scholar of much promise he was assigned to the cathedral and, in addition to his missionary duties, also acted as secretary to Bishop Lavialle.

He remained at the cathedral in this dual capacity until 1869, when, at his own request, he was permitted to found a church for colored people. A child of the south, with all the intense generosity and affection for his home and his people which southerners are known to possess, the young priest was firmly possessed of the idea that the colored people ought to be extended every fair chance of building themselves up, and to that end Father Spalding considered one of the most effective influences would be a church of their own. Within three years he had effected his purpose so well that not only a church was built and fully equipped, but also a pastoral residence, and before he left Louisville in 1872 he had the eminent satisfaction of seeing his first work successfully crowned by an entire freedom from debt of every description. For about a year prior to this time he also acted as chancellor of the diocese of Louisville.

The death of his uncle, the Archbishop of Baltimore, occurred about this time, and the celebrated Father Isaac Hecker, to whom was left all of Archbishop Spalding's papers, was very anxious that the deeds of this good man and the great work of his life should be given to the public in book-form, and, with this object in view, Father Hecker, after a great deal of persuasion, finally prevailed on the youthful nephew to write the life of his distinguished uncle. Father Spalding moved from Louisville to New York, where he took up his residence with the Paulists. Notwithstanding his youth and inexperience for such a task, besides having the additional impediments of having a relative as a subject, the result of his work was such a pronounced success that the celebrated and renowned Brownson, in his review, stated that "the book is almost the only biography worthy of the name to be found in American Catholic literature." He adds that he "read it with special admiration for its style, which is manly, dignified and unaffected; clear, forcible, chaste, simple and natural, and that it was a long time since he had read so well-written a book by any American author, and that it was highly creditable to American literature." He paid the youthful writer the additional compliment of saying that he had a breadth of view, a depth of reflection and a knowledge of the moral and spiritual wants of moral society that promised to the country an author of the first order, and to the church a distinguished servant, whose memory, if God spared him life and health to continue as he had begun, would long be cherished.

Father Spalding about this time became detached from the Louisville diocese and was accepted into the archdiocese of New York. He was assigned as assistant priest at St. Michael's Church, the pastor at that time being Father Arthur Donnelly. It was while assistant at St. Michael's that his fame as a preacher was established. It was Father Spalding's custom to preach the Sunday evening sermon, and before he had done so very often his reputation as a concise and logical speaker, possessed of a fund of fluency, became so well known that it was impossible almost to find standing room at his lectures. Not only the Catholic laity of St. Michael's parish, but the prominent Catholics all over New York, both lay and clerical, as well as many hundreds of people who shared beliefs other than Catholic, became regular attendants at his sermons and lectures. He was offered a parish in the New York archdiocese, which, however, he refused to accept, preferring to remain with his old friend, Father Donnelly, where the association and duties were fully to his liking. However, the reward of merit was destined to ascend the scale, and on May 1, 1877, he was remarkably surprised by being made the recipient of the signal honor of an episcopate. It is a matter of very infrequent occurrence in the Catholic church for an assistant priest to be called to the miter.

The diocese of Peoria at that time was much different from what it is now. There were fifty-one churches scattered over the entire territory, three of which were in the little town of Peoria itself. There was no religious institution. To-day the diocese has close to 150,000 Catholics, 190 churches, seven of which are in Peoria proper, fifty schools and academies, seven hospitals, two orphan asylums, a home for aged people, a college, and about 150 priests. The diocese is considered to be one of the best organized in America, and the intense and devoted loyalty and affection which all of the subordinates bear toward the head is an indication better than anything else could possibly be that, while church discipline is strictly maintained, the law is administered with such an even and kindly hand that no one questions the justice of his acts, and all admire the honesty and modesty of the episcopal incumbent.

In the town of Peoria itself ample evidence can be secured of the benignity, suavity and humanity of Bishop Spalding. He is a great believer in the better phases of human nature. While strictly a churchman of zeal and temperance himself, he measures others with a kindly scale. So absolutely fair and honest is his course of life recognized that among the people of Peoria generally there is nothing heard of him but what is favorable in every respect. Bishop Spalding has ever been ready to do whatever in him lay as a citizen to advance the interests of his town, and in this respect has won hosts of friends. Even those who differ widely from him on matters of religion would not think of criticising his honesty of purpose and motives, and on every side his invariable characteristics of charity and modesty are subjects of favorable comment and tribute. As in New York so also in Peoria, whenever the bishop is announced to give a sermon or lecture there is a large attendance, among which can be found a great many non-Catholics. C.-M. Anthony, a prominent business man and banker of Peoria, and at the same time not a Catholic, in speaking of Bishop Spalding said that no one questioned the motives of the bishop, and everyone regarded him as a distinguished and worthy citizen.

The Peoria cathedral is in every respect a very neat and appropriate structure. It is located on Madison avenue at the corner of Green street. On each side of the principal entrance rises a tall and massive tower surmounted by a plain cross. The church is lighted by six windows on either side, and in addition has a large circular window over the entrance, while at the other and opposite end over the main altar, is a beautiful and exceptionally well executed work in fine heavy double Venetian glass, representing the Immaculate Conception. This window is probably one of the finest representations of its kind in this country, and adds much to the appearance of the edifice in every particular. Directly over the tabernacle, and as a portion of the altar work proper, is a painting of the Crucifixion. The pew work is a specimen of very chaste workmanship and the pulpit is equally as well and handsomely constructed. At the gospel side of the main altar is a beautiful oil painting of "Christ as Judge." The stations of the cross are also neat specimens of handiwork. The church also possesses a very fine organ.

The bishop's residence is a neat but simple structure and stands on Madison avenue close to the cathedral. There is a neat reception parlor to the right of the entrance and on the left is a small writing or clerical room. Within the latter there is a large life-size painting of the bishop's uncle, the former archbishop of Baltimore, and there is also a painting of the bishop's brother, the former pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral in Peoria, who died in 1868. But naturally the most cherished room in the house is the library, within which the bishop spends so much of his time and wherein he has written nearly all his works. As is befitting, its principal furniture is the bookcase. Therein is probably stored a gathering of as choice and valuable writings as may be found in this country.

Besides "The Life of Archbishop Spalding," Bishop Spalding has also written "Essays and Reviews," "Lectures and Discourses," "The Religious Mission of the Irish People," "Education and Higher Life." These have been all in prose. The bishop, however, has applied himself to verse, and issued two publications under the name of Henry Hamilton. It may be stated that Hamilton was the name of one of his ancestors. The titles of his two books of verse are "America and Other Poems," and "The Poet's Praise." All of these publications have had a large run, particularly the "Education and Higher Life," which has been widely read and most favorably commented on. One of his critics has said that his thoughts are copious, clear and deep as the waters of a limpid spring, and while heart and brain are bathed in their crystalline flow there is ever a quenchless longing and a sigh of the soul for more. The "Things of the Mind" is the latest from Bishop Spalding's pen. It has been published only a very short time and shows the author to be possessed of a vivid and almost forcible logic, and the style is peculiarly charming and attractive. His introduction or preface is as follows: "A genuine interest in problems of education helps to keep us young, for it carries us back to our own springtime and to the company of children; it is also evidence that we ourselves have not ceased to grow and are therefore not yet old."

Speaking of education he says: "The thought of the books I have not read and which, like unknown friends, are waiting for me, keeps me young. The ideal of peace or repose, which Wordsworth calls the central feeling of happiness, is that of the weak or weary. Strong and eager men prefer almost any kind of existence to the tranquil flow of uneventful days. He who writes need not, but he who publishes must think of a reader, and his hope is that some of the pleasure and strength his thoughts have given to himself will be communicated to others, for if to him they have not been a source of light and joy, in printing them he is but a coiner and passer of counterfeit money. As the miser lives ever in thought with his gold, the lover with his beloved, so the student lives always with the things of the mind, with what is true and fair and good. We know what a man is when we know, not what his opinions and beliefs are, but what he does or has done. Our highest aspirations reveal our deepest needs; better be one whom men hate than one whose ideal is good digestion, good clothes and general comfortableness. The true education strives to draw forth and strengthen the sense for truth and justice and to develop a taste for the purer and nobler pleasures of life; to aim to make men good and reasonable, not to make them smart and eager for possession and indulgence. You are not I, your good is not mine; go forward then and prosper; your gain can never be my loss. A man is what he is and who he is, not by virtue of wealth or office but by the quality of his thought and life."

Writing of patriotism further on, Spalding says: "Fertile fields may be made waste, cities desolate, rivers dry, the ruins of the homes of our youth may be trodden by the hoofs of beasts, friends may turn from us and civil strife rend the land, but the love of country still burns with its steady, inextinguishable glow within our hearts. We love the fatherland, not alone chiefly for the food it gives us, the property it protects, the security it provides; we love it above all for the richer, freer, nobler human life which it makes possible; not so much for its high mountains, its wide-spreading plains, its broad rivers, its thundering cataracts, its pleasant and bracing air, as for the noble freedom, the generous love, the great thoughts which enter into and determine the national spirit and character. Our country is the symbol of all that is most priceless on earth—liberty, truth, devotion, loyalty. Its name is interwined with the memory, hopes, love and aspirations of all our life. It is as dear to us as that of our mother, as full of sweet suggestiveness as that of home, as near to our hearts as the names of our friends we love most. At its invocation our whole nature changes; if timid, we become brave; if hard, sympathetic; if selfish, generous. Return from wealth and pleasant company and the most cherished pursuits, if that sacred name ring out in the bugle call, throwing all things away, we rush forward to defy danger and death that we may save our country's honor and independence. Whatever else may change or wholly pass away, patriotism is as imperishable as religion, as immortal as love, for to all well-born hearts the native land is forever dear, whether strong and free or helpless and in chains. Let us hold and teach that better than millions of money or cattle, is a brave heart, a hopeful temper and enlightened mind, a cheerful and appreciative soul, content and quiet, virtue and ability to take delight in familiar things and in the common blessedness which God sends to all."

Aside from Bishop Spalding's greatness as an executive and his unquestioned ability and genius as a writer, there is another phase of his character which it is impossible to leave untouched and do him justice. These are his personal magnetism and greatness of heart, qualities which are apparent to almost anyone who comes in contact with him, but in particular shine out and impress themselves indelibly on those who have had the privilege of a cordial acquaintance. As he has himself so appropriately quoted in his preface to the biography of his uncle:

> The drying up of a single tear has more
> Of honest fame than shedding seas of gore.

He is intensely loyal to his friends. He is an admirer of all that is great and noble in every character, but at the same time he is so manifestly the believer in what is real charity, that with those who differ from or who may have sought to injure him, he hesitates to speak even where speech would justify his course, preferring to throw the mantle of charity and silence over the malevolence and ill-principle of such people and leave to the unerring developments of time the vindication of truth and honor. The more one is privileged to know Bishop Spalding, the greater the admiration for the character grows. His writings are but indices of himself, reflecting the honesty and purity of motive which have characterized all his life and have made for him a name not only throughout America, but wherever the English language is read. In this respect the title of bishop, while, of course, it lends dignity, has not added to Spalding's greatness. It has been said that on a certain occasion in Europe a very prominent archbishop, speaking with an American, on being asked who he considered was the greatest member of the Roman Catholic church in the United States, unhesitatingly and quickly replied: "Why, Spalding, of course." Taken from almost any standpoint Bishop Spalding is well worthy of commendation and praise. His life has been most positively the practical exemplification at all times of the precepts of religious love and charity which he has so well spoken and written of. With his priests he is an adviser, not a dictator. To his people he is at all times willing to extend the benefit of his counsel. Believing in education and liberty himself, he extends the same to others, acting on the principle that the drift of humanizing influence as a rule tends to the betterment of conditions generally. Modest and unassuming as he is in addition to the qualities already outlined, it is but natural to expect that a quarter of a century of such a life ought easily to beget the love and respect which is certainly entertained toward him by the priests and people of his diocese, as well as by thousands of admirers throughout the United States.

FAMILY OF JOHN-AARON SPALDING.

14725. JOHN-AARON[1], b. 1752, in Maryland; d. March, 1843; he married twice; 1st, m. Nellie Mattingly; 2d, m. —— Moore.

Rev. S. B. Spalding [14684], of West Chester, Pa., writes as follows: "John-Aaron Spalding was born about 1752. Emigrated from Maryland to Kentucky about 1785, and died there in 1843. He had one brother, Bennett, who was I think older than Aaron. Bennett was probably born in Maryland, but moved to Marion Co., Ky., where I knew him. Bennett was married and had six children, four sons and two daughters. Their names were Edward, Louis-I., Robert and George. His daughters names were Nancy and Dolly or Dorothea. Robert Spalding (one of Bennett's sons) did live (he may now be dead) on Salt River near Monroe, Ralls Co., Missouri. Aaron Spalding had a son, Ben (now dead), who lived in the same county. Aaron may have had other brothers, but I only knew Bennett. I know nothing of Aaron's father and mother."

It is said that John-Aaron Spalding emigrated from Maryland to Kentucky about 1785. He served through the whole of the war of the Revolution. It was claimed by his descendants that he was one of three men who effected the Capture of Major Andre, for which he was pensioned for life. Diligent investigation, however, disproves this claim, as it was found that John Paulding (and not Spalding) was one of the three referred to.

The following is an official statement from the Bureau of Pensions: "Aaron Spalding, served from January, 1776, to July 6, 1783, as a private soldier in Capt. John-Allen Thomas' Company, Col. Smallwood's Regiment, Maryland Militia. He was engaged in the Battles of Long Island, White Plains, Monmouth, Brandywine, Germantown, Gates' Defeat, Camden, Guilford C. H., Eutaw Springs, and Cowpens. Aug. 10, 1819, he applied for a pension, with residence given as Washington Co., Ky., and age of 67 years." The year of his birth would therefore be 1752. After the war he lived near New Market, Washington Co., Ky., now known as Marion Co., where he died. He had three sons and three daughters by his first wife and one son and one daughter by his second wife. They were all Catholics.

With regard to Aaron Spalding's claim that he was one of the three who captured Major Andre, the story is a familiar one to all of his descendants. But the weight of evidence is against his claim. In the "Army and Navy Register of the Officers of the Revolutionary War," compiled from records in the departments at Washington, it is stated that John Paulding, the captor of Major Andre, was from New York State and died in 1818. It is further stated that Congress voted medals to John Paulding and his two comrades, two hundred dollars yearly during their lives, and had monuments erected over their graves after death. Had Aaron received two hundred dollars a year from the government, his relatives would certainly have known of it. Besides, no such monument as above described marks the last resting place of Aaron Spalding, for the spot is well-known.

REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS OF THE NAME OF SPALDING ON THE ROLLS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

There are about three hundred references to soldiers bearing the name of Spalding on the War Rolls of the State of Massachusetts, and each separate reference covers a separate record of service. The exact number of Spaldings who served, cannot, therefore, be accurately estimated, as the name of the same person appears in each separate service performed by him. It was thought best to give them exactly as they appear on the War Rolls, and future investigation may determine the identity of each Spalding to his descendants.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

NAMES OF SPALDINGS WHO SERVED IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

FROM THE WAR ROLLS OF THE STATE.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE,
OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE.
Concord, N. H., April 23, 1896.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ.

DEAR SIR: I have carefully examined the war rolls. I find that Daniel Spalding [1048] served in Capt. John Ladd's Co., in Major Tash's detachment in 1757. Our French and Indian war rolls are not complete; I do not find other service credited to any one Spalding at this period.

In the Revolutionary rolls the name frequently appears. In another enclosure I send you the result of a search of the rolls and several copies of miscellaneous papers.

Very Respectfully,
EZRA S. STEARNS.

ABEL, Lieutenant, in Col. Chase's Regiment, raised to reinforce a garrison at Ticonderoga; was in service from June 27 to July 4, 1777; res. is given as Cornish; he was a Lieutenant in Col. Chase's regiment in the autumn of 1777; joined the Continental Army under General Gates near Saratoga.

ABEL, Private, in Col. Chase's Regiment, raised to reinforce a garrison at Ticonderoga; was in service from June 27 to July 4, 1777.

ANDREW, in Col. Chase's regiment, called up on the Alarm in May 1777; was in service one month and seven days.

AZEL, in Capt. Osgood's Company, Col. Bedel's Regiment, in 1776; enlisted March 8; was a Sergeant in Capt. Cushman's Company one year, commencing April 8, 1778.

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY,
UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ., Albany, N. Y., April 12, 1894.
518 MONADNOCK BLOCK,
Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR: Your letter to the Secretary of State requesting the names of Spaldings in the Revolutionary and Colonial war was referred to me for answer. I cannot give them in the Colonial wars, the lists are too numerous—the muster rolls I mean, but those of the Revolutionary war from the State of New York are herewith sent you. Yours very truly,

GEORGE R. HOWELL,
Archivist.

REUBEN, Sergeant, in Company I, Capt. Jesse Safford, in what is now Vermont.

NEHEMIAH, Sergeant, with Col. Marinus Willett, Company of Capt. Aaron Hole.

ELIJAH, Sergeant, with Col. Peter Yates and Capt. Thos. Brown, in the 14th Albany Co. Regt.

ELIJAH, Private, in the 14th Albany Co. Regiment, Capt. James Hadlock's Company.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

OFFICE OF ADJUTANT GENERAL,
Trenton, N. J., April 18, 1896.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

DEAR SIR: Yours of April 16th addressed to the Secretary of State has been referred to me for reply. I have carefully examined the rolls of the Continental Line, State Troops, and Militia of New Jersey in the Revolutionary War, and I regret to say that I do not find the name of Spalding or Spaulding thereon. You will readily understand that although the collection of Revolutionary records in this office is large, it is far from complete and can never be made so. The absence of any name therefrom is by no means conclusive evidence that the bearer thereof did not serve in the Revolutionary Army.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM S. STRYKER, Adjutant General.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

AUDITOR'S DEPARTMENT,
Raleigh, April 18th, 1896.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Dear Sir: Your letter of the 16th instant addressed to the Secretary of State has been referred to me for reply. I have thoroughly searched the Records in this Department which are the only and most complete to be had, and find the name of Edward Spalding. He is put down as a Private and in active service. His name appears only once and then as having received as compensation £186 12s. 8d. This is the only name of Spalding to be found, and there are no Spauldings.

Very truly,
T. P. JERMAN, Jr.

EDWARD: his name appears on Record of the Revolutionary War on file in the Auditor's Department of the State of North Carolina: "Abstract of the Army Accounts of the North Carolina Line, settled by Commissioners at Halifax from September 1, 1784, to February 1, 1785; and at Warrentown in the year 1786—designating by whom the claims were receipted for respectively;" the name of Edward Spalding, a Private in the Revolutionary War; said Edward Spalding was in active service and received compensation therefor.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE,
Columbia, S. C., April 20, 1896.

C. W. SPALDING, ESQ.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 16th just turned over to me. I am very sorry to have to inform you that we have but very little information concerning the officers and soldiers of the Revolutionary War, as nearly all of our records were destroyed in the late war. The only thing connected with it is a report, compiled in 1884, by the Adj. Gen. L.-G. DeSoussure of such officers as he was able to collect names of; this is not perfect and is but partial. I do not find the name of Spalding among them. I do not know that the Adjutant General's office in Washington has any of the old Continental Vols. or not; very possibly it has, and I suggests that you apply to them. Regretting that I cannot aid you, I am

WICHITA, KAN., Nov. 14, 1886.

C. W. SPALDING, Esq., CHICAGO.

DEAR SIR:—I would call your attention to a fact, with which you may already be acquainted, namely, that the first two generations of Spaldings at Chelmsford rendered military services in expeditions against the Indians in Billerica companies; see Hazen's History of Billerica, in which he says that the Spaldings enrolled in some of that town's companies, muster rolls being given, were evidently from Chelmsford.

Very truly,

E. D. KIMBALL.

GEN. OLIVER LYMAN SPALDING.

OF ST. JOHNS, MICH.

Estimated by his prominence in the law and the extent and importance of his public services, Gen. Spalding [10563] is among the first citizens of Michigan at the present time. His father was Lyman Spalding, a New Hampshire farmer of English descent. His mother, Susan Marshall, was also of English extraction. The family came west and settled in Medina, Lenawee County, Michigan, where the parents resided until death. The same year in which they settled in Michigan, the son, O. L. Spalding, entered Oberlin College, from which he was graduated in 1855. For three years thereafter he was employed as teacher in different high schools and at the same time was pursuing the study of law, which had already been selected as the profession best suited to his taste. After the required examination he was admitted to practice at St. Johns, in 1858. From that time to the present his legal residence has been in St. Johns. Upon his admission to the bar, he formed a partnership with Mr. Ransom, which remained in force until 1862. The firm of Spalding & Cranston was organized in 1866, and continued until 1872. The firm of Spalding & Barker was formed in 1882 and dissolved in 1886. Spalding & Walbridge were in partnership from 1888 to 1890. The firm of which General Spalding is now the head has the name and style of Spalding, Norton & Weimer. General Spalding had just settled down to the practice of law, in 1858, when he was elected Regent of the University of Michigan. He had become well established in the profession and was beginning to reap the success for which the years of preparation had qualified him, when the War of the Rebellion opened. Moved by the impulse of patriotism and a high sense of duty, he responded to the call for volunteers and offered his services to the country. In July, 1862, he recruited a company, which was assigned to the twenty-third regiment of Michigan Volunteer Infantry, as Company A, and of which he was appointed captain. The regiment was mustered in September, 1862, and mustered out June 28th, 1865, at Salisbury, North Carolina. The intervening period was occupied with fighting and marching, which extended over a wide range of territory, and included some of the severest engagements of the war. Captain Spalding was with the regiment during the entire time, and received successive promotions and commissions as Major, Lieutenant-Colonel, Colonel, and Brevet Brigadier-General. He was frequently called upon to command a brigade. He participated in many engagements; was at the siege of Knoxville, at Resaca, Ga., at Lost Mountain, at Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta, Franklin, Nashville, and at Fort Anderson and the closing battles of the war in North Carolina. He was a brave soldier and a discreet commander, winning his brevet title of brigadier-general for gallant conduct and meritorious services in the field. When the war closed he returned to his home and his practice in St. Johns. The following year (1868) he was elected Secretary of State, and re-elected in 1868. In 1875 he was appointed, by President Grant, Special Agent of the Treasury, and held the position five years, resigning to accept an election to Congress in 1880. He was chosen to represent the sixth congressional district, and served with distinction on two important committees, namely, Military Affairs and Indian Affairs. In 1883 he was chairman of a commission appointed by the President to investigate alleged violations of the reciprocity treaty on the part of the Hawaiian Islands, and visited Honolulu with the commission in the discharge of his official duties. In January, 1885, he was again appointed Special Agent of the Treasury, but resigned in December of the same year. In July, 1890, he was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and held the position throughout the Harrison administration.

Gen. Spalding is a good lawyer and a strong advocate before a jury. In presenting his case for the consideration of a jury, his method is direct, forceful and practical. He is careful of his words, never wasting them in irrelevant speech or employing more than are necessary to convey his meaning with the utmost clearness and force. The jury comprehend his statements of fact, and are impressed by his skillful applications of the evidence to sustain his contention. He therefore has great power with a jury. In presenting an argument before an appellate court his style is both felicitous and logical. His conclusions are the inevitable sequence of his premises. If the latter are admitted, the former must be accepted as the law of the case. There is no bombast, or fury or undue vehemence in the manner of his argument. In 1869 he was elected Grand Master of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of Michigan. In 1872 he was Grand Commander of Knights Templar. In 1877 he was Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter of Michigan. In 1881 he was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge. For several years he has been chairman of Committee of Appeals of the Grand Lodge. Since 1866 he has been a member of the Episcopal Church.

[A. D. 1483.]

Confirmation to Robert Spaldyng of a grant for life by Patent 17 Oct. 1 Edward IV, [part 2, ms. 10 and 16] of the office of one of the King's Sergeants at arms.

They were flourishing in Suffolk in the reign of Henry VIII. The name appears constantly on the Subsidy Rolls of Suffolk, and from the sums paid they must have held good positions.

William Spaldinge, of Tymworthe, Co. Suffolk, "Yoman," made his will (2 Woodhall, Somerset House) 25 Jan. 1599, by which he bequeathed large legacies to his brother's family.

A messuage called "the Swanne" in Bury St. Edmunds is mentioned.

His wife Alice.

His brother William.

William, 2nd son of his brother William.

Thomas, 3rd son of his brother William.

John his brother, who had five children, viz.: Margerie, Bridget, Trifana, William, and Gilbert.

Margaret, Mary, and Anne, daughters of his brother William.

Anthonie Asshe, son-in-law of his brother William.

Henry Kente his kinsman.

Lands in Fornham St. Martin.

Proved at London by Alice the relict 2 Jan. 1600.

PARLIAMENTS OF ENGLAND.

2 EDWARD III [A. D. 1327-8].

By writ dated at Nottingham, 2 Dec. 1 Edward III, directed to the bailiffs, etc., of Spalding (amongst other places), the king orders that one or two of the most discreet wool merchants be elected to attend him at York, in the Octaves of Hilary (20 Jan. 1327-8,) to advise him "upon certain matters touching us and our kingdom and the convenience of the wool merchants of our kingdom."

Borough of Spalding.

William son of Richard de Spalding is elected. (Close Roll 2 Edward III, m. 32d.)

In 11 Edward III, William de Spaldyng, Thomas Thurger, and John de Spaldyng were elected for the town of Spalding to attend the Parliament held at Westminster 26 Sept. 1337.

LETTERS FROM ENGLAND.

LINDUM HOUSE, ALDERSHOT,
Dec. 17, 1888.

DEAR SIR:—I have your letter of the 3d inst, and will gladly aid you all I can in your commendable desire for knowledge of your early English ancestors. It will always be a pleasure to give any assistance in my power that may add to the bonds of union between the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers, who have founded such a splendid empire in the far west, with the old country from which they owe their origin. As a Lincolnshire man I always feel proud that our county gave so large a proportion of these worthy men who preferred independence and freedom of worship to the heavy disabilities they were under in this then unhappy country. I hope if I had lived in those days I should have had some of their fortitude.

With regard to the name of the Town of Spalding, it is of British origin and is not from a family, but I have little doubt the family took the name from the town.

It was customary in Saxon, Norman and Plantagenet times for the leading man of the place to be called of the place, as Sir Thomas de Moulton (and family) was of Moulton, close to Spalding; Ralph de Spalding from Spalding; Richard de Pinchbek from Pinchbeck, and so with many other villages in South Lincolnshire. In time the de was dropped. There was the leading family of Moulton, who held a premier position in the county until the last male, John, left three daughters in Richard II reign. Also the Gedeney family from Gedney, the Fleet family from Fleet, the Pincebeck family from Pinchbeck. The families retained their names when they left the districts from which those names were derived.

My friend Everard Green, F.S.A., who has written on the South Lincolnshire families, writes me to-day: "I am in doubt if the family of Spalding came from Spalding, if there ever was such a family it must have been a very, very long time ago." By that he means, I take it, long prior to the dissolution of Monasteries, and there he is right. It has often struck me in looking up South Lincolnshire families how many have migrated, about the Tudor period, to Norfolk, as the Walpoles, Pinchbecks, and others, for what reason I cannot say, I have conjectured the following:

When the troubles came on the monasteries the Lincolnshire men had "their little resistance" to the measures of Henry VIII, which brought on the county the King's great hatred; he termed the county the most beastly in his realm. That the Roses Wars had stirred up considerable strife in the county and those who professed the Roman Catholic faith would be more closely watched than if living in a peaceful county like Norfolk had always been.

Many of the leading middle class families were dependent on the monasteries, being farmers, etc., or squires on their lands, as Henry VIII dissolved them and giving the lands to his favorites, they would be turned out.

Perhaps some of the families thought they might take a better position out of the county; however, these are only conjectures.

Personally I have little doubt the Spalding family were originally a South Lincolnshire family; they migrated into North Lincolnshire in the 14th century or early in the 15th century. They were of Squire rank, largely mixed up with the monasteries, many were clerics, and a branch may have gone to Norfolk in the Tudor period.* They, about the time of the dissolution, fell from their former position into the farmer class, as too many of the old families of that period did, and so became lost so far as records are concerned at least.

I have gone through my Lincolnshire topographical works for you and send you what notes I find relating to the Spaldings and also put down some hints for you.

Mr. Green writes: "In Norfolk and Yorkshire I find the name, also in Scotland. There is a printed pedigree of Spaldings in McKerlie's Lands and Their Owners in Galloway, iii 77."

*The name is found in Norfolk as early as 1318—150 years before the Tudor period.

I forward you a small article I have appearing in Lincolnshire Notes and Queries for January, and also a notice of a work on Whaplode Church, which you may find interesting, it will be published by Elliott Stork of 64 Paternoster Row, London, at 4s. 6d. If I can be of any further help to you or to any South Lincolnshire family in America I shall be glad to do so, also any who may require South Lincolnshire works, as I have been collecting a library of that class for many years, and many of the second hand booksellers let me know of any works they have to sell, but I find I now have a copy of nearly every one that has been published, so that I could doubtless lay my hands on some vendor who may have the work they may require.

If you are wanting any searching done at the Lincoln Will registry, or in the London register (which is the principal one), for any Spalding family wills, I can refer you to people who would do it for you, I not having time myself; I employ searchers for my own work and so could easily arrange for you.

I wish I had had the pleasure of meeting you when in England; if I go to America I would give you a call, as I have a hope I may get to see a cousin of my wife's, Mr. Matheson, in South Carolina, who was over here last summer and almost extracted a promise that I should go to see him.

Probably you may know my wife's people, the Mathesons by name; they are leaders in the Presbyterian Church in that country. Mr. Tom Matheson of Liverpool was nearly going over a few years since as a representative from the English Presbyterian Church to yours. Yours, etc.,

W. R. FOSTER.

4 MONTAGUE PLACE, MEDFORD SQUARE, LONDON,

March 14, 1883.

DEAR SIR:—Mr. Bahnwell has forwarded to me from Hull your letter about persons named Spalding and I have to apologise for not replying earlier.

I beg to say that this name does not occur in my "Parliamentary Representation of the Six Northern English Counties" nor yet in the Parliamentary Representation of Lincolnshire, which I trust will be ready some time during the course of this year.

With respect to your inquiry for "Drakard's History of Stamford" I have written Mr. Gray, the Topographical Bookseller, in Leicester Square, London, who has not got a copy at present, but will endeavor to procure one.

I am sorry to say that I cannot give you a great amount of information but I would refer you to the work on American Genealogies and Pedigrees by Daniel Durrll, third edition, published at Albany, New York, by Joel Munsell & Sons, 1866, and also to the American Genealogist by Wm. H. Whitmore and published by the above firm at Albany in 1873.

In the Genealogical Guide to Printed Pedigrees, by George W. Marshall, published in London by Geo. Bell & Sons, in 1879, there is a reference to a pedigree of Spalding in a work called "Lands and their Owners in Galloway" (Scotland), by P. H. McKerlie.

This name will also be found in the Indexes to the Official Parliamentary Returns of the Members of the House of Commons, from the earliest period to 1874, as being principally connected with Scotland (the Wigton district of Scotch burghs after the union with England in 1707), and it also appears that in 1832 there was a John-Eden Spalding who was a Parliamentary Candidate for the English borough of Hertford.

I am afraid that I have not been able to afford you much information but I would suggest that you should search the indexes to the various volumes of the Gentleman's Magazine (1731-1868) where it is quite likely you may find further information. (There are several separate Index Volumes to this Magazine.)

Believe me, yours truly,

W. W. BEAN.

LINCOLN WILLS.

[A. D. 1500 TO 1600.]

In Maddison's "Lincoln Wills" no mention of Spaldings is made. This volume of wills proved at Lincoln, Bishop's register, was published at Lincoln in 1888.

Gibbon's Early Lincoln Wills 1280–1547, published at Lincoln in 1888, contains the following:

Thomas fil' Galfrida de Pynchbeck, II: Nov.-Jan. 1342 [fo. 18], adm. to Godfrey de Spalding, Vicar of Multon, [a village five miles from Spalding].

Henry de Brauncewell, Canon of Lincoln, St. Andrew Apostle 1395 [fo. 430].

To be buried in the body of the Cathedral near the tomb of Richard de Ravensen my late master:

Brother's Simon Spaldyng and John Mounby. 6s. 9d. each.

Elizabeth la Warre, wife of Lord la Warre. Dated at Grymsthorp, 12 Oct. 1393 [fo. 405].

To be buried in the Abbey Church of Swyneshead in the place which my Lord has disposed for his burial.

Gifts to Swyneshead Abby, to Leicester Abbey, and several other religious houses. Fr. John Spaldyng, 40s.

William da Zouche, Lord of Haryngworth, Friday, 14 March, 1381 [fo. 235].

To Manager Robert Spaldyng, v marks for 5 years.

Alice, Lady Wake of Bleseworthe, widow. Dated East Depynge, 28 May, 1398. To be buried in my chapel in the Church of St. Gutlac, East Depynge, near the body of my lord.

Item, Johanni Spaldyng. fil' meo i cepturn, etc.

Witnesses: Robert Hugham, Rector of St. Cuthlac, East Depynge; John Spaldyng; Thos. Kymyng, parish chaplain of St. Cutlac; Wm. Bergham, chaplain.

Proved at Brune, 24 Sept. 1398.

From Gibbon's "Early Lincoln Wills" published, in 1888, by William's, Lincoln.

In speaking of the White Friary, Stamford, Ralph Spalding was likewise educated here, flourished about 1390. He was chosen professor of divinity in Cambridge and favored Wickliffe's doctrine. He died and was buried here.—Drakard's Stamford (p. 188), published in 1822.

There is no mention of the Spaldings in the Herald's Visitations (that have been published) for Lincolnshire.

No Arms of the Spaldings given nor any mention of them in Yorke's "Arms of Lincolnshire Gentry" published in 1540.

No mention of the Spalding family is made in Yerborough's "Sleaford."

In 1431 John Spaldyng was Vicar of Quarrington, near Sleaford (instituted 1431).—From Trollope's Sleaford.

The family is not mentioned in the partizans of the King in the parliamentary struggle.

No mention of Spaldings is made in the following works:

Thompson's Boston.
Oldfield's Wainfleet.
Wier's Horncastle.
Stark's Gainsboro.
Stark's Lincoln.
Gough's Croyland.
Ingulphus' Chronicles of Croyland.
Peacock's Church Furniture.

These and a whole series of our public records have been published by the British Government under the care of the Master of the Rolls. They are very a valuable series of prints of the public records.

No mention of the Spaldyngs in Lincolnshire Worthies by Watkin's.

John de Spalding was Prior of Spalding Abbey in the reign of Henry III. He was a powerful head of that body.

Thomas de Spaldyng was Prior of Spalding Abbey in 1430.

Information can be obtained from the Rotuti Hundredan copies of which can be found in various public libraries:

Ingiq's Post. Mortem Rolls.
Testa de Neville.

Col. Holle's notes of Crosses, Arms, etc., in churches before the Parliamentary War in 1620. He visited the Lincolnshire churches.

No mention of the Spaldings in relation to Croyland Abbey.

There are no arms to the memory of Spaldings in the South Holland division of Lincolnshire churches.

American Genealogist, by Wm. H. Whitmore, and published by Joel Munsell & Sons in 1875, at Albany, N.Y.

Genealogical Guide to Printed Pedigrees, by George W. Mauxwall, published in London by George Bell & Sons in 1879. There is reference to a pedigree of Spalding in a work called "Lands and Their Owners in Galloway (Scotland)," by P. H. McKerlie.

Drakard's History of Stamford.

Gentlemen's Magazine 1731 to 1868 (Search the Indexes).

Work on "Whaplode Church" to be published by Elliot Stock, of 64 Paternoster Row, London.

In Notes and Queries, 3d Series, Vol. 4, p. 228, appears the following: Robert Spalding, Regius Professor of Hebrew, Cambridge, England. One of the translators of the authorized version of the Scriptures, A. D. 1611.

Notes and Queries, 3d Series, Vol. 4, p. 380: A brief account of Robert Spalding will be found in Athenai Cantatra, II 479.

He is supposed to have died in 1607, when his office of Regius Professor of Hebrew became vacant.

Collier's Ecclesiastical History of Great Britain and Fuller's Cli. Histcry of Great Britain both mention Dr. Spalding as "fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Professor of Hebrew, one of the translators of the old Testament (King James' Version). His name was Robert. He was a Doctor of Divinity (see Fuller's History of the University of Cambridge, Page 240, University Press Edition). There is also mentioned in the same work a Ralph Spalding in the University of Cambridge, A. D. 1390. "A committee who was the sole Cantabrigian at this time suspected to favor their (the Wicklivists') opinions."

William Spalding, in 1547, in St. Lawrence Parish, Ipswich; see East Anglian Notes and Queries: New Series, Vol. 1, p. 250, also Vol. 2: Ibid: p. 16: John Spalding of Syleham, Suffolk, 12 Sept., 1546; his Will.

Members of the House of Commons from the earlist period to 1874, as being principally connected with Scotland (the Wigton District of Scotch burghs after the Union with England in 1707).

In 1832 there was a John Eden Spalding who was a Parliamentary Candidate for the English borough of Hertford.

SPALDING MANUSCRIPTS.

RELATING TO THE TOWN AND ABBEY OF THAT NAME IN COUNTY LINCOLN, ENGLAND.

Charter of Thocuid de Bowendale to the Abbey of Croyland. Lans. MSS. 397c and Fol. 280 British Museum.

Grant of the Manor of Spalding, James I. Ad. MSS. 5693, Fol. 105. British Museum.

Epitaphs in Spalding Church. Ad. MSS. British Museum 5846.

Notes on the Disturbances in Spalding in 1643. Ad. MSS. 5864, Fo. 484.

Part of Register of Spalding Priory. British Museum Harleian MSS. 741. This is a fine MSS., mostly of the 14th Century.

Owen's MSS. Said to be over 40 volumes, in which are many interesting things about the town and priory and Abbey. Volume 42 is exclusively devoted to Spalding Priory, and to the churches under its control. It is in cramped abbreviated latin, but might be translated. Indeed it ought to be.

There are many Arms in this MSS. which might give clue to the town name and possible origin of family name.

Subsidy Rolls in British Museum Tower and Queen's Remembrance office. Rolls House and Augmentation office.

Printed MSS. in the Rotuli Hundredorum contain much about Spalding. This is printed and is accessible in British Museum.

The Calendar Inquisitiones post mortem British Museum 2073, published by order of George III., has Spalding Notes.

Notes and Queries, 1st Series, Vol. II., p. 134, appears the following: I possess a cast of the Monastic Seal of Spalding Priory, but it is very imperfect. On one side is the figure of a prior or abbot, I suppose, with pastoral staff in his left hand, and the right in the attitude of benediction. On the other side is the representation of the Virgin, as I take it, with the Holy child. But little remains of the inscription on both sides; and the figures, especially the last-named, are much mutilated.—D. S. L.

Notes and Queries, 1st Series, Vol II. p. 207: The Seal of the Spalding Priory mentioned by your correspondent has on one side the Virgin and child; on the other, the figure of a Bishop, supposed to be St. Nicholas, with right hand raised in Benediction.

Dugdale, in his Monasticon (Vol. 8. Ed. 1846), says that Mr. Maurice Johnson, in a letter to Dr. Stukely, conjectures that the entire reading of the inscription on the first-mentioned side must have been: S. Prioris et Capituli Beatæ Mariæ Galeanæ. — Bibl. Top. Brit., Num. II: p. 100.

The Seal is attached to the Recognition of King Henry VIII's Supremacy preserved in the Chapter House at Westminster. This deed is signed by Thomas Spaldyng, Prior; Robert Pynchbek, Sub-Prior; John Boston, Senior Master of the Chapel; and eighteen other monks, and is dated July 31, 1534.

Willis, in his Mitred Abbots, II 122, calls this prior Thomas White. He appears to have resigned his office for a small pension which he enjoyed under the latter of his names in 1553.—John Piggot, Jun.

Charter for the foundation of Croyland granted in 716 A.D., boundary of Croyland Abbey was to extend "usque ad Odificia Spaldeling."

The Priory of Spalding was built as a cell to Croyland Abbey in 1051 A. D., by Thorold de Bokenhale.

The following is from the Minutes of the Spalding Gentlemen's Society:

"24th Oct'r 1728. Mr. Everard shewed the Spald. Soc'y a lease indented on vellum 2d Jan'y 29 H viij . . . . between the Rev'd Fadre in God Richard prior of the monasterie of our blessed Lady and St. Nicholas of Spalding . . . . In witness etc. the L. Pr. and Conv't put their Comn Seall in their Chapiter House at Sp'g, etc." This proves that the last head of the house was still a Prior, although a Mitred Prior.

Browne-Willis (History of Mitred Abbeys, Vol. II, page 122) says: In the year 1530 Thomas iv Knyght or White occurs Lord Prior. He had a pension of £33 6s. 8d. per annum assigned him 31st July, 1534, 26 Henry viij, for subscribing with twenty others to the King's supremacy, which he enjoyed in 1553. He was succeeded in 1538 by Richard Palmer, alias Elsyn or Nellson, who was the last prelate who enjoyed the title of Lord Prior of Spalding. He surrendered his convent into the King's hands anno 1540, for which he had a pension of £133 6s. 8d. per annum, which he also enjoyed in 1553. (Extract from the Minutes of the Spalding Gentlemen's Society, in Provincial Literary Repository, published at Spalding in 1801, Vol. I, pp. 437–8.)

"Anno 1613 the register is signed for the first time by Ezekial Edgar, Rector Eccl'a and Gilbert Spalding and Robert Nunn, church wards."—From "History and Antiquities of Hawsted [Halsted] and Hardwick, in the County of Suffolk," by Rev. Sir John Cullum (1813), p. 75.

XI. Terre Sci Guthlaci de Croiland:

XIIII. In Hawardeshov Wapent:

In Spallinge Earl Algar had nine carucates of land rateable togeth: the land is as many carucates. Ivo has there four carucates in demesne and 40 villeins and 33 bordars who have 13 carucates. There is a market worth 40s. yearly, and 6 fisheries worth 30s. yearly and [et de salinis] salt works worth 30s. yearly, and a wood of alder trees worth 8s. yearly. The value in King Edward's time was £23 2s. 8d.; it is now £30: and it is tallaged at £30.

LVY. Terra Widom's de Oedun.

In Spallinge Alestan had 11 bovates of land rateable togeth: the land is . . . . . wide, has there one carucate [in demesne] and 5 villeins and 2 bordars with 1 carucate and a plot of ground [area salinaru] which is for the use of salt works paying 4d. yearly. The annual value in King Edward's time was, and it now is, 40s.

The above proves that Spalding was a well known town before the Conquest. Ingulphus is a very reliable author.
